3 big Baja cities broke

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP)—The three biggest cities in Baja California were described Friday as broke, the result of peso devaluation and the rising value of U.S. dollars.

The financial crisis is their worst in modern history, said officials in Tijuana, Mexicali and Ensenada. City services have been cut and workers fired, they said, and loans have been taken out with private banks at 18 per cent interest to meet payrolls.

In Tijuana and Mexicali, appeals have been made to Mexico's federal government for aid, officials said.

The peso was allowed to float Sept. 1 and that action hit hardest in cities nearest the U.S. border, officials said. As the peso was finally devalued by 37 per cent, goods and services priced in dollars became much more expensive.

A MAJORITY of the border cities do heavy business with U.S. firms and banks charging dollar prices.

The peso was devalued from 12.5 to the dollar to 19.7 and "we started losing money right off the top," said Mayor Armando Gallegos of Mexicali.

"It was just too much," said Mayor Fernando Marquez Arce of Tijuana. "We have become seriously deficit—all of us, Tijuana, Mexicali and Ensenada."

Gallegos said Mexicali is running at a $320,000 deficit and a loan for that amount is being negotiated with two Mexican banks at 18 per cent interest.

The loan "means we will be going into 1977 with a deficit which must be made up from appropriations that will barely carry us over ordinary expenses," he said.

Douglas sues for $25 million in DC-10 crash case

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

The McDonnell Douglas Corporation filed a $25 million libel action Friday against the New York Times and writer Robert Sherrill over a published review of two books written about the 1973 Paris crash of a Long Beach-built DC10 that claimed 346 lives.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in St. Louis, charged that "a review written by Sherrill and published (Oct. 10) in the New York Times Book Review libeled McDonnell Douglas by stating and conveying the impression that the company and its personnel engaged in dishonest and improper practices and mismanagement."

A Times spokesman Friday night declined comment on the libel suit, saying, "It's the first I've heard of it."

HOWEVER, Ray Cooper, assistant production manager, said today's Times carried a brief news story reporting the suit. Cooper said the Times article today did not carry a response.

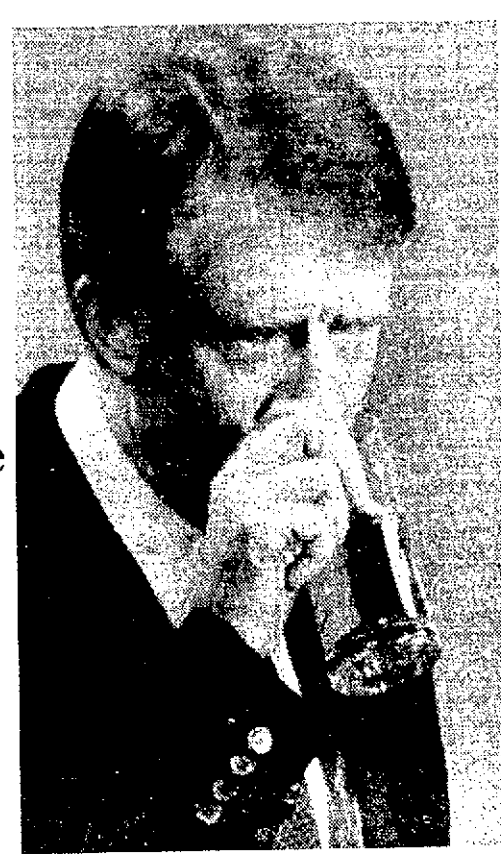

The crash March 3, 1974, of a Turkish Airlines commercial DC10 near Paris came shortly after takeoff from Orly Field when the wide-cabin jumbo tri-jet lost its cargo door, investigators said.

All 346 passengers, including 15 entire families and 17 Americans, were killed. At the time, it was the worst commercial crash in history. Victims and debris were found scattered over a seven-mile area.

McDonnell Douglas subsequently warned airlines about a possible door failure if it wasn't properly latched. A similar accident occurred a year earlier over Detroit when a DC10 cargo door popped open. The pilot was able to land the plane with no loss of life.

Poll gives Carter edge over Ford

By WALTER R. MEARS

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—President Ford and Jimmy Carter warily argued issues ranging from abortion and civil rights to the economy and their own campaign tactics Friday night, then concluded their nationally televised debates the way they began—each claiming that he was a leader and the other a pretender.

The first signal of voter reaction indicated that Democrat Carter was judged the victor in the rubber match of three presidential campaign debates.

The candidates' final summations went to the point raised in opening statements in their first debate in Philadelphia—the qualifications of the Republican President and the Democratic challenger to lead the nation for the next four years.

Ford said he had observed presidents, and sometimes differed with them, during his 25 years in Congress. "For the last two years, I've been the President, and I have found from experience that it's much more difficult to make those decisions than it is to second-guess them," he said.

THE PRESIDENT said the nation was healed after a troubled time of Watergate and war, and "the American people are moving again, and moving in the right direction."

But Carter said otherwise. He said Ford's administration has not provided national leadership.

"Mr. Ford is a good and decent man, but he's been in office now for more than 800 days. . . I'd like to ask the American people what's been accomplished," Carter said. The former Georgia governor said he offered no magic answers to the nation's problems, "but I believe together we can achieve great things."

He contrasted his experience, in local and state government, in the Navy and as a nuclear engineer, to Ford's in Congress. "I believe the American people are ready for a change in Washington," he said. "We've been drifting too long; we've been dormant too long; we've been discouraged too long."

THROUGHOUT much of the 90-minute debate at Phi Beta Kappa Hall on the campus of the College of William and Mary, Ford and Carter avoided hard-line attacks on each other. It was as though they had taken note of an early question about the level of the campaign and the apparent lack of interest of the voters in personal attacks and side issues.

Both seemed intent on avoiding a tone that might grate, a misstep that might prove devastating with only 10 days left before the Nov. 2 election.

There was an air of studied politeness, without the stern criticism Ford sounded in Philadelphia or the sardonic tones Carter adopted during their second debate, in San Francisco.

But there were slaps, each at the other. Carter said "Shame" after Ford boasted of the administration's economic record. Ford said Carter has slipped in the public-opinion polls—which still show him leading—because of inconsistency about the issues.

BUT IT was not the strident stuff of the campaign platforms, or of some exchanges in the earlier debates. And when this one was over, the candidates met in center stage, smiling, shaking hands, exchanging the private words of men who knew that when they next met one would be president-elect and one would be a loser.

$10,000 jewels grabbed in L.B.

Two armed men robbed a downtown Long Beach jewelry store Friday of $10,000 in jewels, Long Beach police said. No shots were fired, police said.

The bandits, one armed with a chrome-plated revolver, forced a clerk at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Long Beach Blvd., to surrender the jewels about 5 p.m., then fled on foot.

Detectives described each of the bandits as white men, about 25, and 5-foot-7 inches tall. No getaway car was seen and pedestrians nearby said they neither saw nor heard anything.

Abortion right backed for all

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge said Friday that a woman had a constitutional right to an abortion and could not be barred from getting one if she lacked money.

U.S. District Judge John Dooling Jr.—in ruling that Medicaid patients were entitled to abortions at public expense on the same basis as they were reimbursed for pregnancy and childbirth—said that Congress was mistaken if it thought that a ban on abortions paid for by Medicaid would save the taxpayers money.

"The alternative costs for medical assistance during prenatal care, at birth and after are very much greater," Dooling said.

His decision overturned a new federal law barring Medicaid payments for elective abortions.

Dooling cited the bitter disagreement between pro-abortionists and so-called right-to-life groups and said the government had no right to intervene on either side—either by compelling abortion as a means of population control or by denying medical aid to women who believe in abortion.

The suit was filed by Cora McRae, and Dooling granted it status of a class action, meaning it applied to all women.

His decision has the force of law in all 50 states, unless it is upset on appeal.

Dooling's decision came a day after U.S. Judge John Sirica in Washington dismissed a similar suit by low-income women from Virginia and the District of Columbia. They tried to block the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from implementing the law barring Medicaid payments for abortion.

Sirica said the women failed to show that the law would prevent the District of Columbia or Virginia from paying for abortions.

'GET OUT AND PUSH' was the word in Victorville cloudburst Friday as motorists help along stranded car through

Floods, slides hit S. Cal.

Sudden heavy rains fell over portions of Southern California Friday afternoon and evening, touching off floods that crumpled foothill soil, inundated roads and homes and killed at least one person.

On a small incline in Sylmar, a young woman was killed when a wall of water knocked her from her motorcycle and swept her against a pickup truck. A police officer at the scene identified her as Margie Burmeister.

Sara Houser, manager of a gas station at a nearby corner, said the rushing waters were so strong that another woman and her three children in a sedan were pushed broadside across the road. The woman pulled the children out of the car and onto dry land just before a burst of water washed the car a block down the road.

"It just took three minutes," Mrs. Houser said. "It looked like a dam broke. It was a 6-foot wall of water."

Hail and mud slides, carrying soggy dirt a foot to a foot and half deep, were reported along a 25-mile stretch that included the communities of Sunland, Tujunga and Sylmar, but there were no reports of damage in the area.

Police said the havoc resulted from a cloudburst that lasted only 15 minutes. By 7 p.m. skies were nearly clear.

The storm also brought the area's first snowfall of the season, a touch of white on Mt. San Jacinto in Riverside County.

Over the Long Beach-Los Angeles area, scattered showers with some intense thunderstorms were expected to continue through this morning, when clouds should decrease. Fair weather should return by Sunday.

A high of 68 and partly cloudy skies were predicted for Long Beach today.

In the Friday evening thunderstorms, authorities said, many motorists were trapped in their cars on roads clogged by heavy rains in the San Bernardino County areas of Victorville, Apple Valley and Oro Grande.

Sheriff's deputies with four-wheel-drive vehicles picked up stranded motorists.

Dry washes in the San Bernardino area were filled, some of them with water six feet high.

Secret missile lost from F14

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — An advanced Phoenix missile is still missing in the Atlantic Ocean, the Navy disclosed Friday, a day after the missile was reported found.

The secret missile was attached to an F14 fighter that fell overboard from the carrier John F. Kennedy on Sept. 14.

Following an extensive search the fighter was found in 1,900 feet of water on Thursday, and at that time the Navy said the missile was still attached to it.

But an embarrassed Navy had to backtrack Friday morning, announcing that the Phoenix "is not attached to the aircraft as originally believed."

Attention was focused on the loss of the F14 and its Phoenix missile because Soviet ships were in the area at the time and some U.S. officials were concerned they might try to recover the plane, one of this country's most advanced.

But the Russians never made an attempt to recover the aircraft, the Defense Department said.

Swine flu shots

ATLANTA — Forty-one persons have died after getting swine flu shots in the nationwide inoculation program, the federal Center for Disease Control said Friday. The CDC emphasized, however, there is no known connection between the vaccination program and the deaths.

Meanwhile, researchers reported Friday that swine flu vaccines are safe and effective for children and young people, but a booster shot probably will be required four weeks after the first inoculation.

Ferry crash bodies found

LULING, La. — Divers found ten more bodies Friday in the mud of the Mississippi River where the ferry George Prince sank after being rammed, capsized and sunk by a 664-foot Norwegian tanker. Eighteen persons survived and 32 bodies have been recovered.

One of the bodies recovered was in the last of three cars hauled from the tilt 60 to 80 feet down in the chill, murky water, authorities said.

The other bodies were in the mud itself.

The bodies were the first located since Wednesday when the ferry sank in the gray hours just before dawn, spilling screaming passengers and vehicles into the chilly water.

Officials have estimated that 75 persons died in the collision and fear many of the bodies will be lost forever in the swift, muddy river.

Job training funds set

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department allocated $1.68 billion to states and cities Friday for job training programs in the new year that began Oct. 1.

Included was $1.5 billion for classroom training, on-the-job training, work experience, summer youth employment, vocational and remedial education, counseling, job placement and transitional public service employment.

Catholic priest murdered

HOMER, La. — A Catholic priest was shot to death in his rectory after four months of anti-Catholic vandalism in this area, authorities said.

"I think there's some connection," Sheriff James R. Oakes said Friday. "It's not by chance ... but we don't know what we're looking for."

Oakes said an unknown assailant fired two shots through a screen door of the rectory of St. Margaret's Church on Thursday night and killed the Rev. Theodore M. Lelieveld.

In two of the most serious incidents of vandalism, someone defaced a bronze crucifix two weeks ago at St. Margaret Church. Last week, vandals threw a wine bottle through one of the church's stained glass windows.

Divorce penalty repeal asked

DETROIT — More than 1,000 Roman Catholics — bishops, nuns, priests, and laymen — overwhelmingly called on the nation's bishops Friday to repeal the nearly century-old church penalty of automatic excommunication for Catholics who "dare to remarry after divorce" without church approval.

The vote was taken in the second day of a meeting that some say is the most representative gathering of the American Catholic Church in history.

The meetings, to conclude tonight, are expected to produce a series of major proposals setting the stage for sweeping reforms in the church if adopted by the nation's bishops next spring.

Runaway fathers pay off

WASHINGTON — A federal crackdown on runaway welfare fathers netted $146 million in its first year of operation, the government said Friday.

Officials at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were surprised at the gain. They had expected the program to only break even with its costs.

However, they reported collecting $280 million in child support payments during the year, while costs totaled $134 million.

Buffer force extended

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Security Council approved a one-year extension Friday of the U.N. force manning the Sinai buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian troops. The vote was 13-0 with China and Libya not participating.

Through its resolution, the council extended until Oct. 24, 1977, the mandate of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF), which currently consists of 4,174 men from Australia, Canada, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Poland and Sweden.

Lebanon ceasefire holds

BEIRUT, Lebanon — For the first time in months there were no reports of combat deaths Friday despite sporadic machine gun bursts and mortar rounds throughout the second day of Lebanon's 57th cease-fire attempt.

Arab peacekeeping troops took up truce-watching positions in Beirut's beleaguered battle zones. But tension rose over a Christian campaign to seize control of the southern border hills overlooking Israel.

The Riyadh agreement of Oct. 16, when Arab heads of state ordered the truce, was imperiled elsewhere by a building Christian drive to take over the southern border region that has been a Palestinian reserve for seven years.

State seizes county files in case of murdered reporter

Combined News Services

The Maricopa county prosecutor, ousted from the Don Bolles murder trial by Arizona's governor, said he discovered his files on the case missing Friday morning, carted out by Phoenix policemen hours after a mistrial was declared.

Later, the state attorney general said his office had taken the files. The action intensified a feud between state and county authorities on the handling of the investigative reporter's murder.

"All of our files were taken out last night after most of us had left," said County Atty. Donald Harris.

"Several plainclothes police officers came in with a dolly and carted off the filing cabinet. I didn't know about it until this morning."

Harris said the removal of files

would "seriously hamper" his probe of more suspects in the Bolles murder.

John Harvey Adamson, a 32-year-old greyhound dog breeder, is charged with the murder. But Harris has said others might be indicted, and he stuck by that statement Friday.

"It seems to me everybody is stopping with Adamson," he said. "I want the others. We have a known quantity, and he's awaiting trial. I want to get onto the other people."

Harris' comments on possible indictments were blamed by both the defense and prosecution when they asked for a mistrial Thursday. Both sides insisted he had prejudiced the trial.

But some sources close to the case pointed out that the flap over Harris' press interviews gave officials a reason to remove him, and that it came after a long power struggle with the attorney general's office.

The murder of Bolles has attracted more local and national headlines than any case in Phoenix history. The 47-year-old reporter was maimed June 2 when dynamite exploded under his car. He died 11 days later.

Bolles was considered a crusader who exposed land fraud and misdeeds of politicians. The story he was working on when he was killed involved an alleged land fraud and, since he was killed, the names of some local political figures have been mentioned in the stories about the matters he was investigating. As a result, some politicians here felt that holding the trial now could affect local elections.

After the mistrial, the judge ordered that a new trial begin before Dec. 20.

Humphrey

Irrepressible Hubert H. Humphrey is up to his old tricks.

He is making daily rounds at Memorial Sloan-Kettering in New York City. Less than two weeks after his surgery for removal of his cancerous bladder, the senator knows all his fellow patients on the floor by name, and drops in on them regularly as he takes his daily exercise.

Patients have alerted their families, who now arrange their hospital visits to coincide with the senator's schedule, and patients from other floors line the mall to greet him, as he makes his way upon his appointed rounds, clad in his 20-year-old, blue and white bathrobe.

Milton Friedman, the Nobel prize-winning economist, says the debt-ridden Italian government ought to fire one of every 10 government employees if it wants a workable economic austerity program.

Friedman said Italy's approach to austerity through higher taxes, higher prices for state-produced goods and services and government financial help for weak industries is misguided.

Government expenses should be cut and nationalized concerns should be sold back to the people, Friedman said.

Jailed

New York City Democratic City Councilman Matthew Troy began a 60-day federal prison sentence Friday for evading income tax on $37,000.

"I'm ready to do what the judge ordered me to do and take my punishment," said Troy, 47.

Troy, an attorney and son of a retired judge, admitted misappropriating $66,405 from estates under his care but was allowed to plead guilty July 2 to a single count involving $37,000 of the total. He said he used the money to send his children to parochial schools and later made full restitution to the estates.

Brother

Billy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate's brother, says he's happy with Jimmy Carter's running mate, Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale.

"I liked him best of all the ones that came to Plains," Billy said Thursday, referring to the prospective vice-presidential candidates Carter interviewed at his Georgia home. "He's from a small town and he's a beer drinker."

Billy said the biggest change in his own life since his brother entered the race for president is that "I drink liquor out of a cup instead of out of the bottle now."

His brother's drinking habits have changed, too. "Jimmy used to drink liquor," he said. "Now he's running for president he drinks Scotch, and I've never trusted a Scotch drinker."

Overdose

Doctors in Calcutta said Palden Thondup Namgyal, former ruler of Sikkim, was still in critical condition but regaining consciousness four days after an overdose of barbiturates. A family member said that he had regained some of his reflexes and was beginning to react to light.

Half smart

"At 18,000 feet, you're roughly half as smart as you are at sea level," reported Dr. Dee Crouch, a doctor with the American Bicentennial Expedition to Mt. Everest, in Hong Kong Friday.

Dr. Crouch, who was on his way home to Boulder, Colo., said he was studying the effect of high altitude on the human brain. He said he had no proof that it can cause permanent brain damage but, he acknowledged, "the lore is that you don't come back from the mountain as smart as when you go up."

Jail thwarts love story

Stewart Goldstein stood before the judge, waiting to be sentenced for hiring a man to kill his wife. Beside him was his wife Julia.

"I really don't believe Stewart meant to do what transpired," the 25-year-old woman told Judge Marvin J. Land in Baltimore County Circuit Court.

"Stewart means a great deal to me," she said. "To lose him would be very painful."

Her plea left Land unmoved, and he imposed a maximum 18-year sentence Thursday on the 30-year-old defendant.

His crime? Paying a "hit man" $5,000 for a murder in April, 1974. The intended victim? Julia Goldstein, then his bride of nine days.

The murder never occurred because Goldstein selected an undercover detective as the contract killer so he could collect on a life insurance policy.

"I am really that much in love with Stewart," Mrs. Goldstein said. "He's that important to me. If we can just get this thing over and behind us, I think we would have a chance to make this a normal and kind of happy marriage."

Stanford coed lives as geisha

Can a 26-year-old Stanford University anthropology student from Indiana find happiness as a geisha girl?

Liza Crikfield thinks so. Armed with a Fulbright fellowship and a desire to learn about Japanese customs, she lived and worked as a geisha for nine months in Kyoto, Japan, the country's former capital and a center of Japanese culture.

"They are terribly busy people, so I found the best way to learn about them was working with them," she said. "It gave me a chance to see how geishas work first-hand."

"It was fun," she added during an interview. "You meet so many interesting people, really the cream of Japanese society."

Ms. Crikfield plans to incorporate her experience in a doctoral thesis in anthropology. After that she hopes to write a book about her months as a geisha and perhaps a history of Japan's famous party women.

Geishas are primarily entertainers. Most are registered with a geisha house and are called on to entertain at parties held in zashikis, large rooms in restaurants.

"Some men came around expecting geishas to be prostitutes, but they got thrown out on their ear," said Ms. Crikfield.

During her stay, Ms. Crikfield took lessons in grooming, posture, conversation, serving food and playing the shamisen, a three-string Japanese lute, all traditional concerns of geishas.

"I was very much accepted by the women," she said. "I made it clear from the beginning that I wasn't looking down on them. I feel that they think they are misunderstood and would like to get their story out — so they really opened up to me."

Ms. Crikfield, who has made five trips to Japan and speaks Japanese fluently, spent months interviewing geishas, living with them and doing background work in Kyoto for her thesis.

"There are many people who are curious about geishas," she said. "They've played a great role in Japanese culture, but no studies have been made in the postwar period. There has been an information gap."

Don't keep truckin'

Can Action Line tell me why Harding Street between Orange and Cherry avenues has been designated as an alternate truck route? There are three main truck routes within a half mile of this street—the 91 Freeway, Artesia Boulevard and South Street. If this truck route designation must continue, why isn't there a stop light on this street as there is on South and Artesia? How many persons would have to be run over before a stop light would be installed? D.S., Long Beach.

Harding is not an official truck route, according to a spokesman for the Long Beach traffic engineer's office. If a truck driver is making a delivery or going to a construction site, he can use a non-truck route, but otherwise, he can be cited for using a street such as Harding. The police, however, usually will not investigate complaints about truck drivers using unauthorized routes unless they have specific information to go on. "If a person simply complains that trucks use his street all the time, we don't have enough personnel to assign someone full time to watch that street for violations, but if a person gives us a time period when trucks particularly use the street or the names of truck companies involved, we'll investigate," said Lt. George Holton of the Long Beach Police Department's traffic division. He also said he's never received any complaints about truck traffic on Harding. There are traffic lights on Harding at Cherry and Orange, as there are on Artesia and South. The other north-south streets that cross Harding, which is considered a main thoroughfare, are minor residential side streets with stop signs, and the city would not consider installing traffic lights at these intersections, the traffic engineer's spokesman said.

Make a splash

Who sponsors the Long Beach Swim Club? Mrs. J.M., Long Beach.

It is a private club, operating as a member of the Amateur Athletic Union, and it uses the Long Beach Recreation Department facilities at Belmont Plaza Pool for its training sessions and meets. It operates primarily to train young swimmers for competition. The club is coached by Dick Joecums, 1976 Pan-American and Long Beach State University swim team coach. The swimmers, ranging in age from 5 to young adulthood, are coached in basic stroke techniques and physical endurance building up to two-hour workouts. The less-experienced swimmers learn the basics in sessions at Millikan High School. Membership fees are generally $20 monthly per child but discounts are given under a plan which reduces rates for families who have more than one child competing.

In a corner

The deplorable condition of the intersection at Lakewood Boulevard and Carson Street has existed for years. Because of the dip there, the maximum safe speed for driving east or west through this intersection is 15 to 20 miles per hour, and even at this speed, a car bounces violently. With the millions of dollars collected from the gasoline tax, there should be enough money to remedy this situation. F.A., Long Beach.

The dip actually is a drainage gutter, and that intersection probably will remain in the same condition for some time. Even with the gutter, drainage has been a problem there, but because of the pedestrian tunnels under Lakewood Boulevard, it would cost a tremendous amount of money to install a major storm drain system in that area. Carson is a city street, but Lakewood is a state highway, and city improvement projects must have the approval of the state. In 1973, the city requested the state's permission to install what's called a dry weather drain system in that area and to reconstruct the intersection. But the state engineers would not approve the project unless the gutter remained because they deemed that the dry weather drainage system would not be adequate in rainy weather. The dry weather drain was installed last year. A spokesman for the city engineer's office said Long Beach officials hope to redesign that intersection to provide a somewhat smoother ride even with the gutter, but "at this point we don't have the funds for the job."

Venue shift denied in Slasher murder trial

Associated Press

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge Friday turned down a request by Vaughn Greenwood, accused Skid Row Slasher, to have his multiple-murder trial moved out of Los Angeles County.

Greenwood, who filed the change-of-venue motion himself, said he could not receive a fair trial in the county because of prejudicial publicity.

But Judge Earl C. Broady denied the motion without comment after a closed hearing.

Greenwood, 33, is charged with 11 counts of murder, including the nine so-called Slasher killings in December 1974 and January 1975 and two 1964 murders.

Greenwood's motion alleged that local news media had violated gag orders by Broady, prejudicing potential jurors.

For example, there had been six unfair and prejudicial stories since Wednesday, the motion argued.

Broady disagreed, saying the media had acted with restraint.

"If there has been material in the newspaper which has been detrimental to the defendant ... it hasn't come even near the point" where prejudice in prospective jurors could not be ferreted out by questioning, the judge said.

He also denied a defense motion to prevent prospective jurors from being questioned on their attitudes toward the death penalty.

Poker game ends in death

A Compton man was stabbed to death Thursday night in an apparent row with a neighbor over a poker game, sheriff's deputies said Friday.

Carl Burrell, 31, of 4821 E. Compton Blvd., was stabbed with a kitchen knife and died an hour later at Paramount

General Hospital, they said.

Theresa Ann Murray, 22, of 4817 E. Compton Blvd., was booked at Carson station on suspicion of murder.

Deputies said she and two unidentified men were playing poker when the altercation developed.

Parts of bodies, aircraft removed

Associated Press

Souvenir seekers have hampered an investigation into a midair collision over a Venice playground that killed two pilots and injured seven persons on the ground, Los Angeles police said Friday.

The collision, which occurred 500 feet above a private elementary school where 100 children were playing, sent aircraft wreckage sailing into homes in a heavily populated two-square-mile area, and souvenir hunters were seen walking off with parts of the two light planes and even pieces of the two men's bodies, said one officer.

"They were carrying off everything from airplane parts to actual pieces of bodies," the officer said. "You couldn't believe it. We did our best to stop them but quite a few must have got away with some part or another."

Of the seven people injured on the ground, six were policemen at the Los Angeles Police Department's nearby Venice station, where one of the planes, a twin-engine Turbo Commander, struck a telephone pole and skidded a corner of the police station before crashing.

The station was evacuated, and officers suffered from smoke inhalation, minor back injuries and abrasions, while a civilian reported minor cuts.

Police have asked anyone who picked up parts of the Commander or the single-engine Beechcraft Debonair to return the pieces to the Venice station, where they will be turned over to the Federal Aviation Administration to help study the crash's cause.

More than 1,000 pieces of the wreckage were scattered in front of the smoke-blackened police station, said Sgt. Jim Cisin, "and we're still finding marble-sized pieces."

He added, "A lot of people have picked up parts, apparently keeping them for souvenirs. They'll probably throw them away in a couple of days."

The Hughes Turbo Commander, returning from Santa Barbara, entered a landing pattern for the Hughes Aircraft Corp. airstrip in Culver City. Its pilot was Donald R. Bolt of Torrance, a Hughes employee.

The other pilot, Erich Ernest Baldwin, 27, of Westminster, was flying his rented single-engine plane from Hawthorne to Santa Monica when the collision occurred. Both planes burst into flames and spiraled to the ground, witnesses said.

Baldwin's plane crashed into the bedroom of Albert Pesquiera, 16, just after he had walked out the back door of his house. He said he heard a scream from a woman across the street who told him something had crashed into her garage.

What Pesquiera thought was a seat cushion turned out to be "a body with no head."

"We heard a loud crash and bits of skull, bits of flesh and a dozen chunks of the Beechcraft plane came showering down on the kids," said Raymond Roller, principal of the Marina Light and Life Christian School.

Marcia Falcone, an instructor and playground supervisor at the school, looked up at almost the same moment the planes collided. "I saw an explosion," she said. "I saw two very distinct bodies falling with their arms and legs twisting ... all kinds of metal showering down, and we rushed the children indoors." Fortunately none of them was among the injured.

Santa Ana fire probe for arson

Arson investigators late Friday were probing an early-morning fire that caused an estimated $200,000 damage—and left one fireman injured—at the Santa Ana office of the Plasmadyne company.

Officials said Capt. Don Little was under observation in the cardiac care unit of Santa Ana Tustin Community Hospital after suffering chest pains while fighting the two-hour blaze.

Fieman Bill Viar, who sustained a back injury, was treated and released at the same hospital.

The blaze was reported at 5:37 a.m. Friday by motorists on the nearby Newport Beach Freeway who saw flames leaping through the roof of the two-story building at 3839 S. Main St.

The fire was brought under control at 7:15 a.m. by nine fire units under command of Battalion Chief Robert Huebner.

2 bad-check artists sought in 3 counties

City of Orange police said Friday they are seeking two suspects in a check-passing ring that is operating in three counties with stolen supermarket check-cashing cards.

Police declined to name the suspects for fear of hurting the investigation.

However, they said the check forgery ring has been operating about one year in Los Angeles, San Diego, and Orange counties.

Orange Detective Roger Braham said that in each case stolen supermarket check-cashing cards are used to pass bad checks.

Braham said he had no estimate on how many persons have been victimized or how much money has been lost. Nor would he say how many persons are involved.

UC asks 11% hike in record budget request

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of California asked the state Friday for an 11.5 per cent increase in funding for 1977-78 in a record $2.2-billion budget.

Though enrollment is expected to be virtually unchanged next fall, University President David Saxon said the budget increase would cover "a very small fraction of the urgent needs" at the nine campuses.

Gov. Brown cut UC's budget considerably in the last two years. Aides in his Finance Department are already questioning the need for an increase that is well above the rise in enrollment and inflation.

THE budget will be submitted to the Legislature for scrutiny, along with Brown's alternate proposal. The Democratic governor is to sign the final state budget by next June 30.

The budget approved by the UC regents without dissent calls for $723 million in state support, a $75-million increase.

Also approved was a construction budget of $85 million, about two-thirds of it from bond money and state funds, and a $20.6 million, 6.77 per cent raise for UC teachers.

Saxon was critical of the $70-a-month raise Brown insisted on this year for the university faculty along with most other state employees. Brown has promised to return to the traditional percentage raises next year.

ASKED how he would defend the budget increase, Saxon said inflation had hit the university particularly hard in a wide range of areas, including the cost of equipment, petroleum products for chemistry laboratories and foreign periodicals for libraries. He said more than half the proposed state increase was to cover inflation.

In addition, the university is again asking for money for long-delayed repairs of deteriorating equipment and buildings. To deny that request would be "false economy," said Regents Chairman William Coblentz.

Saxon prompted laughter from reporters when asked if he had reason to expect approval of the budget increase.

"IF YOU'LL let me use the word 'reason' somewhat loosely," he said.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, also a regent, said he was sympathetic to the request for maintenance money "to avoid more costly rehabilitation caused by delay."

But McCarthy, D-San Francisco, added that he expected "a fierce competition for every tax dollar" reflecting such needs as school finance, property-tax relief and housing.

"Everybody is probably going to find it a pretty tight, difficult year," he said.

Cereal advice dished out

SACRAMENTO (AP) — State schools chief Wilson Riles issued suggestions Friday to guide school districts in deciding whether to participate in a cereal company's box-top drive.

Riles issued the guidelines in connection with a collection drive sponsored by the Post Cereals Division of General Foods, which is offering athletic equipment for tops from cereal packages.

"At least until the petition is acted upon by the state board, it is clear that the governing board of each school district may or may not participate in the promotion as it sees fit," Riles said in a letter to school superintendents.

In making that decision, Riles urged districts to consider:

— "The extent to which the influence of the schools is being placed in support of one company or industry to the exclusion of others.

— "Whether the schools are receiving a substantial benefit from the campaign or whether the benefit is so insubstantial as to be an unwarranted use of school time and resources.

— "The extent to which the product promoted or sold is consistent or inconsistent with objectives of the school program such as nutrition education.

— "The extent to which the product is a luxury item or is more expensive than competing products."

UFW upheld on Prop. 14 poster

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Friday allowed the United Farm Workers to continue using a controversial child-labor poster that supports Proposition 14.

The court stayed, without comment, a preliminary injunction granted Wednesday. A San Francisco Superior Court judge had prohibited use of the name of a Kern County grower, Garin Co., on the poster and ordered the union to make a reasonable effort to block out the name on posters already in circulation.

The high court's order prevents enforcement of the injunction pending its future action on the petition filed by the UFW and others. The UFW had asked that the lower court's action be held invalid.

The stay does not constitute any determination of the merits of the petition.

Garin sought the injunction in its $1.5 million libel suit against the UFW and others. The company contends that it does not use child labor and that statements on the posters are false and libelous and have injured its reputation and business.

Prop. 14 would re-enact the state's farm-labor law, with some pro-labor changes, into an initiative statute.

The UFW, union leader Cesar Chavez, the Yes on 14 Committee and other defendants objected to the injunction on grounds that it violated their free exercise of speech and expression.

The poster is headlined "Stop Child Labor—Yes on Proposition 14." It shows a girl dumping onions from a can into a sack in the fields, and a caption alleges that the scene is on the Garin ranch at Mettler in Kern County. Garin contended it did not grow onions there this year and does not use the farm-labor contractor mentioned.

Foes of Prop. 14 win round on ads with ABC, FCC

Associated Press

U.S. Sen. John Tunney and Republican challenger S.I. Hayakawa met with aides Friday in preparation for their first televised debate Saturday night.

And a dispute over advertisements against the Cesar Chavez-sponsored farm-labor initiative churned along, with foes of Proposition 14 winning rounds with the ABC network and the Federal Communications Commission.

Hayakawa made only one brief public appearance Friday. Tunney had none as they separately prepared for their hour-long confrontation on a Los Angeles television channel.

Hayakawa told the Los Angeles Rotary Club that Tunney's proposals to reduce unemployment are "long on campaign gimmickry and short on basic math."

HE criticized a Tunney proposal to give tax credits to employers who hire people who have been jobless for at least 13 weeks, saying that would benefit only 7 per cent of the unemployed.

Tunney, meanwhile, picked up support, if not exactly an endorsement, from Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Palo Alto, who told a high-school class in Sunnyvale Friday that he will not vote for his party's nominee.

"I'm going to vote for Tunney. No one 70 years old should be elected to the Senate for the first time," McCloskey said of Hayakawa.

McCloskey press aide Bill Johnson said later the comments were not intended to be an endorsement.

"There is a narrow line, but he has refrained from endorsing John Tunney, although he has said publicly he will vote for Tunney because he thinks Tunney has grown in the job," Johnson said.

In the Prop. 14 battle, the FCC in Washington rejected a request that ads against the initiative be banned from radio and television as "false and misleading."

And ABC, which had ordered a review of the commercials, announced that it would continue to air them.

The commercials allege that Prop. 14 violates constitutional rights to private property. Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers, said that contradicts a ruling by the California Supreme Court which the U.S. Supreme Court allowed to stand.

"THE FCC saw the Chavez effort as nothing more than a cheap shot at grabbing headlines," said No-on-14 Campaign Director Bill Roberts.

Chavez, meanwhile, launched a three-day "human billboard" campaign for the initiative in Los Angeles with a crowd of about 1,500, including actors and actresses.

Chavez supporters wearing sandwich-board signs fanned out to freeway off-ramp sites around Los Angeles after the rally.

Justice McComb cited for contempt over deposition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Justice Marshall McComb, an 82-year-old jurist fighting to stay on the California Supreme Court, was cited for contempt Friday for refusing to give a sworn statement to a commission investigating him.

Complaints against McComb include reports that he falls asleep on the bench. A document filed with the court noted that he has been accused of "willful misconduct" and of having a serious physical disability.

SUPERIOR Court Judge Byron Arnold issued the unprecedented contempt ruling, ordering McComb jailed until he gave the deposition. But he stayed execution of the order until Nov. 8 to give McComb's attorneys time to appeal.

Documents filed with the contempt order included disclosure of the outline of the official case against McComb, the first of its kind against a California Supreme Court justice.

It was filed with the court by William O. Weissich, attorney for the Commission on Judicial Qualifications, before whom McComb was supposed to give the sworn deposition.

WEISSICH said McComb "is accused of willful and persistent failure to perform his duties, conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, of having a disability that seriously interferes with the performance of his duties that is, or is likely to become, permanent, and of willful misconduct in office."

There was no elaboration of the alleged misconduct or the nature of McComb's disability.

But for the last year, the commission has been investigating complaints that McComb falls asleep at work, doesn't follow judicial arguments and is absent or inattentive at judicial conferences.

McComb was appointed to the high court by Gov. Goodwin Knight in 1956. The court has no mandatory retirement age, but there are financial incentives for judges to step down at 70.

McComb has hired attorneys to fight any attempt to remove him. They could not be reached for comment.

Arnold said McComb failed to keep an appointment Sept. 20 with Weissich to answer questions under oath. Weissich's affidavit said the first date for a deposition had been July 9.

THE judge said McComb was directed to appear before him last Monday, and when he failed to appear, was ordered to meet with him Friday.

"But Justice McComb again didn't show up," Arnold said.

A source close to the case, who asked not to be identified, said McComb contended that being required to give the deposition would violate his right against self-incrimination.

Bandit trades bra for $107

GLENDALE (AP) — Police were looking Friday for a pregnant woman who robbed the Motherhood Maternity Shop on Brand Boulevard, leaving behind a size 38B bra as the only clue to her identity.

Police said that about 6 p.m. Thursday the woman entered the shop and began trying on clothes. She went to her car, ostensibly to get change, and returned with a pistol, which she pointed at the two store clerks.

She left with $107, leaving behind the bra she had removed while in a dressing room.

Sound fails again —but only for audience in hall

Combined News Services

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — The third and final presidential debate of 1976 was heard by tens of millions of people — but not the 658 who saw it live.

The sound system in the Phi Beta Kappa Theater was more suited to the intimate debates that marked the learned society's start 200 years ago than the electronics that carried the words of the contenders to a nation.

Guests in the theater at the College of William and Mary could hear only bits of the exchanges.

The situation was a new version of the miseries at the first debate in Philadelphia, when sound was cut off for 27 minutes.

The audience here saw the two men addressing one another directly for the first time in the three debates and even agreeing once.

That was when Jimmy Carter said he shared with President Ford the view that the choice of a running mate was most important.

AND, IN a debate that could have become acrimonious, Carter passed-up an opportunity to comment on whether Ford should give a more detailed explanation about whether former President Nixon's White House asked him to stop a congressional investigation of the Watergate scandal in 1972.

Ford has said it did not. When the debate was over, Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, called it "one of the more enlightening, intelligent discussions of the issues."

He said Ford was "not following the line of his paid media (advertising)" and had avoided negative and personal attacks.

Indeed, Carter pledged that in the remaining 10 days of the campaign "the American people will not see a Carter campaign based on personal attacks."

FORD, TOO, made a pledge — that "we do together what we can to stimulate voter participation."

When the 90-minute debate ended, Ford and Carter shook hands and their wives came from opposite ends of the stage to kiss them.

Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, and his wife congratulated the Fords and shook hands with Carter.

"It is very appropriate, I think, that we have this debate here to decide the leader of our nation in Williamsburg and here in a part of Virginia where our nation began," said Carter.

William and Mary is where Thomas Jefferson studied at age 16. Seventeen years later he was to write the Declaration of Independence.

The debate was held in the Phi Beta Kappa Hall commemorating the premier scholarly society, founded as a secret organization 200 years ago by William and Mary students.

IN THE first row of the balcony during the debate, presidential counselor Robert Hartmann fought drowsiness through the first hour, occasionally slumping deep in his seat, eyes closed.

Next to him, Jimmy Carter's son Jeff, holding a banana in one hand and a long-lensed camera in the other, peered intently over the railing, his face expressionless.

Only once was there a murmur, a sort of muted chuckle, when Ford, gesturing at Carter, quoted Democratic vice-presidential nominee Walter Mondale as saying that Gen. George Brown, the outspoken chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was not qualified to be "sewer commissioner."

To many who watched here, both Ford and Carter seemed more at ease than in their first two meetings, more confident in their replies to questions from the panel.

FORD, as in the previous debates, stood for the entire 90 minutes. Carter was in and out of his chair throughout the evening and often sat with his arms crossed, staring at Ford, an enigmatic smile on his face.

It was, as moderator Barbara Walters reminded the audience, a historic setting, where other great debaters had uttered words that lasted through two centuries. But this debate also was held in one of the newest structures in this lovely old colonial village, a hall that is just 19 years old.

At the beginning, the candidates showed the audience a markedly different style.

Carter strolled on to the stage first, immediately walked to the panel, shook hands and exchanged a greeting with each of his questioners.

Ford walked on 30 seconds later, waved casually to the audience and then stood stiffly behind his lectern. Only then did he nod and smile at his questioners.

TO MAKE room for the debate, the opening performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer" was postponed. Dressing rooms were redecorated in early American furniture to make the candidates comfortable before the debate.

Stagehands set up the set that had traveled to Philadelphia and San Francisco, and to Houston for the vice-presidential debate.

William and Mary is the second oldest college in the nation and like Harvard, the oldest, it boasts about the presidents who studied there.

Carter says 'lust' interview a goof

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Friday he made a mistake when he gave his controversial interview with Playboy magazine about lust, and would not do it again.

In the current issue of the magazine, the Democratic presidential nominee comments about his religion, his views on adultery and other sins, and about former Presidents Richard Nixon and Lyndon Johnson.

Since then, Carter has drawn criticism from some religious leaders for his statements about sex. He also has apologized to Lady Bird Johnson for comparing her late husband with Nixon when he said both had lied to the American people.

The President Ford Committee has used the Playboy interview in advertisements that show Ford on the cover of Newsweek magazine and the Playboy magazine with the Carter interview. The Playboy cover shows a partially clad woman. The ad invites the reader to make a decision about the candidates based on the two magazine stories.

Ford also has criticized Carter directly for giving the interview, saying he didn't think Playboy was a "proper format" for a presidential candidate to express his views. Ford said he had turned down an invitation to be interviewed by the magazine.

During the final debate Friday night between Carter and Ford, Carter said: "In retrospect, from hindsight, I would not give that interview if I had it to do over again."

Carter said, "The Playboy thing has been of very great concern to me." He added that, "I don't know how to deal with it, exactly."

He noted that many prominent Americans, including Ford's treasury secretary, William Simon, Gov. Brown and famed humanitarian Albert Schweitzer, had been interviewed by Playboy.

"But if I had to do it again, I would use another forum besides Playboy," Carter said.

Betty Ford wishes Carter luck

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford penciled a note to Jimmy Carter on Friday and left it on his rostrum in the afternoon before his arrival for the final presidential debate of the 1976 campaign.

"Dear Mr. Carter," Mrs. Ford wrote. "May I wish you the best tonight. I am sure the best man will win."

"I happen to have a favorite candidate, my husband, the President. Best of luck. Betty Ford."

When two reporters spotted the brief message, written on plain blue stationery, aides to President Ford removed it. They later said they would have it delivered to Carter prior to the debate.

Mondale says Ford ignores women's jobs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale said Friday that President Ford's administration is ignoring millions of unemployed women because it believes they are an unimportant part of the labor force.

Winding up a 10-day campaign swing through the Southwest, West and Midwest, the Democratic vice presidential nominee demanded:

Wage increases smaller; built-in adjustments up

By EDWARD COWAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department reported Friday that wage increases negotiated in major collective bargaining agreements in the first nine months of 1976 were smaller than in 1975.

The report supported the view of administration monitors that wages, although continuing to outstrip productivity and push up business costs, have not caused any acceleration in inflation this year.

The department, reporting on 624 collective bargaining settlements covering 2.7 million workers, listed the following key results:

— Wage boosts for the first year of new contracts averaged 8.9 per cent, as against 10.2 per cent for contracts signed in 1975.

— The average increase scheduled for the life of the 1976 contracts was 7 per cent as against 7.8 per cent last year.

— Contracts had an average duration of 31.3 months, as against 28.9 months for the expiring contracts. Generally, the willingness of unions to write longer contracts is regarded as a sign that inflationary psychology is easing.

In addition, a growing number of contracts had cost-of-living escalator clauses in them, clauses that are likely to fatten pay boosts above the negotiated improvements. The report said escalators were written into 41 settlements covering 233,000 workers, chiefly in rubber and apparel, and were dropped from five contracts covering 77,000 workers.

AS A result, escalator clauses now cover approximately 60 per cent of the 10 million workers in major bargaining units, the department said. The new contracts with escalator protection provided for smaller specified pay boosts — 6.7 per cent — than contracts without such clauses, 7.3 per cent. The comparable 1975 figures were higher, 7.1 and 8.3 per cent respectively.

The report was the second in two days that gave grounds for encouragement with respect to slowing inflation. The Labor Department reported Thursday that the Consumer Price Index rose by 0.4 per cent in September, a comparatively small increase.

The figures on collective bargaining were regarded as more significant because they were read as showing that this year's settlements would not by themselves cause inflation to accelerate next year.

Looking back at a heavy 1976 collective-bargaining schedule that included trucking, rubber, electrical equipment construction and autos, a deputy assistant director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, Jack Meyer, called the results "fairly neutral."

Price rises 'intolerable,' says Simon

By JANE SCHOLZ
Knight News Service

MIAMI — Despite the news that consumer prices recorded their smallest increase in seven months in September, U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Friday that prices are still rising at "intolerable" rates.

Speaking at the University of Miami, Simon moved from a discussion of consumer prices to a political attack upon the economic proposals of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, which he warned would overheat the economy and stimulate inflation.

"There is too much public emphasis on these month-to-month price statistics," Simon said. "We have to look at the long run. We know we have an inflation problem...when inflation is in the 5 to 6 per cent annual range, as the latest figures indicate, it's still intolerable."

"Two to 3 per cent annually is an acceptable level and we can reach that level, but it takes patience."

The 4 per cent September increase in the Consumer Price Index translates into an annual inflation rate of 4.9 per cent, compared with annual rates of up to 10.8 per cent corresponding to previous monthly consumer price increases this year.

Government economists have predicted that the final rate of inflation for 1976 will be in the 5 to 6 per cent range, compared to an annual inflation rate of 12.2 per cent recorded in 1974.

"We are in the midst of a balanced and healthy economic expansion," Simon said. "We have an opportunity to pursue moderate policies to reach a state of durable non-inflationary growth, but it requires patience to get back to the kind of economy we all need."

A Carter administration, he implied, wouldn't have the patience to reach that goal.

Simon described the Democratic Party platform as being full of "the most insidious suggestions I've ever heard," including mandatory national health insurance.

The Treasury secretary

blamed the "terrible effect of inflation on the excessive fiscal and monetary policies of the federal government."

Orders for durable goods down third straight month

WASHINGTON (AP) — New orders received by manufacturers of durable goods, a key indicator of consumer and business spending, declined for the third month in a row during September, the government reported Friday.

The Commerce Department said new orders slid $1.5 billion, or 3.1 per cent, to a seasonally adjusted level of $46.5 billion. That followed drops of one-tenth of 1 per cent in August and 3.6 per cent in July.

The department said most of the drop was attributable to the transportation-equipment sector, where activity was slowed by a strike against Ford Motor Co. But the department said that even excluding that sector, new orders were still off two-tenths of 1 per cent for September.

Durable goods are autos, home appliances, industrial machinery and other items with a life expectancy of three years or more. The latest report was a preliminary estimate which is subject to substantial later revision. The August decline, for example, was originally reported as 2.2 per cent.

Generally, the volume of new orders for durable goods indicate consumers' willingness to make extensive purchases. They also provide a clue as to whether business is buying the machinery and other facilities necessary to expand capacity and thus help create new jobs in the economy.

The key indicator of that business activity is the non-defense capital-goods sector. And there, the government said, new orders in September were up by $211 million, or 1.8 per cent, to $12 billion. That sector had sustained a 6.8 per cent drop in August.

Cervical cancer risk seen in second wives

NEW YORK (KNS)—A study at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health has found a higher than normal risk of cervical cancer for a woman who is married to a man whose previous wife had cancer of the cervix.

The finding opens the way to cancer prevention, by singling out a group of women who run an unusually high risk of cervical cancer.

The study was reported by Dr. Irving I. Kessler to the American Public Health Association. Kessler hypothesized that some men pick up a cancer-causing factor from their first wives and transmit it to their present wives during intercourse.

"The likeliest candidate is genital herpes virus, or HSV2," Kessler said in a report on a long-term study of 5,000 women who have had cancer of the cervix in the past 20 years.

The study found an unusually high rate of cervical cancer in the wives of men who had been married to women who developed cancer of the cervix. Such women should be singled out for regular Pap tests, Kessler said. A Pap test can detect cervical cancer in its preliminary stages, when it is completely curable, he said.

MUSKRATS DIG IN AND TOWN'S HIGH AND DRY

LOAMI, Ill. (AP) — A state of emergency was declared in this central Illinois community of 800 Friday after muskrats burrowed holes in an earth reservoir and cut the town's water supply to a trickle.

"Those darn multiplying muskrats have caused the worst thing that's ever happened to us," said Henry Brown, president of the town board. "We've closed the grade school, telling the 150 kids to stay home and help their parents conserve water."

"We've asked our people to take all their laundry to nearby towns and to take shorter showers," said Brown. "They don't have to take group showers—we don't go for that."

Brown said an emergency meeting of the board had been called to decide about having water trucked in. "That's going to be expensive," he said.

There probably are several dozen muskrat families living in holes along the bank of a creek bordering the town reservoir, said Brown. The creek is nearly dry after a long drought, and the muskrats have been boring into the embankment surrounding the reservoir. The water has been draining through the muskrat holes and fissures created by their boring, Brown said.

The reservoir is the size of a football field and usually is 15 to 18 feet deep. It usually provides up to 60,000 gallons of water daily for the community, but there is only 3 feet of water in it now.

Brown said he received a call from the town water-processing plant Thursday that the water level was sinking below the intake pipes leading to it from the reservoir.

"We've shot the muskrats with pellet guns, and kids have trapped them, but we can't keep up with their multiplying," said Brown. "They dig down 16 to 18 feet to raise their young. And those holes were under part of the dirt bank. We can't get to it with heavy machinery. We're going to have to bypass the reservoir and try to pipe in water from somewhere else, and then maybe we can get at those muskrats, but it's going to cost us about $120,000."

A muskrat is an aquatic rodent about the size of a kitten with brown, glossy hair and a long, scaly tail. Brown said:

"They aren't pretty things. We never thought they would cause us all this trouble. But this town is not going to be licked by a pack of rats; I can tell you that."

DEBATE

lic Broadcasting System, said 40 per cent thought Carter had won the debate, while 29 per cent judged Ford the victor. The rest called it a draw or said they had no opinion.

That compared with surveys that had rated Ford the winner of the first debate, Carter of the second.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, said the debates did wonders for his candidate. "The American people learned a lot about Jimmy Carter, and that's a big plus," he said.

James Baker, Ford's manager, said the debate "was clearly a win" for the President. So did Republican vice-presidential nominee Robert J. Dole.

"THIS WAS the payoff. This was the big banana," said Dole.

Ford carried only a few minutes as he left the debate hall to say: "It went very well. I'm optimistic. I enjoyed it."

Unlike the President, Carter shook hands with dozens of persons as he left. "I want to congratulate all of you for still being awake," he told them, adding that he realized "some of the issues are very boring."

Jimmy Carter commenting on the polls: "They vary widely and the only poll I've ever followed is the one that's taken on election day... I campaign among people... I don't know how to explain the fluctuations..."

He said no one knew how the remaining days of the campaign would affect the election. "It has been a very wonderful experience," Carter said. "I've aged a lot in the last two years, but I'm looking forward to the next four."

Much of the material in the debate was familiar. But the confrontation covered some points that had not come up in the first two — items like abortion, gun control, civil rights, Carter's interview with Playboy magazine and the level of the campaign itself.

THE ECONOMIC litanies were familiar. Carter assailing the administration, declaring that he would give top priority to jobs for the unemployed. But even as he promised to deal with the problems of the cities, housing and national health insurance, the Democrat offered a word of caution. He said in his summation that it might be necessary to proceed slowly in dealing with some current problems.

For his part, Ford said: "I don't think America can go on a big spending spree with a whole lot of new programs that would add significantly to the federal budget."

The economy produced Carter's most pointed comments, after Ford said his record was solid despite a pause in the recovery from recession. The President said employment was up, inflation was down, consumer confidence was high and "the United States is leading the free world out of a recession that was serious a year, year and a half ago."

Carter replied: "With all due respect to President Ford, I think he ought to be ashamed of making that statement." The Democratic candidate said times were not good when 7½ million persons were out of work. "Anybody who says that the inflation rate is in good shape now ought to talk to the housewife," Carter added.

Among the new items on the debaters' agenda were these:

—Campaign: The candidates were asked whether a low-road campaign was turning off voters. Carter acknowledged "I've made some mistakes" during the race for the White House. He said his interview with Playboy, which included comments on lust and adultery in explicit language, was one of them. "In retrospect, from hindsight, I would not have given that interview if I had it to do over again," he said.

On the broader question, Carter said that unlike Ford's campaign, his would not include advertisements based on personal attacks on the character of his rival.

Ford said candidates inevitably used "rather graphic language, and I'm guilty of that..." He said he would campaign during the next 10 days so as to stimulate voter participation in the Nov. 2 election.

—Abortion: Ford repeated his support for a constitutional amendment that would give the states authority to ban abortions. He said he also favored a constitutional amendment permitting voluntary prayer in public schools.

Carter said he opposed any amendment of the Constitution to deal with transient problems and therefore did not favor an antiabortion amendment although "I'm strongly against abortion."

—Gun control: Carter said he favored handgun registration to prohibit ownership by convicted criminals or persons proven incompetent to own a gun. He said those should be the only purposes and handguns the only weapons covered.

Ford said registration had not been a successful deterrent to crime. He their families following their last debate Friday night in Williamsburg, Va. —AP said he opposed it and favored legislation to make sure that people who used guns in committing crimes went to jail. He noted that the administration did advocate a ban on small, cheap handguns called Saturday night specials.

—Supreme Court: Carter said he approved of action by the Supreme Court to modify past decisions on the rights of the accused so as to clarify technicalities and prevent the forced release of obviously guilty persons.

Ford said he was glad that the court was modifying the decade-old Miranda decision which requires police to warn arrested persons of their rights to remain silent and to have the services of an attorney. He said that decision made it difficult for police and law enforcement agencies to make sure criminals are "properly handled and sent to jail."

—Civil rights: Ford said he was proud of the administration's record in President Ford, taking a shot at Jimmy Carter's vice-presidential selection, declared he was "very, very surprised" when he read Walter Mondale's statement that Gen. George Brown "was not qualified to be a sewer commissioner" because of Brown's recent comments on Israel.

providing opportunities and promoting equality for blacks and other minorities. "I believe on the record that this administration has been responsive and we've carried out the law to the letter..." he said.

"The description just made of this administration's record is hard to recognize," Carter countered. He said government programs have been inefficient and—in some cases, including housing—corrupt, leading to despair and a lack of hope among minorities.

"It doesn't require a dormant, minimum enforcement of the law," he said. Carter said the government must aggressively seek out and deal with inequities.

—Vice presidents: Carter said he never heard Ford claim that the prime consideration in the nomination of Dole was his ability to serve as President.

Ford said if that was so, Carter hadn't been listening. Then he criticized Sen. Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, for saying that Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, wasn't fit to be a sewer commissioner. Ford repeated his defense of Brown in the face of controversy over the general's statement that Israel has been a military burden and said he was surprised at Mondale.

He said the Mondale comment was not the proper way to describe an "outstanding and heroic leader" like Brown. "I think Sen. Dole would show more good judgment," Ford said.

Ford, who had said before the debate that he thought he could pull the "political surprise of the century" by winning the election, could hardly wait to get his turn at a question that was put to Carter: Why has the Democrat's once-wide lead in the public opinion polls slipped to a narrow margin now?

CARTER SAID the only poll he followed was the one on election day, and "I think that we'll have good results..."

Ford said, "I think the increase in the prospects as far as I'm concerned and the less favorable prospects for Gov. Carter reflect that Gov. Carter is inconsistent in many of the positions that he takes of low unemployment in the 1950s without mentioning that the Korean War was a factor in that picture. Carter glared, arms folded, as Ford said:

"This administration doesn't believe the way to reduce unemployment is to go to war or to increase the number of people in the military."

The questions were put by a panel of newsmen, including Jack Nelson, Washington bureau chief of the Los Angeles Times; Robert Maynard of the

Ford signs bill to speed up flow of gas from Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford cleared up the last of the bills awaiting his action Friday, and among those signed was a bill to speed up the flow of natural gas from Alaska reserves.

He also approved an act setting down detailed policy guidelines for management of the national forest system and an amendment to food stamp legislation to give the states flexibility in the management of these programs. That bill also contains a guarantee of annual cost-of-living increases in supplemental security income benefits to the aged, blind and disabled.

Ford affixed his 66th veto to a bill aimed at clarifying the legal instruments through which the federal government acquires property and services and furnishes aid to local governments.

ANOTHER measure that Ford signed was the Water Resources Development Act, authorizing the construction, repair and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control and other purposes.

Ford said the passage of the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act should speed the flow of Alaska reserves to consumers in the lower 48 mainland states.

In Los Angeles, Harry Lepape, president of Pacific Lighting Gas Development Co., said his firm was "extraordinarily pleased" that Ford signed the controversial bill, SB 3521.

"It is particularly important to California's 20 million natural gas consumers," he said, explaining that a key amendment to the bill "will lower future gas costs to California consumers."

THE amendment, briefly opposed by Federal Energy Administration Director Frank Zarb, mandates that whichever of three competing pipelines is built in 1978, it will include a direct "Western Leg" to the Pacific states in addition to the main trunk line to the Midwest.

Lepape said government figures who helped assure passage of the bill, Gov. Brown, State Energy Director Richard Maullin and the Public Utilities Commission, all of whom urged Ford to sign the measure.

The White House announced earlier his approval of a bill setting up new federal controls over the scandal-plagued system for inspecting grain export shipments.

ing to repair cargo-door defects, and the door subcontractor agreed a year later to pay more than $100 million in death settlements to victims' families.

IN addition to the $25 million judgment asked against the Times, McDonnell Douglas also sought "a full and complete retraction with the same prominence and distribution as the book review," according to Ray Deffrey, a company executive.

Deffrey said Friday evening in St. Louis that the review's circulation exceeded 1.4 million and that such distribution "has caused us to be held up to public hatred, scorn and ridicule."

"Sherrill's review is perjorative, inflammatory and unsupported by the content of the books," Deffrey added.

THE book review by Sherrill was of two recent publications, "Destination Disaster," by London Sunday Times writers Paul Eddy, Elaine Potter and Bruce Page; and "The Last Nine Minutes," by freelance writer Moira Johnston.

James McDonnell,

chairman of the firm, singled out "Destination Disaster" for particular attention in the libel action.

"(It) particularly contains serious errors and makes hostile, unjustified accusations against the American air transport industry, our company and our executives and products," he said.

"This book not only does a serious disservice to our company but to the great creative industry of which we have long been an important part and to the public interest as well."

He said the Times review "went even further and falsely accuses us of things so outrageous and damaging that it constitutes, we believe, a clear case of libel."

NEITHER McDonnell nor Deffrey would specify what they found offensive or libelous in the 2,000-word Sherrill review, except that it alleged "dishonest and improper practices and mismanagement."

James Cooke, company spokesman in Los Angeles, said Friday all he knew of the suit was what was contained in a company press release.

In his review, which was included in the complaint, Sherrill said the firm sought "higher profits over safer equipment" and was allowed to do so by a "lethargic and politically motivated" Federal Aviation Agency.

At one point, Sherrill himself wrote: "McDonnell Douglas, builder of the DC10, knew that the door was defective and would likely blow out some day."

Sherrill claims that General Dynamics Convair, which built the door, and the FAA, which certified it, also "knew it..." and let the door go, anyway.

HE GOES on to say that McDonnell Douglas had "proof" that the door was unsafe two years before but failed to act.

Toward the end of the review, Sherrill writes:

"One of the most repulsive aspects of the whole affair was that McDonnell Douglas had sought out the Turks and had pushed the DC10s at a price they couldn't refuse. Judging from the (London) Times' description of how the Turks operated big jets — some of the juiciest black humor you'll ever encounter — putting such a sophisticated plane in their hands was like selling a hair-trigger Colt .45 to a hopped-up teen-ager. But to Douglas, a sale was a sale."

Medieval upheaval beats evil at LBSU

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Knights jousted on the campus green.

Merlin the Magician transmuted base metals to precious metals.

College officials were arrested and thrown in a dungeon. Some hapless students wound up in stocks to be publicly ridiculed.

IT HAPPENED Friday when Long Beach State University slipped back several centuries to the Middle Ages to celebrate its first Medieval Festival.

The university's biggest fall-semester event drew thousands of students and visitors.

Campus groups put up booths in the grassy area south of the Student Union.

The booths offered medieval services ranging from numerology readings to imprisoning wrongdoers, scoundrels and pirates for their evil deeds. (But evildoers could buy their way out of the dungeon. They had their choice of 30 cents or 30 minutes).

Merlin the Magician was Dr. Darwin L. Mayfield, university director of research, who transmuted an iron nail into copper and performed a modified version of the old Hindu rope trick.

In the Middle Ages, before psychology was invented, magic potions and elixirs were needed to get what you wanted, Mayfield explained.

"Anything that would explain the unexplainable was acceptable," he said.

The morality play "Vanity Fair" was enacted on the Village Stage, in which Faithful—a born-again Christian—is branded a heretic and condemned to death by a jury that included Evil, Flattery, Envy, Superstition and a bevy of other disagreeable characters.

BUT FAITHFUL got his reward after death by being whisked away to the heavenly gates in a makeshift paper chariot.

Singers wandered around the campus, performing romantic French songs and Gregorian chants.

For the sports-minded, there were jousts, pugil fights and fencing.

The day was ended by a medieval banquet in the University Union.

City manager decision today

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The Long Beach City Council, sharply divided and facing one of its most crucial decisions of the decade, goes into extraordinary secret session today to choose a new city manager.

With five finalists from outside the city scheduled to undergo extensive questioning by the panel, the meeting is expected to run from 8 a.m. into the afternoon and possibly the evening.

BECAUSE it is a personnel meeting, it will be closed to the press and public, according to Mayor Tom Clark and City Atty. Leonard Putnam.

City officials appear to have gone to unusual lengths to assure the legality of the closed-door session.

Although the state's anti-secrecy law, the Brown Act, allows municipal bodies to consider city-manager appointments in special executive sessions, the Long Beach Municipal Code "makes no specific provision" for such sessions, Putnam said.

For that reason, Clark will call the meeting to order as an open session of the council. Then he'll entertain a motion to recess—after which, if the motion passes, the body will meet in secret to interview and discuss the respective candidates.

WITH THE council split over the candidacy of Acting City Manager Robert Creighton, whose virtual elimination from the race was disclosed last week, the panel could find itself in its first showdown of the day, with some members insisting that the meeting remain open.

Creighton, who has been holding down both the manager's job and his own job of assistant manager for the past four months, was interviewed at length by a recruiting firm hired to search for a new manager.

BUT HIS name is not among the five finalists. And it's that fact that has angered a number of council members—especially Wes Carroll Jr.

Carroll believes that Creighton not only has done an outstanding job in the past four months but is prime managerial timber.

Thus Creighton's name is not only expected to surface during the council's deliberations but could become the focal point of a bitter struggle on the panel.

Five council members—Clark, James Wilson, Renee Simon, Ernie Kell and Wallace Edgerton—have made it clear that they intend to respect the recruiting firm's early screening.

BUT CARROLL has indicated that he intends to challenge the firm's judgment.

He appears to have the support of the other three other members—Don Phillips, Russell Rubley and Eunice Sato.

In the meantime, all of the council members have studiously avoided mention of the five finalists, whose names and backgrounds were given to them Thursday and Friday.

(Most or all of the finalists are understood to be from California cities.)

Observers agreed that the council's choice will have a crucial bearing on the city's future.

AT FEW times in its history has the city faced so many critical decisions or experienced the shame of so many public probes into its municipal integrity.

Lakewood's mayor gets first aide ever

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

Lakewood Mayor Jo Bennett has hired a part-time administrative assistant, marking the first time in the city's history an occupant of the office has had the assistance of a personal aide to help with city business.

Although the five-member Lakewood City Council has a full-time secretary, Mrs. Bennett said she believes city funding of aides for all council members "is perfectly possible" in the future.

"IF THE mayor's job were going to be done the way it should be done, it would be full-time," said Mrs. Bennett. The next best thing, she explained, is a personal staff assistant. "I believe in this concept and I need the help."

The aide is Thomas Silas, 25, a master's degree candidate in public administration at Long Beach State University.

Mrs. Bennett is using her own city council salary—$405 a month—to pay Silas about $4 an hour. He works an average of 10 hours a week and is receiving class credit.

"I'M VERY anxious to promote the aide idea to the council," Mrs. Bennett added. But, so far, she said, the council "is not in favor of it." Council members have told her they "fear the aides would be used politically."

But she said she didn't see "what difference that would make if each member had an aide."

Mrs. Bennett said if aides were hired for the entire council, one city department head has said he is worried that "an adversary role could develop between city employees and aides" resulting in the council assistants "accusing the staff of not doing their job."

Now the city administrator has the total resources of the city hall staff and because council members have no personal staff assistance, they must rely on the administrator's input.

WITH their own aides to conduct research, she said, council members could make better decisions.

During his first month on the job, Silas has attended the council meetings and started to work on studying various ordinances that Mrs. Bennett may ask the council to adopt.

He is researching pros and cons of regulating news rack locations, restricting ham radio operators and figuring out ways to give senior citizens discounts on utility bills.

BEFORE coming to Lakewood, Silas admits he "didn't know much" about the 84,000-resident city except that it has "a large shopping center."

Learning about the city's council-administrator form of government "has been a rewarding experience for me," he asserted.

Stovall named to head police investigations

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Long Beach police Capt. William F. Stovall Jr. Friday was appointed deputy chief in charge of investigative operations by Chief Ralph G. Kortz.

Stovall, promoted to captain just 11 months ago, is commander of the vice division and will take over his new post Nov. 1, according to Kortz.

Kortz, after a 90-minute meeting with Acting City Manager Robert Creighton, said, "Capt. Stovall is the best qualified man of the top four candidates because of his experience, training and character."

"The city manager supports my decision," he added.

The other finalists were Capt. Charles Clark, personnel division commander; Lt. Jerome Lance, planning division head; and Capt. Charles Ussery, night patrol commander.

L.B. flu shot clinics listed

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A complete list of Long Beach clinics for influenza inoculations was announced Friday by Dr. Elton F. Blum, city health officer.

All clinics will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The vaccine to be given will protect against two forms of influenza—the A-New Jersey (swine flu) and the A-Victoria, a type already prevalent in many areas of the world.

Long Beach clinics, their addresses and dates they will be open follow:

Veterans Memorial Auditorium, Cedar Avenue and Broadway, Monday and Wednesday.

Bayshore Community Church, 5100 The Toledo, Monday and Friday.

Escuela de la Raza, 2600 E. Seventh St., Monday and Wednesday.

Houghton Park, 6301 Myrtle Ave., Monday and Wednesday.

Los Altos Library, 3614 Britton Drive, Wednesday.

Westside Facility Center, 2125 Santa Fe Ave., Wednesday and Friday.

California Recreation Center, 1550 California Ave., Thursday.

Senior Citizen Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd., Friday.

St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, 6201 E. Willow St., Friday.

Vaccine will be given to persons 60 years old and older and chronically ill persons over three years old.

Persons aged 3 to 18 will require two injections four weeks apart. Two doses of vaccine are needed in this age group to induce proper protection against influenza.

Orange County Health officials have announced the following clinics:

Orange County Health Department, 645 N. Ross St., Santa Ana, 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. daily except Tuesday, when the hours are 1-7 p.m.

Orange County Health Department Annex, 1011 S. East St., Anaheim, Fridays only from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m.

Huntington Beach Recreation Center, 1706 Orange St., Huntington Beach, Monday (Oct. 25), 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Los Alamitos Community Center, 10911 Oak St., Los Alamitos, Thursday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Buena Park Recreation Center, 8150 Knott Ave., Buena Park, Nov. 11, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Senior Citizens Club, 340 W. Commonwealth Ave., Fullerton, Nov. 4, 10 a.m. to noon.

Orangefair Mall, Harbor Boulevard at Orangefair Avenue, Fullerton, Friday (Oct. 29), 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

H. Louis Lake Citizens Center,

11300 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove, Nov. 6 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Nov. 10 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Nov. 11 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Assistance League Clubhouse, 10932 Trask Ave., Garden Grove, Nov. 17, Nov. 18 and Nov. 19, 9 a.m. to noon all three days.

Meanwhile, in Long Beach, Dr. Blum announced a clinic schedule for individuals 18 years and older for a vaccine that protects against the swine flu only.

All swine-flu clinics will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Locations and dates:

Dates are Oct. 30 and 31, Nov. 6 and 7 and Nov. 13 and 14.

Jefferson Junior High, 750 Euclid Ave.; Lindbergh Junior High, 1022 E. Market St.; Stanford Junior High, 5871 Los Arcos; Stephens Junior High, 1830 W. Columbia St.; and Washington Junior High, 1450 Cedar Ave.

Tax plan urged to fund welfare

Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward Friday proposed a detailed program to finance all health, education and welfare programs in the state.

Ward's seven-point program, presented to a joint Assembly and Senate tax reform committee meeting in Long Beach, calls for a statewide property tax.

Although he called the proposed tax a "State Resources Tax," under questioning from Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, and Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, he admitted it was an "essentially statewide property tax."

Ward also proposed establishment of two assessment rates for all property. Owner-occupied property would be taxed at 15 per cent of its fair market value and all other property at 30 per cent of the fair market value.

He indicated he believed this change would bring in the same amount of money as the present system but would not work the hardship on the homeowner that the present system does.

He also proposed limitations of one per cent on owner-occupied dwellings and 2 per cent on all other property and emphasized that all money from the state sales tax should be used exclusively for education.

His final proposals were for revision of personal income tax laws to eliminate all exemptions except medical expenses, cash charity donations and taxes and interest on owner's homes and similar revisions in the business tax laws.

Ward was one of a score of persons to appear before the committee.

Most of the others called for drastic reform in taxing and assessment procedures with particular emphasis on making them standard throughout the state.

Tree-planting slated at hospital

The public is invited to attend a Bicentennial tree-planting ceremony Monday as part of the Veteran's Day program at the Long Beach Veteran's Hospital.

The program begins at 10:30 a.m. and, according to hospital Director E. J. Klag, will pay tribute to the 290 living honorees who earned the Medal of Honor for personal valor in combat.

Featured speakers will be Don Gary, president of the National Medal of Honor Society, and Klag. Admission and parking are free.

The ceremony will be held in front of the hospital at 5901 E.

Seventh St. Spectators are asked to use the East Seventh Street entrance to the hospital grounds.

Monday is a federal holiday and all federal offices will be closed. City and county offices, banks and businesses will, however, be open. They will celebrate Veteran's Day on Nov. 11.

Besides working part-time for the mayor, Silas is a full-time staff member at an alcohol detoxification and rehabilitation center operated by the Volunteers of America on Los Angeles' Skid Row.

"The two jobs are really different," he said in an understatement.

LBSU professor Dr. Dan Barber arranged for Silas to take the Lakewood job as part of the school's intern program in the Center for Public Policy and Administration. Silas, who received a bachelors degree in sociology two years ago at LBSU, said he eventually hopes to earn a doctorate and enter college teaching.

"AFTER several months, I plan to put together a report about the benefits of my administrative assistant," Mrs. Bennett said. "I strongly believe that city councils have an obligation to assist in the training of young people in government, if we want good government."

Silas says after his semester internship is finished he is hoping to continue on a part-time basis. "I really like this job," he said, adding, "there's really a lot of things to know."

Admission to the program is free. However, reservations should be made by calling the college because of limited seating.

The planetarium at El Camino College will present "The Legacy," the story of the significance of the space-exploration program in man's life, Nov. 4 and 18 at 8 p.m.

The special educational showing by planetarium manager Jim Lund will include a special tribute to American astronauts and

Richard Nevins, a member of the State Board of Equalization, made a short presentation in which he called for assessing property at 100 per cent of its market value rather than the present 25 per cent.

"Requiring a taxpayer to multiply assessed values by four and dividing tax rates by four to determine his real tax costs are ridiculous extra steps," he said. "All the process does is confuse the taxpayer."

Sherry Passmore, representing the Citizens

Coalition on Redevelopment Abuse, made a plea for either the state to pay the costs of redevelopment or to require that local redevelopment projects be decided by referendum.

"We the taxpayers are tired of seeing our school tax dollars go toward redevelopment," she said.

She further charged that Orange County lost $132 million in taxes to the various redevelopment agencies.

The Assembly Revenue and Taxation Committee and the Senate Subcommittee on Taxation concluded a two-day hearing in the board room of the Long Beach Harbor Department Wednesday as part of a statewide information-gathering program.

The joint committee, which previously met in Indio and Ontario, will conclude the program with a final meeting Nov. 4 in San Francisco.

At the end of the hearing, Assemblyman Cullen assured members of the audience that all the information received would be carefully evaluated in considering legislation at the next session of the Legislature.

Carroll in new blast at Prop. X

Councilman Wes Carroll Jr. has rejoined the fray over district elections in Long Beach, calling the proposed election procedure — which will be on the November ballot as Proposition X — "the biggest sham ever pulled on the Long Beach voter."

Carroll, one of the more vocal opponents of district elections, took a fresh blast at Proposition X in a statement issued Friday.

In an apparent attempt to offset the effect of Mayor Tom Clark's announced support of the measure, Carroll warned that district elections would destroy a councilman's accountability to the citizenry at large.

By being responsible only to the voters in his own district, Carroll said, a councilman "would not have to care about the entire city and could ignore the impact (of projects he voted for) on citizens who live in other councilmanic districts."

He said district elections, moreover, would make individual councilmen unusually susceptible to the pressures of small special-interest groups in their respective districts.

Investigative head named

Seventeen candidates took a written examination in August, and 10 were allowed to take an oral exam earlier this month.

The consultant who ran the exam then passed four names on to Kortz on Thursday.

Stovall, who has a master's degree in public administration from USC and recently graduated from the FBI's law enforcement academy, finished among the top four contenders for the assistant chief's job, now held by Carl Calkins.

Calkins was appointed in June.
"I'm pleasantly surprised," Stovall said when he came out of Kortz' office after learning he had been appointed. "I just told the chief I'll do the best job I can."

Stovall, 43, is married and has four grown children. He joined the department in 1957, became a sergeant in 1964 and a lieutenant in 1968. His father was an LBPD lieutenant, chief of Signal Hill police and a Signal Hill city council member.

Kortz announced a shift in deputy chiefs as Stovall was appointed. Deputy Chief Robert V. Hill will go from investigative operations (detectives) to administration.

Stovall will take Hill's spot and Deputy Chief Maurice Z. Wishon will re-

Convicted of murder

Dennis Maloney, 32, of Newport Beach, was convicted of murder in Santa Ana Friday in the death of Janet Metz, 34, who was machine-gunned to death in a narcotics-related shooting last year in Sunset Beach.

Ms. Metz and Ronald Cauwels, 27, with whom she lived in a Sunset Beach cottage, were both killed when Maloney and a friend, Thomas Harden Hester, 29, Long Beach, barged into the dwelling

Nov. 8, armed with a rifle and a machine gun.

They demanded $20,000 that Cauwels allegedly owed Hester for "skipping" with 174 pounds of marijuana, police said.

Hester was convicted of murder in Cauwels' death in August.

The verdict against Maloney was returned in Superior court by a jury of nine women and three men. He will be sentenced Nov. 10.

When John Mansell gave up the manager's post last June, city government in Long Beach was under a cloud of suspicion, with grand juries and other public agencies looking into alleged civic corruption.

In the meantime, public faith in city government was ebbing, and city officials were desperately trying to save the Queen Mary from financial disaster.

MORE recently, the city has been warned that it faces a fiscal crisis in the immediate years ahead.

When a new city manager takes over, then, his work will be cut out for him.

What's more, he'll have a City Council that is far more independent of the manager's office than its predecessors, a mayor who is investing his office with new authority and a citizenry that is unprecedentedly skeptical of municipal and other forms of government.

Stereo stolen

Peter J. Schwartz of 1738 E. Fourth St. told Long Beach police Friday that burglars who entered his apartment through an unlocked bedroom window took stereo equipment valued at $234.51.

There will be orchids on display by the members plus a plant table and refreshments.

Garden Club

Members of the Long Beach Garden Club, Inc. will go to the Los Angeles County Arboretum and San Gabriel Valley Garden and Horticultural Society Rose Show by bus on Saturday, Nov. 6.

The bus will leave the parking lot behind the Glendale Federal Savings building and Bob's Big Boy, Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns, at 9 a.m. and return at 5 p.m.

Cost for the trip is $5 and everyone is asked to bring a picnic lunch. Reservations may be obtained through Cella McClish or Anne Cook, club members.

Garden Club

The Lakewood Garden Club will hold its annual Fall luncheon on Thursday at the Lakewood Youth Center, Woodruff Avenue and Arbor Road, Lakewood.

Sandy of Village Flowers of Seaport Village and Westminster Mall, will present a program on natural dried flower arrangements.

A boutique table of articles for holiday gift-giving including candy, jams, baked goods and plants will be open to all at 11:30 a.m. followed by the lunch.

Gardeners checklist

1. When Dahlias bloom themselves out, let the tops yellow off, then cut the stalk within a few inches of the ground. Let this dry out, lift a clump of tubers, wash them and let them dry before storing in a dry place for the winter. Wait until next spring before trying to separate the tubers in a clump.

2. Dormant spraying is especially effective now that pests are inactive and more easy to eliminate.

3. Pruning time is here. Get detailed instructions from your local nursery. Following your pruning, give your whole garden a thorough clean-up spray.

4. Azaleas and Rhododendrons will soon be available in local nurseries. They make lovely Christmas gift plants.

The dramatic tall flower stalk agave

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Some plants we see a second time remind us of the first time we saw it. It was Agave attenuata in bloom in a succulent-cacti garden on the dry side of the big island in Hawaii some years ago. The flower spike curved in a wide arc hanging downward.

The latter one we saw was in Santa Barbara a few years later, growing at one end of a planter box in front of a business store window. The four-inch diameter flowering stalk rose 12-feet, gradually tapering to a point.

The dramatically handsome stalk was covered with small bracts, the flowers a whitish gray-green. An unusual spike grew from the center of the rosette of wide leaves, abruptly pointed at the ends.

Gardeners can grow such plants in a succulent-cacti garden or as specimen plants in containers, but you must wait at least five years before the plants burgeon forth with those handsome flower stalks. The plants provide attractive foliage during that waiting period and are welcome container or garden plants.

Speaking of container plants, I'd like to share an experience I had Sept. 13.

No doubt you'll remember for sometime the exceptional rainy weather we had Sept. 10-11. We put out indoor house plants out in the rain for nearly a whole day. On Sept. 13, I borrowed three plants from a nursery to show at a lecture in Downey.

Borrowed plants are always checked for sufficient moisture before they are taken to a lecture to be displayed, but particularly to show them when explaining their special features and their culture care.

The plants were individually dunked in a bucket of water. Many bubbles surfaced to the top. All three plants bubbled like mad. They were taken out of the water when the bubbling stopped.

Here's the important fact to remember — all three of those container plants had been setting on pea gravel in the nursery, out in the rain all of the time.

Yet, the second day (Sept. 13), after the rains, the soil was not completely saturated.

This means some container plants may still need more water than what those rainy days provided. If these plants had been setting in saucers, they may have gotten enough water.

Azaleas and rhododendrons are two desirable shrubs that particularly and critically need to be watered thoroughly. Gardeners who planned to water them but didn't because the fortunate rains came, may be in for a sad surprise.

Chances are those plants just didn't get enough deep watering from those rains. Check those plants for moisture content. An electronic moisture meter is a handy instrument to jab into the root ball to see if there is sufficient moisture in the root zone area.

Lack of sufficient water causes the root balls to gradually dry back into the center, and the plants die.

It's been a good life!

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Staff Writer

"You're darn tootin' it's been a good life!"

Retired Episcopal priest Robert E. Juergens paused briefly to vigorously puff new life into his pipe.

Today in retirement a vigorous 80, he had told of serving as chaplain of the Arthur Peterson American Legion post here and the Legion's 19th district while regularly "supplying," or substituting, for ill or vacationing Episcopal ministers across the Southland.

His long and active life began in suburban Chicago before the turn of this century, he said. It was highlighted early on by finding a church — and a girl — he loved. Then came World War I navy service, long years "on the road" as a travelling salesman, World War II civilian service.

And at 51 the realization of a long-held dream — ordination to the ministry.

Now Fr. Juergens beamed beatifically through ascending smoke rings. "I've thoroughly enjoyed life."

And the girl I married — in 1918 — is a wonderful girl!"

HE PULLED from his clerical black suit coat a stiffly formal card embossed with the White House Great Seal. "Got these congratulations from Mr. Ford on our 58th wedding anniversary last June. I'm on the Ford committee here in Long Beach, you know."

A lifelong Republican, "As my father was before me," Fr. Juergens was interviewed this week while he was hiking the downtown campaign trail here, passing out pamphlets extolling the Ford-Dole ticket.

Undaunted by the acting church editor's inability to reprint his political literature in these columns, Juergens was willing to recall some of the highlights in an eventful life he still is living to the hilt.

Born in River Forest, Ill., raised there and in adjoining Oak

Park, Juergens attended Oak Park High School, where in the course of a few years he would be followed by an aspiring young writer named Ernest Hemingway.

While a student there in 1910, fate dealt him a pair of winning cards. "Sitting across from me in English was this pretty girl, Alice Nuthur," he recalled.

AND, SECONDLY, "I had been raised in a church I didn't care for. When Alice took me to Easter morning Episcopal services in 1910, I found myself in the right church. Been there ever since."

He attended the University of Illinois and Northwestern University before enlisting in 1918. The young couple were married in 1918 while he was in navy "boot camp" at Great Lakes, Ill.

Still very happily wed, they are the parents of six, the grandparents and great-grandparents "of quite a flock."

Discharged in 1919 following service at a naval testing station near Washington, D.C., he returned to Oak Park, helped organize an American Legion post and began a 20-year stint as his church's Sunday School superintendent.

He was "immediately challenged" by the parish priest, Fr. Harold Holt, to enter an active ministry. In those years, extensive study under the tutelage of a priest and successful completion of an examination might substitute for seminary graduation.

IN THE 1920s, the Oak Park-based travelling salesman carried a line of wire boxes through a territory extending from the Atlantic seaboard to the Mississippi River; the Mason-Dixon line north to Canada. While plugging away at theological studies under Holt's direction.

During the Depression '30s, Juergens turned to construction work to support a growing family — while intensifying the academic activities and continuing as church school superintendent.

FR. JUERGENS

On Pearl Harbor Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, when America plunged into World War II, "I was 45 and too old for a uniform." But there was civilian service available for a man interested in electronics. He trained as a radar technician and finished the war at Norton AAFB, near San Bernardino.

Transferring his papers from Chicago to the Diocese of Los Angeles, Juergens took the qualifying ministerial examination — with a satisfyingly high mark — and was ordained deacon in 1950.

HE WAS PRIESTED in 1951 at Needles, served parishes there, and in 17 years at Lancaster, Barstow, Porterville, Walnut Creek, California, Gila Bend and Clarksdale, Ariz. Following a 1968 retirement, the Juergens moved to Long Beach.

STILL ACTIVE in Legion affairs, he is — in addition to assignments mentioned earlier — a former state department chaplain. As a regular, a Long Beach minister quipped that Juergens was "the bishop of California Legiondom."

Fr. Juergens is noticeably reticent in discussing two subjects today of burning concern in his denomination. He insists, however, "the church will survive" — the ordination of women and drastic revisions in the revered 1928 Book of Common Prayer.

He hews to a male priesthood since "That is the Apostolic way." And "My personal preference is for the old book."

But in any case, "I will do what the Lord tells me."

Healing meet From hair to eternity set in O.C.

One of the first Roman Catholic priests involved in Charismatic renewal healing will be featured this week at an Orange County conference of the interdenominational Order of St. Luke the Physician.

He is Father Francis MacNutt, O.P., director of St. Louis' Merton House, a center dedicated to prayer for reconciliation and healing. He has been active in the healing ministry throughout the U.S. and South America.

Protestant and Catholic participants are scheduled to appear during the Monday-through-Thursday national and regional OSL conference in the Registry Hotel at Orange County.

U.S. Church Perspectives

At Bennett's barber shop in San Bernardino, getting a haircut also means hearing some Bible readings, a hymn or a prayer from the pastor-barbers.

"We feel we have a unique and very important ministry here," says the shop's operator, Pastor Cyrus Alvah Bennett of the Church of the Gospel Ministry.

"Many of our customers never darken the doors of a church. We are able to bring the Lord to them as we cut their hair."

Brown comment hit

By GEORGE CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — It's the second time that Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, has riled American Jews. This time, his comments were in the realm of military opinion. Before, they were, from the facts available, objectively mistaken.

His latest comment that Israel is a military burden to the U.S. was sharply denounced this week by the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, an umbrella group of 32 national religious and secular Jewish bodies.

It urged President Ford to censure Brown, calling his statement a "reckless and irresponsible" challenge to American foreign policy and its commitment to the security and survival of Israel.

Brown, at a Washington news conference held as a result of the furor, said he was "wholeheartedly" committed to protecting Israel's security. But he insisted that his point — that Israel was a burden — was correct from a narrowly military view, in that Israel draws on U.S. equipment.

His reasoning, however, was sharply disputed in the Jewish reaction. Rabbi Walter Wurzburger, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, said Brown's statement "betrays dismal insensitivity to the vital security interests" of the United States itself.

THIS IS especially so, he added, "in the light of the broad consensus of American people that a strong Israel represents an important bastion for defense of democracy and the Free World, and, therefore, is indispensable to the strategic interests of the nation."

"We are particularly disturbed that the perceptions of the individual charged with the implementation of the national defense policy vary so radically from the elected commander-in-chief, the President of the United States. Such dichotomy imperils our very security."

Rabbi Wurzburger, like others, added that it was "not the first time Gen. Brown has been guilty of such misstatements."

The reference was to a 1974 speech by Brown at Duke University in which he said Jews own the banks and the newspaper in this country — remarks for which he later apologized after Ford reprimanded him.

At that time, numerous Jewish leaders called for Brown's removal.

Various studies have found false the claim that Jews dominate American banking or newspapers. But the notion has persisted since the Middle Ages when Jews were smalltime money lenders, drawn into it as necessary economic middlemen at a time when the church forbade Christians to lend money for interest.

PORTRAYAL OF Jews as controllers of money became part of anti-Semitic propaganda, reaching its virulent heights in Nazi Germany.

However, a survey made by the American Jewish Committee in 1973 of 25 of the nation's largest banks outside New York City showed that of 377 senior managers, one was Jewish. Of 3,027 persons in middle management, 38 were Jewish.

In heavily Jewish New York City, the same pattern prevailed. A 1967 study of New York banking executives found that only 4.4 per cent were Jewish, although about half of the city's college graduates — the pool from which banks normally would draw top employees — are Jewish.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish service organization, found in a 1961 study of the eight largest New York City banks and of 844 officers with the rank of vice president or above that 30 were Jewish. Of 197 members of the banks' board of directors, only three were Jewish.

As for newspapers, a book-length study by a Washington Post staff member, Stephen Isaacs, found that of 1,748 daily newspapers in the U.S. in 1972, 3.1 per cent were owned by Jews. Jews, incidentally, make up about 3 per cent of the population.

The study found that most of the circulation of papers owned by Jews is in the Newhouse chain of newspapers. But few top editors are Jews. Of 800 members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the study found that fewer than 20 were Jewish.

Unification

NEW YORK — The average church member in 42 U.S. denominations contributed $137.09 to his church last year, an annual survey by the National Council of Churches shows.

Although the amount tops the $127.76 average of the year before in figures, it's actually less when inflationary factors are applied. Adjusted to the value of a 1967 dollar, the average 1974 contribution was $86.00, while the average contribution last year was down to $85.04.

Letters to the Religion Editor

Carter's 'visions'
Religion Editor:

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter professes to be a "born again" Christian, a phrase that means so many things to so many people.

In his slick pronouncements on his even slicker TV and radio spots, Gov. Carter challenges one's imagination with his "visions" for the people of our nation.

Carter wants to heal the wounds. Carter wants to bring us together. Carter wants to end animosity among neighbors. Carter wants to do wonders and (expletive deleted) cucumbers on these PR spots. But listen again when he speaks at an ethnically pure rally.

Mr. Carter never stops reminding people of the poor judgments made by an unmedicated Nixon. He still is kicking at the remnants of the Nixon family pride. Carter encourages hate among people. And that hate can be manufactured into hateful perversity and it can be directed to anyone. If Carter can create anger, he can surely create aversion to the ideals of the real "born again" citizen.

In Sirach one reads: "Woe to craven hearts and drooping hands, to the sinner who treads a double path."

And again, "Let us fall into the hands of the Lord and not into the hands of men. For equal to his majesty is the mercy he shows."

President Ford joined many Americans in forgiving Mr. Nixon. Even a "born again" must know, "Compassionate and merciful is the Lord; he forgives sins, he saves in time of trouble."

Apostasy

Religion Editor:

I have missed your editorials the past two weeks. It seems to fill a need that makes the week for me.
I didn't pay a great deal of attention to Glenn Whitmore's letter on a very unpopular subject, that of Apostasy. The more I think about it now, the more sure I am that we owe him a vote of thanks for bringing the subject to our attention. Whether we like it or not, we are on the verge of apostasy. Christianity out of existence. We are about to become Christians in name only.

Apostasy has always been a dirty word to me because it denotes a rebellion or rejection of God's principles or teachings. It is also an attempt by mankind to not accept God's conditions for our salvation, coupled with an attempt to dictate the terms of our own salvation.

No man has more right to dictate the terms of our salvation than Christ who made it possible. What right do we have to dictate the terms of our salvation, when all we did was make it necessary by needing it.

Christ declared baptism by immersion to be the only way (Gal. 3:27, Mark 16:15-16, John 3:5 and Col. 2:12) to salvation. In the second century, man changed baptism from immersion to sprinkling, along with many other changes. In our day, changes are still going on: the accepting of abortion by some, the ordaining of women, and what about lottery and bingo as a way to raise funds?

Again I say thank you to Glenn Whitmore for opening our eyes to what could wipe out what is left of Christianity, and leave us with nothing but the name.

Ford, Carter hear

Special to The I.P.T.

NEW YORK — Leaders of four major religious groups this week called upon President Gerald Ford and Gov. Jimmy Carter to "repudiate appeals to religious bigotry" in the current election campaign.

Denounced by them were so-called "vote-Christian" drives in a number of Congressional districts that were said to be sponsored by extremists in both major political parties.

The four were New York Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore Jr.; Catholic Father Joseph O'Hare, editor-in-chief of the Jesuit order's magazine "America"; Dr. Arnold L. Olson, retiring president of the Evangelical Free Church of America; and Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs national director for the American Jewish Committee.

In a joint statement issued during a press conference at AJC's national headquarters here, the leaders pointed out that religious bigotry has remained "gratifyingly absent" from the Presidential race.

BUT, THEY continued, such appeals have "become alarmingly evident in a number of Congressional contests."

The statement called on both Ford and Carter, as leaders of their respective Republican and Democratic Parties, and on to regional, state and local committees of the two parties, to "reject forcefully any campaign appeals based on whatever religion candidates may profess."

Referred to by the leaders were election drives, reputedly in at least 30 Congressional districts, to elect "God-centered citizens" who will work to "rebuild" America as a "Christian republic." These districts were said to be in Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, Washington, D.C. and Virginia.

The four religious leaders said that underlying a "vote-Christian" drive is assumptions that "candidates for office are to be judged on grounds other than their political and civic qualification. And that non-Christian believers, non-believers or even Christians with a different religious commitment are less qualified, trustworthy or patriotic."

"These assumptions strike at the heart of the American democratic process, and even more fundamentally, at the principle of separation of church and state," they declared.

Ex-hair stylist now a part of country music

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE (AP) — Two years ago, Larry G. Hudson was one of the best hair stylists in the country. He owned two shops, employed eight persons and was making good money.

Now he's cutting records like he used to cut hair. And he says he's happier than he ever thought he could be and on the verge of becoming a country music star.

"I WAS JUST at the point where I was making a comfortable living," said Hudson of Macon, Ga. "Hair styling was great to me; I enjoyed success beyond wildest dreams, and for that I'm thankful.

Biographies of composers on the screen

Film biographies of Beethoven, Bruckner and Mozart will be screened at the Music Hall Theater, 9036 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, beginning today at 11 a.m.

Produced and directed by Hans Conrad Fischer, the films trace the composers' lives in words and music, with performances by, among others, the Berlin Philharmonic, the Concertgebouw of Amsterdam, conductors Herbert von Karajan, Otto Klemperer, Eugene Jochum, and soloists Wilhelm Backhaus, Henryk Szeryng and David Oistrakh.

The Beethoven film will screen today and Sunday, and again on Nov. 13, 14 and Dec. 4, 5; Bruckner's biography will be shown Oct. 30, 31, Nov. 20, 21 and Dec. 11 and 12; the Mozart films screens Nov. 6, 7, 27, 28 and Dec. 18, 19. All films will be shown at 11 a.m.

"But music was, and always will be, my first and all-consuming love," said Hudson, 27, also known as "Larry G."

He and his seven-piece band — you guessed it, they're called "The Styl-ists" — will soon be touring the West Coast, the Midwest and the Eastern Seaboard. His current single is "You Light Up My World."

If he's as successful at singing as he was at styl- ing hair, country music will have a new star.

HE WON A Georgia hair-styling contest and was second among 7,000 other contestants in national competition in Pitts- burgh.

"I lost by one one point," he recalled. "It must have been a very minute details, a technical thing. Since I was from a small town, it was some- thing for a country boy to go up there and win among all the city slick- ers. They made fun of the way I talked."

"I've not cut hair for two years, and I won't go back. I've not even re- newed by license and that costs only $5 a year. I gave my tools to friends. When I quit, my friends told me I'd lost my mind."

He says he wasn't much of a singer at first.

have to do is to be honest with yourself. I was not a good singer when I started out. I spent two years studying other singers. I've picked the brains of every major artist I could find.

"I'm sincere. It's not front. I know where I'm at and where I want to go. Other people are more talented than I am, but none will outwork me."

"I'M THANKFUL to be able to do what I do and love it. I suppose 95 per cent of the people hate their jobs."

He's recorded two songs that became hits later by other artists. They are "9,999,999 Tears," now a hit by Dickey Lee, and "Shop Around," one of the Captain and Tennille's hits.

New Philharmonic season

By BILL ARTHUR

The opening concert of the 1976-77 season of the Los Angeles Philharmonic in the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion Thursday night said a lot of things about the orchestra at this point in time.

A program of familiar works by Hindemith, Liszt and Dvorak reaffirmed the general conservatism of its pn repertoire. We'll have some John Cage this year (the Bicentennial does have some blessings), and Schoenberg's more-Wagnerian-than-Wagner "Gurrelieder," but not too much else in the way of novelties.

The performances, for their part, reaffirmed the steadily improving, though still quite variable, level of playing now maintained by the orchestra. The rendition of the Dvorak would be hard to beat anywhere, but that of the Hindemith disclosed familiar flaws in execution and interpretation.

On a more worldly front, the addition of two new series of concerts on Wednesdays and Satur- days confirmed the or- chestra's almost unrivaled health at the box office. Tickets have been scarcer in recent seasons, and that probably won't change.

The evening did, how- ever, leave one thing unsaid — the successor to Music Director Zubin Mehta.

The highly romanticized performance of Hinde- mith's "Mathis der Mah- ler" showed once again Mehta's proclivity for that style of music-making.

He approached the work almost as if it were a Mahlerian symphony. Con- trasts in dynamics loomed large, almost bulbous at times. Tempos came and went with fussiness and exaggeration. Phrases soared, bent out of shape by grandeloquence.

It is this very kind of music-making that made the German composer go back to the Baroque style to find balance and moder- ation. No wonder

The performance of Liszt's Concerto No. 2 dis- played another kind of exaggeration. Both Mehta and pianist Andre Watts clipped the piece's phrases down to abrupt sonic frag- ments, eliciting an impres- sively serious interpreta- tion but tiring the ear with excessive effects. Here, too, tempos seemed arbi- trary and disjointed.

MARGIE, WHO IS YOUR PEDIATRICIAN? DR. FIELD, WHO IS YOURS, ROBERT? DR. LIBO, DOES YOURS HAVE A... YES, HE DOES. DOES YOURS HAVE A... YES, HE DOES.

IF THEY CAN LAND ROCKET SHIPS ON MARS, WHY CAN'T THEY INVENT A PEDIATRICIAN WITH A WARM STETHOSCOPE?

Private Journal- Entry # 1,092: I think about death all the time.

Some artists achieve immortality through their work.

I prefer to achieve mine through not dying.

Monday ??????

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Begins a pleasantly uneventful year of normal progress, personal adaptation to things as they are. Earning capacity expands as you remain busy with hobby sidelines as well as regular employment. Relationships pose no major problems, depend on the depth of your commitment. Today's natives are good mixers fluent in social action. Those born this year will be ambitious, choose a specialty early in life, build steadily toward important positions. Education should emphasize natural sciences.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Instead of listening to echoes of yesterday's incidents, get away and relax. You'll hear all that's important soon enough. Promise friends nothing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Today is good for making a personal inventory. Ask: What have I done for myself lately? Am I missing out on things I truly want yet never get around to?

Gemini (May 21-June 20): No matter how you feel, take stock of health. Write a check list: diet, exercise, hours of sleep, play offsetting work, etc. Set up a new improved schedule.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Friends have ideas for outings, fun, games. Join them. Resuming interrupted relationships serves a useful purpose if you understand a new basis for the tie.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Almost anything that happens now turns to your advantage if you accept both opportunity and personal responsibility. Pitch in, make proposals come true.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Temporarily, you may have to carry out work usually done by others. People overlook differences you see quickly. Use the information to advance yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're invited to share in many activities, discouraged from a few. Trust friends' judgment. You lay out a great deal of money, have nothing to show for it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Selection of companions is important. Spending isn't an art-form, as what you're seeking isn't for sale. Express your feelings with complete candor.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The week ahead is full of surprises. Planning rises from scattered thoughts. Tomorrow's beginning is going to be strenuous, so get extra rest.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today is for renewing your energy. Do no more than was originally asked, let people fill in their own options. Romantic attraction gets encouragement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who know you well say little or gently disagree, otherwise you have a successful time leading your crowd. Let everybody pick up his own tab.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel and speculation are neither favored nor likely to bring expected results. Healthy self-interest includes doing extra to promote family welfare.

...AND THE FOOT IN MOUTH AWARD TO BILLY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have swept the 1976 World Series in four games over the New York Yankees, and now it's time to give out the marvelous Marv Throneberry awards for meritorious performance.

Jimmy The Greek Award, for poorest prediction: Sparky Anderson, Cincinnati manager, who said: "The Series will go to seven games." The daring forecast provoked this aside from Pete Rose: "What's Skip going to do? Bench half the team?"

Foot-in-Mouth Trophy, for choking on crow: Billy Martin, brash skipper of the Yankees, who, upon landing in Cincinnati the day before the Series, boasted: "Who's afraid of the Big Red Machine? The Yankees are better in seven positions. We will beat their butts off."

Marconi Award, for electronic futility: The Yankees' involved walkie-talkie spy-in-the-sky apparatus, which failed to note that Roy White should have been positioned 40 feet up the leftfield stands when Johnny Bench batted in the fourth game.

THROW IT 'N DUCK AWARD, for fielding genius: Grant Jackson, Yankees reliever, who speared Bench's blast with a falling, behind-the-back stab in the seventh inning of the third game, turning a sure hit into an easy out.

George Meany Award, for singing-while-you-loaf: Ken Holtzman, Yankee pitcher who had a 7-3 career edge over the Reds and won four games with Oakland's 1972-74 champions, passed over by Martin. "I don't care," Holtzman said. "They pay me a lot of dough. If they need me, they know where I am."

Willie Mays Trophy, for flying hats: Pete Rose, the Reds' scrapping third baseman. Everytime anybody looked, Pete was going one way, his hat the other. He has his own private hat-retriever.

Dr. Kildare Award, for defying pain: Johnny Bench, plagued by two bad shoulders all season and a head injury which affected his swing, rallying from a .234 season average to bat .533 and win a ear as the Series' most valuable player.

GRIN-AND-BEAR-IT AWARD, for undeserved loyalty: The thousands of live baseball fans, jerked around by scheduling of night games to meet TV's prime time needs and subjected to bitter cold in near-freezing late October weather. Ear-muffs and mittens should be given all of them.

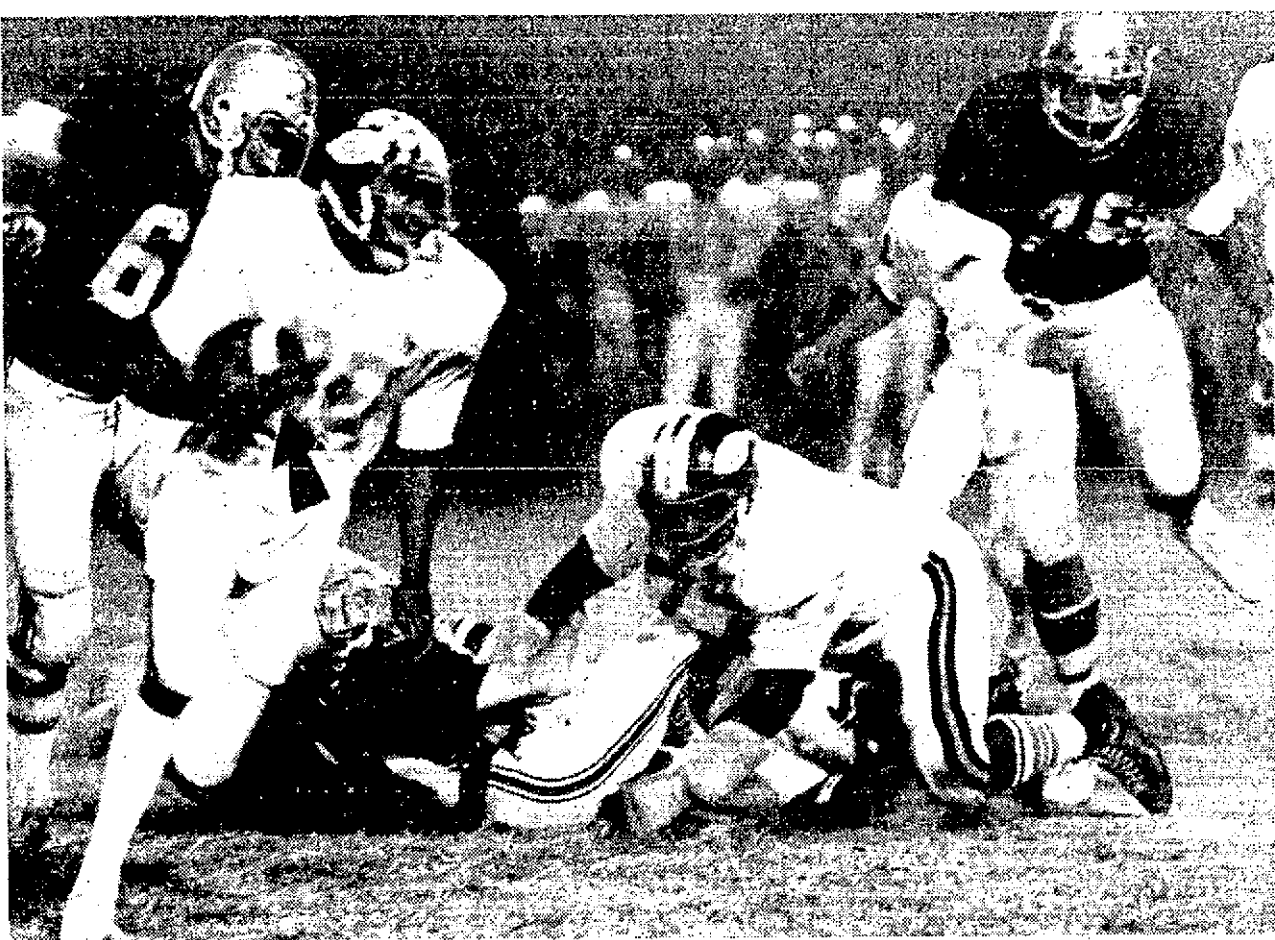

Perry O'Brien Award, for longest toss: umpire Bruce Froemming, who threw Billy Martin out of the final game Thursday night — a 155-pound heave from the Yankees' dugout to the clubhouse.

Somebody-Up-There-Dislikes Me Award, for divine guidance: The Yankees. Billy Martin dedicated the Yankees' season to his idol, the late Casey Stengel, and said: "Ol' Case is watching from somewhere." Yankee owner George Steinbrenner took a more realistic step in having his good friend, Bishop Sheen, fly in from Orlando for the fourth game. The Yankees still lost.

Touch Every Base Award, for political opportunism: President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter, in New York for the Al Smith dinner, didn't miss an opportunity to call the stadium and congratulate the winning Reds. Both knew if they could collar the baseball vote the election would be a cinch. However, the most avid of presidential phone callers was Richard Nixon, and look what happened to him.

Jordan on 21-0 treadmill

Jordan High's football team must have thought it was on a treadmill Friday night — going nowhere in a hurry.

The Panthers ran off 14 more plays than Wilson, had a 17-11 advantage in first downs, gained 10 more yards in total offense — yet lost by three touchdowns.

If not Wilson's most artistic showing of the season, at least it was convincing, a 21-0 win that not only spoiled Jordan's homecoming but, more important, advanced the Bruins to 2-0 in the Moore League.

All three Wilson touchdowns came in the first half as Mike

Millikan sustains 'Minor' blitz, 28-0

By GARY ELLIS
 Staff Writer

When it rains, it pours.

Dick DeHaven and his Rams were soaked — and shut out — as Compton defeated Millikan for the first time in six Moore League meetings, 28-0, Friday night before a homecoming turnout of 6,000 at Millikan High.

Millikan, hampered by early mistakes and penalties, never got untracked as Compton ran its league record to 2-0.

"It was a long time coming," said happy Compton coach Ted Williams. "We didn't expect to hold them that well."

The Tarbabes boasted a tough defense — and tailback Darryl Minor.

Minor was spectacular. He finished the evening with 149 yards in 16 carries, a 9.3 average, and scored two touchdowns. The swift runner also caught two passes for 22 yards and completed one of two passes for 45 yards.

In the first half Minor was the entire offense. He ran for both his touchdowns, one a brilliant 83-yard effort, and gained 116 yards on seven carries, a 16.6 average.

"I think we lost all our confidence," said a dejected DeHaven. "We moved the ball but couldn't score."

It was the second consecutive game in which the Rams' offense could not generate a touchdown. Last week, against Wilson, the only touchdown came on a punt return.

Millikan was held to 58 net yards rushing, although that includes a minus-36 yards on a poor center snap. The Rams' deepest penetration was to the Compton 11 in the final two minutes of the contest.

Wilson 21, Jordan 0.

Compton 28, Millikan 0.

Poly 24, Lakewood 0.

Peters threw TD passes to Terry Fifer and Dane Westby and Dale Oden scored his sixth touchdown in six games.

What hurt both teams' performance more than anything else was an abundance of penalties. Wilson was penalized 11 times for 145 yards, Jordan seven for 101.

The most frustrating stretch when the officials controlled play was on Wilson's second scoring drive, a 67-yard march that had all the aspects of a bad movie unfolding, complete with retakes.

Oden had runs of 72 and 11 yards for scores called back by clipping and holding penalties, and Peters had a 41-yard pass to Fifer nullified when he was ruled to be beyond the line of scrimmage. Jordan played the heavy role, being whistled for pass interference and a personal foul.

Finally Peters, on second down from the 4, flipped a pass to Fifer, who was all alone in the end zone for six points at 10:47 of the second quarter.

Wilson's defense, which has played so well the last three weeks, set up the other Bruin TDs, one on an interception by Don Miller, the second on a fumble recovery by Greg Parkin.

Lakewood thrown for loss by Lonon

By PAUL McLEOD
 Staff Writer

"Oh, yes!" sighed relieved Poly football coach Gene Noji. "You can put this in capital letters. This was a BIG win."

Senior quarterback Don Lonon threw for 183 yards and one touchdown and Poly's defense allowed Lakewood only 62 yards rushing Friday night as the Jackrabbits shut out the Lancers, 24-0, before 4,000 spectators at Veterans Stadium to level both teams' Moore League records to 1-1.

Noji was the happiest of the Hares following the contest because his team, after winning its first three games, was in a two-game tailspin when it took the field against the Lancers.

"This is the best game we've played all year," said a beaming Noji. "We went into it knowing we couldn't afford to lose another game. It's still tight. It's anyone's race."

Poly controlled the game from the opening kickoff, marching 55 yards on the first series, from its own 38 to the Lancer seven where Flemmer Clark booted a 24-yard field goal.

Poly added touchdowns on a 27-yard Lonon-to-Andre Tyler pass, and on runs of nine yards by Sche-velle Ward and a one yarder by Lonon.

Lonon was sensational through the air, connecting on one pattern after another with little resistance from the Lancers. He hit 12 of 19 attempts (63.2 per cent). Of the seven passes he missed, two were dropped and three occurred in the final 10 minutes when the Jackrabbits were leading 17-0 and marching to their final score.

During one stretch, from the final eight minutes of the second quarter to the 10-minute mark of the fourth quarter, Lonon completed seven consecutive passes totaling 101 yards.

Tyler was equally impressive, hauling in nine passes for 149 yards and one touchdown. Lonon went to his No. 1 receiver for gains of 31, 27, 18 and 21 yards. Lonon was sacked only once.

"We knew we could pass against Lakewood if we got good protection and blocking from our linemen," Noji said.

Poly was hit with 10 penalties — eight in the second half — for 113 yards. Lakewood was caught only twice, for 20 yards.

UCLA counts on Coulter for relief against Cal

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

BERKELEY — When UCLA's defense takes the field against California this afternoon at 1:30, Michael Coulter will be in his customary position, at the elbow of defensive coordinator Dick Tomey on the sideline, his eyes riveted on Pat Schmidt.

Coulter is Schmidt's relief at free safety. Yet the 6-0, 175-pound junior can hardly be classified as a second-string performer when he is tied with teammate Harold Hardin for the Pacific-8 Conference interception lead with four.

MIKE COULTER

who has 22 catches for 201 yards.

WITH strong performances against Stanford (five interceptions) and Washington State (six), Coulter believes the Bruin defense is on schedule for California.

"We're more flexible with our coverages than we were last year or even earlier this season. We're disguising them better and, when a quarterback is forced to audibline two or three times at the line of scrimmage, the better our chances for an interception."

The only part of football Michael relishes more than an interception is a lengthy punt return. He's averaged 18.6 yards on five runbacks, the longest 45 yards.

"I had one for 82 yards and a touchdown called back," he said with a forlorn look. "We're putting a stronger emphasis on punt returns this year. It's a good feeling to give the coach Tomey. I've just been fortunate to be in the right places."

"Somebody has to be second string," he continued, "and my only concern is being able to contribute. Pat and the coaches have confidence that there'll be no letdown when I get in there. We work well together."

It isn't as if the only playing time Coulter sees is when Schmidt tires. Probably no Bruin will have more opportunities to determine today's outcome than the handsome sociology major.

"I'm also on the kickoff and punt return teams, I back up Frank Corral on kickoffs and Don Pederson as holder on field goals and extra points."

FREE safety is Coulter's forte, though, and he believes he's actually better prepared coming off the bench than if he started.

"Being on the sideline gives me an edge right off the top. I can see the overall picture, what Pat's doing and what the other team is doing. With coach Tomey there to answer questions, it's like a classroom."

"For Pat, it's an on-the-spot thing. He can't make the wrong call because it's a now-or-never situation. There's a lot of pressure on him."

The thought of trying to defend against the nation's No. 2 passer in Cal quarterback Joe Roth (.538) and a lightning-quick receiver like Wesley Walker (28.4-yard average) has been on Coulter's mind all week. But some of his concern was eased late Friday when it was determined Roth and Walker will be sidelined because of injuries.

Replacing Roth will be senior Fred Besana.

"It's Fred's game," said Bears head coach Mike White. "I'm sure he will do a fine job, he's a good, high-percentage passer."

The Bears' No. 2 receiver is George Freitas, offense good field position and let people like Jeff (Dankworth), Wendell (Tyler), Theotis (Brown) and Frank (Corral) become aggressors.

"It's also great to have someone like Severn Reece back there with you on punt returns, knowing he'll unload on the first guy downfield. You just want to break a long one for a guy like Frank Stephens, who's probably tired from being on the field with the defense but still comes back to throw a block."

Tyler and Coulter were all-L.A. City teammates at Crenshaw High, Wendell the elusive seatback and Michael a wide receiver who also played in the secondary.

"Naturally, everybody keyed on Wendell so I had a lot of 80 and 70-yard reverses for touchdowns. That took the load off him. Wendell was part of the reason I came to UCLA."

Coulter led the freshman team in receiving but jumped to defense when UCLA suffered heavy losses in the secondary through graduation.

"The biggest transition was the contact. As a receiver you took some hits but on defense it was hit, hit, hit every play. I learned to play better than my weight."

Coulter, who says his toughest critic is his mother, was born in Texarkana, Ark.

When Michael was starting at Crenshaw, his mother would mail newspaper clippings to the relatives.

"My cousin, Gralyn Wyatt, plays for Texas. We sort of got to know one another through our clippings. Now we see each other on national TV."

The writeups have been a bit one-sided in Wyatt's favor the past few seasons, but Coulter is rapidly changing that. When you lead the Pacific-8 in interceptions, no one asks or cares whether you're first-string or not.

St. Paul slips by Servite

Swordsmen rally for 28-22 win

By DAVID FERRELL
Staff Writer

When Servite High traveled to St. Paul Friday night for a battle of top-rated defensive teams, it was the offense that dominated play.

At times, even the defense was "offensive."

But after a rash of mistakes and missed opportunities, St. Paul clinched a 28-22 win on a 59-yard pass from Tim Cowan to Mike Gallegos with 7:04 remaining.

Even then, it was a Servite error which allowed the winning score.

"Wide open. I was wide open," Gallegos said after his post pattern put St. Paul on top of the Angelus League with a 2-0 league record and a 5-1 over-all mark. Servite is 1-1 in league and 5-1 on the season.

For a while, though, it looked like Servite quarterback Pat Carreon

would wear the hero's robe when he brought the Friars back from a 14-0 halftime deficit and forged a 22-21 lead with 8:40 remaining.

Servite, No. 3-ranked in the CIF 4-A, took over the ball on its own 29-yard line trailing 21-14 in the third quarter and marched to the St. Paul nine in 13 plays. From there, Carreon plunged one yard for the score, then cut inside right tackle for a two-point conversion.

St. Paul, ninth-ranked, could have put the game away in the first half, but failed to capitalize on Servite errors.

On the opening drive, Carreon fumbled the second snap and St. Paul's Ralph Aranda recovered on the Servite 27-yard line. Four plays later, Cowan scored for St. Paul from six yards out, his first of three touchdowns.

Carreon fumbled again after the next kickoff, but St. Paul could not score from 43 yards out.

The Swordsmen did score in the second quarter on an eight-play drive from the Servite 29. Cowan went over from the one.

The Friars tied the score in the third quarter on a three-yard pass from Carreon to Ron Garretson and a nine-yard run by Leonard Altavilla, who led 14 teams rushing with 140 yards on 22 carries.

Oregon State tests USC with frosh quarterback

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Scott Richardson is an 18-year-old freshman quarterback and admittedly "a little nervous" going into Oregon State's Pacific-8 Conference football game with USC today at 1:30 p.m. in the Coliseum.

After all, Richardson's last starting assignment was in the 1975 Idaho state high school championship game in which he led Borah High of Boise to a 28-14 victory over Highland of Pocatello.

But that game may have demonstrated some of the qualities Oregon State coach Craig Fertig likes about Richardson.

"I separated my shoulder in the first half, but they taped me up at halftime and I played the rest of the game," says Richardson. "My entire chest area was so heavily taped I could barely move my left shoulder."

Richardson laughs. "We didn't run many option plays in the second half."

He wore a sling on his left arm for five weeks.

Richardson demonstrated true grit again last week when Beaver starter Kyle Grossart sustained a broken shoulder, the third Oregon State starter to be sidelined for the season.

The Babe from Boise came on to lead a 65-yard touchdown drive that upended heavily-favored Cal, 10-9.

"I think the key play was a 20-yard pass on third and 10 at Cal's 40," says Richardson. "It kept us going and the crowd got with us and picked us up."

After a couple of running plays, Cal was called for interference on a Richardson pass into the end zone.

"I got knocked down on the play, but I still had a good view of the penalty call," he says. "There was no doubt about it."

From the one, Oregon State scored the winning touchdown.

"It was a big upset and people in Corvallis got pretty excited," says Richardson.

Now Richardson comes into the Coliseum with the Beavers 28-point underdogs.

"I've watched films of USC's five games," he says. "USC has good athletes in the secondary, but they are by no means the best defensive backs we've faced."

FROSH QB . . . OSU's Richardson

Fertig and quarterback coach Rob Adolph, a former Trojan, have worked all week preparing Richardson for today's assignment.

"They know USC's game plan pretty well from their experience at the school," says Richardson. "I hope I can fulfill my part of our game plan."

At 18, it's an exciting, new world for Scott Richardson.

49ers' new game plan: 'Think Lamar, forget San Jose State'

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

BEAMONT, Tex. — By tonight, says Julius Mathis, last week's 34-7 loss to San Jose State will be all but forgotten.

"We spent Monday feeling sorry for ourselves, but as the week progressed, we began concentrating more and more on Lamar," says Mathis.

Lamar is Lamar University, the host for tonight's 5:30 (PDT) intersectional encounter in Cardinal Stadium. The game can be heard on KFOX-AM (1280) and KKOP-FM (93.5).

"The loss to San Jose is still in the back of our minds," admits Julius, the 49ers' starting free safety.

"But we can't dwell on it," continues Mathis. "San Jose has probably kept us from winning the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship, but we can't let it keep us from having a good season. We have five games left. If we win them all, we'll be 10-1. That's what we're all shooting for now."

As a free safety, Mathis' primary assignments are "the deep middle" on passes and "cleaning up" on all running plays.

He anticipates extensive janitorial duty tonight.

"They're more of a running team," Mathis says of Lamar. "In the films I've seen, they throw only when they're behind."

From a statistical standpoint, that puts Mathis in a good spot. He is tied with teammate Greg Barnes for the PCAA lead in interceptions. Each has three.

If he had his choice, Mathis would prefer to meet a team with a balanced offense.

"Then you have to play them honest," says Mathis. "With a team like Lamar your emphasis is to stop the run, and, if you're not careful, you can really get hurt by the pass."

Like many of his teammates, Mathis is playing a position different than the one he occupied in junior college.

At L.A. Valley, Mathis was a quarterback as a freshman and a wide receiver as a sophomore.

Mathis, who prepped at L.A. Dorsey High, played corner and free safety as a junior at LBSU and has been firmly entrenched at free safety since the beginning of spring practice.

JULIUS MATHIS
LBSU free safety

"I'd always been an offensive player until I came here," says Mathis, "but I feel I'm a defensive player now. I enjoy free safety, probably more than any position I've played."

Mathis says that the 49ers may do a little "scoreboard watching" tonight, looking at their own score.

"We haven't talked about a shutout," says Mathis, "but, if things go well early in the game, we might think about it."

They'll need it to climb among national defensive leaders. The 49ers have, at various times, ranked among the country's best in total defense, defense against the run and points allowed.

That was before the loss to San Jose.

"We enjoyed seeing our names on those lists," says Mathis, "but the San Jose loss changed all that. He can get back on them, though, if we do a good job in our last five games."

Starting tonight with Lamar.

Vike poloists on target 13-5

After a slow first period, Long Beach City College began to find the mark, scoring four goals in each of the final three quarters to register a 13-5 Metropolitan Conference water polo victory over El Camino at the Vikings' pool Friday.

Paul Pastuzak was the leading Viking scorer with four goals. Tony Rawlings and Randy Foster chipped in three.

Eric Atkinson had eight saves in goal for LBCC. The Vikings will be in action today in the Ventura tournament.

Abortion, rights revived as issues

By WALTER R. MEARS

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—President Ford and Jimmy Carter warily argued issues ranging from abortion and civil rights to the economy and their own campaign tactics Friday night, then concluded their nationally televised debates the way they began — each claiming that he was a leader and the other a pretender.

The first signal of voter reaction indicated that Democrat Carter was judged the victor in the rubber match of three presidential campaign debates.

The candidates' final summations went to the point raised in opening statements in their first debate in Philadelphia—the qualifications of the Republican President and the Democratic challenger to lead the nation for the next four years.

Ford said he had observed presidents, and sometimes differed with them, during his 25 years in Congress. "For the last two years, I've been the President, and I have found from experience that it's much more difficult to make those decisions than it is to second-guess them," he said.

THE PRESIDENT said the nation was healed after a troubled time of Watergate and war, and "the American people are moving again, and moving in the right direction."

But Carter said otherwise. He said Ford's administration has not provided national leadership.

"Mr. Ford is a good and decent man, but he's been in office now for more than 800 days. . . I'd like to ask the American people what's been accomplished," Carter said. The former Georgia governor said he offered no magic answers to the nation's problems, "but I believe together we can achieve great things."

He contrasted his experience, in local and state government, in the Navy and as a nuclear engineer, to Ford's in Congress. "I believe the American people are ready for a change in Washington," he said. "We've been drifting too long; we've been dormant too long; we've been discouraged too long."

THROUGHOUT much of the 90-minute debate at Phi Beta Kappa Hall on the campus of the College of William and Mary, Ford and Carter avoided hard-line attacks on each other. It was as though they had taken note of an early question about the level of the campaign and the apparent lack of interest of the voters in personal attacks and side issues.

Both seemed intent on avoiding a tone that might grate, a misstep that might prove devastating with only 10 days left before the Nov. 2 election.

There was an air of studied politeness, without the stern criticism Ford sounded in Philadelphia or the sardonic tones Carter adopted during their second debate, in San Francisco.

But there were slaps, each at the other. Carter said "Shame" after Ford boasted of the administration's economic record. Ford said Carter has slipped in the public-opinion polls — which still show him leading — because of inconsistency about the issues.

BUT IT was not the strident stuff of the campaign platforms, or of some exchanges in the earlier debates. And when this one was over, the candidates met in center stage, smiling, shaking hands, exchanging the private words of men who knew that when they next met one would be president-elect and one would be a loser.

A telephone poll of 353 viewers, conducted by Burns Roper for the Pub-

3 big Baja cities broke

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP) — The three biggest cities in Baja California were described Friday as broke, the result of peso devaluation and the rising value of U.S. dollars.

The financial crisis is their worst in modern history, said officials in Tijuana, Mexicali and Ensenada. City services have been cut and workers fired, they said, and loans have been taken out with private banks at 18 per cent interest to meet payrolls.

In Tijuana and Mexicali, appeals have been made to Mexico's federal government for aid, officials said.

The peso was allowed to float Sept. 1 and that action hit hardest in cities nearest the U.S. border, officials said. As the peso was finally devalued by 37 per cent, goods and services priced in dollars became much more expensive.

A MAJORITY of the border cities do heavy business with U.S. firms and banks charging dollar prices.

The peso was devalued from 12.5 to the dollar to 19.7 and "we started losing money right off the top," said Mayor Armando Gallegos of Mexicali.

"It was just too much," said Mayor Fernando Marquez Arce of Tijuana. "We have become seriously deficit — all of us, Tijuana, Mexicali and Ensenada."

Gallegos said Mexicali is running at a $520,000 deficit and a loan for that amount is being negotiated with two Mexican banks at 18 per cent interest.

The loan "means we will be going into 1977 with a deficit which must be made up from appropriations that will barely carry us over ordinary expenses," he said.

Douglas sues for $25 million over DC10 crash case

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

The McDonnell Douglas Corporation filed a $25 million libel action Friday against the New York Times and writer Robert Sherrill over a published review of two books written about the 1973 Paris crash of a Long Beach-built DC10 that claimed 346 lives.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court in St. Louis, charged that "a review written by Sherrill and published (Oct. 10) in the New York Times Book Review libeled McDonnell Douglas by stating and conveying the impression that the company and its personnel engaged in dishonest and improper practices and mismanagement."

A Times spokesman Friday night declined comment on the libel suit, saying, "It's the first I've heard of it."

HOWEVER, Ray Cooper, assistant production manager, said today's Times carried a brief news story reporting the suit. Cooper said the Times article today did not carry a response.

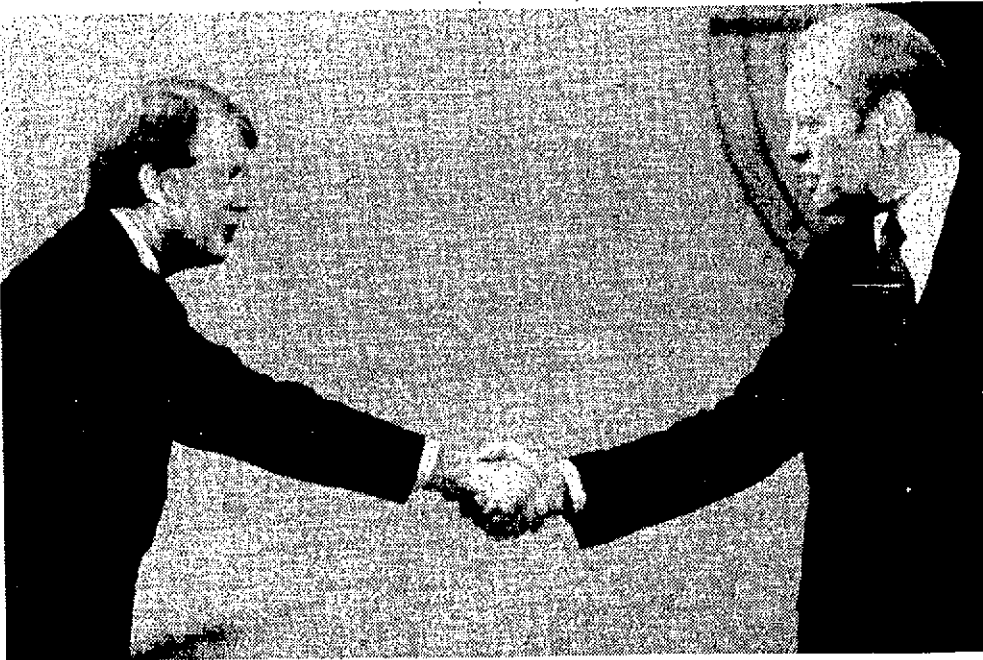

The crash March 3, 1974, of a Turkish Airlines commercial DC10 near Paris came shortly after takeoff from Orly Field when the wide-cabin jumbo tri-jet lost its cargo door, investigators said.

All 346 aboard, including 15 entire families and 17 Americans, were killed. At the time, it was the worst commercial crash in history. Victims and debris were found scattered over a seven-mile area.

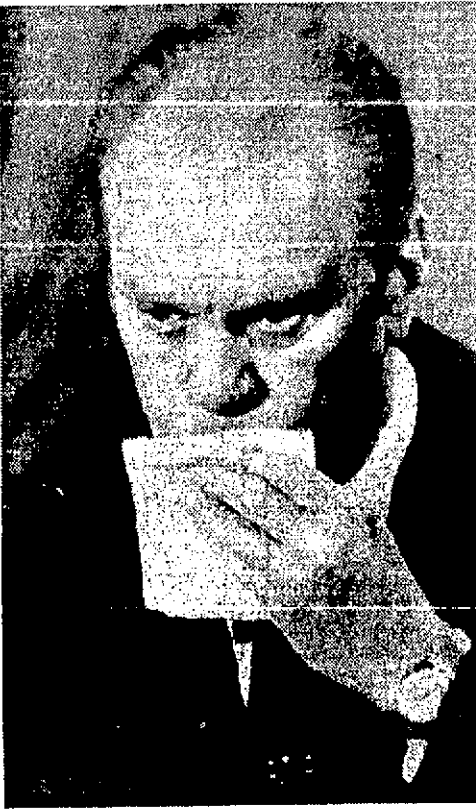

McDonnell Douglas subsequently warned airlines about a possible door failure if it wasn't properly latched. A similar accident occurred a year earlier over Detroit when a DC10 cargo door popped open. The pilot was able to land the plane with no loss of life.

$10,000 jewels grabbed in L.B.

Two armed men robbed a downtown Long Beach jewelry store Friday of $10,000 in jewels, Long Beach police said. No shots were fired, police said.

The bandits, one armed with a chrome-plated revolver, forced a clerk at Lawson's Jewelers, 250 Long Beach Blvd., to surrender the jewels about 5 p.m., then fled on foot.

Detectives described each of the bandits as white men, about 25, and 5-foot-7 inches tall. No getaway car was seen and pedestrians nearby said they neither saw nor heard anything.

Judge backs abortion rights

NEW YORK (AP)—A federal judge said Friday that a woman had a constitutional right to an abortion and could not be barred from getting one if she lacked money.

U.S. District Judge John Dooling Jr.—in ruling that Medicaid patients were entitled to abortions at public expense on the same basis as they were reimbursed for pregnancy and childbirth—said that Congress was mistaken if it thought that a ban on abortions paid for by Medicaid would save the taxpayers money.

"The alternative costs for medical assistance during prenatal care, at birth and after are very much greater," Dooling said.

His decision overturned a new federal law barring Medicaid payments for elective abortions.

Dooling cited the bitter disagreement between pro-abortionists and so-called right-to-life groups and said the government had no right to intervene on either side — either by compelling abortion as a means of population control or by denying medical aid to women who believe in abortion.

The suit was filed by Cora McRae, and Dooling granted it status of a class action, meaning it applied to all women.

His decision has the force of law in all 50 states, unless it is upset on appeal.

Dooling's decision came a day after U.S. Judge John Sirica in Washington dismissed a similar suit by low-income women from Virginia and the District of Columbia. They tried to block the Department of Health, Education and Welfare from implementing the law barring Medicaid payments for abortion.

Sirica said the women failed to show that the law would prevent the District of Columbia or Virginia from paying for abortions.

'GET OUT AND PUSH' was the word in Victorville cloudburst Friday as motorists help along stranded car through flooded intersection. Thunderstorms there and in Los Angeles foothills touched off flooding.

—AP Wirephoto

Floods, slides hit S. Cal.

Sudden heavy rains fell over portions of Southern California Friday afternoon and evening, touching off floods that crumpled foothill soil, inundated roads and homes and killed at least one person.

On a small incline in Sylmar, a young woman was killed when a wall of water knocked her from her motorcycle and swept her against a pickup truck. A police officer at the scene identified her as Margie Burmeister.

Sara Houser, manager of a gas station at a nearby corner, said the rushing waters were so strong that another woman and her three children in a sedan were pushed broadside across the road. The woman pulled the children out of the car and onto dry land just before a burst of water washed the car a block down the road.

"It just took three minutes," Mrs. Houser said. "It looked like a dam broke. It was a 6-foot wall of water."

Hail and mud slides, carrying soggy dirt a foot to a foot and half deep, were reported along a 25-mile stretch that included the communities of Sunland, Tujunga and Sylmar, but there were no reports of damage in the area.

Police said the havoc resulted from a cloudburst that lasted only 15 minutes. By 7 p.m. skies were nearly clear.

The storm also brought the area's first snowfall of the season, a touch of white on Mt. San Jacinto in Riverside County.

Over the Long Beach-Los Angeles area, scattered showers with some intense thunderstorms were expected to continue through this morning, when clouds should decrease. Fair weather should return by Sunday. A high of 68 and partly cloudy skies were predicted for Long Beach today.

In the Friday evening thunderstorms, authorities said, many motorists were trapped in their cars on roads clogged by heavy rains in the San Bernardino County areas of Victorville, Apple Valley and Oro Grande.

Sheriff's deputies with four-wheel-drive vehicles picked up stranded motorists.

Dry washes in the San Bernardino area were filled, some of them with water six feet high.

Secret missile lost from F14

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — An advanced Phoenix missile is still missing in the Atlantic Ocean, the Navy disclosed Friday, a day after the missile was reported found.

The secret missile was attached to an F14 fighter that fell overboard from the carrier John F. Kennedy on Sept. 14.

Following an extensive search the fighter was found in 1,900 feet of water on Thursday, and at that time the Navy said the missile was still attached to it.

But an embarrassed Navy had to backtrack Friday morning, announcing that the Phoenix "is not attached to the aircraft as originally believed."

Attention was focused on the loss of the F14 and its Phoenix missile because Soviet ships were in the area at the time and some U.S. officials were concerned they might try to recover the plane, one of this country's most advanced.

But the Russians never made an attempt to recover the aircraft, the Defense Department said.

Swine flu shots

ATLANTA — Forty-one persons have died after getting swine flu shots in the nationwide inoculation program, the federal Center for Disease Control said Friday. The CDC emphasized, however, there is no known connection between the vaccination program and the deaths.

Meanwhile, researchers reported Friday that swine flu vaccines are safe and effective for children and young people, but a booster shot probably will be required four weeks after the first inoculation.

Ferry crash bodies found

LULING, La. — Divers found ten more bodies Friday in the mud of the Mississippi River where the ferry George Prince sank after being rammed, capsized and sunk by a 664-foot Norwegian tanker. Eighteen persons survived and 32 bodies have been recovered.

One of the bodies recovered was in the last of three cars hauled from the silt 60 to 80 feet down in the chill, murky water, authorities said.

The other bodies were in the mud itself.

The bodies were the first located since Wednesday when the ferry sank in the gray hours just before dawn, spilling screaming passengers and vehicles into the chilly water.

Officials have estimated that 75 persons died in the collision and fear many of the bodies will be lost forever in the swift, muddy river.

Job training funds set

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department allocated $1.68 billion to states and cities Friday for job training programs in the new year that began Oct. 1.

Included was $1.5 billion for classroom training, on-the-job training, work experience, summer youth employment, vocational and remedial education, counseling, job placement and transitional public service employment.

Catholic priest murdered

HOMER, La. — A Catholic priest was shot to death in his rectory after four months of anti-Catholic vandalism in this area, authorities said.

"I think there's some connection," Sheriff James R. Oakes said Friday. "It's not by chance ... but we don't know what we're looking for."

Oakes said an unknown assailant fired two shots through a screen door of the rectory of St. Margaret's Church on Thursday night and killed the Rev. Theodore M. Lelieveld.

In two of the most serious incidents of vandalism, someone defaced a bronze crucifix two weeks ago at St. Margaret Church. Last week, vandals threw a wine bottle through one of the church's stained glass windows.

Divorce penalty repeal asked

DETROIT — More than 1,000 Roman Catholics — bishops, nuns, priests, and laymen — overwhelmingly called on the nation's bishops Friday to repeal the nearly century-old church penalty of automatic excommunication for Catholics who "dare to remarry after divorce" without church approval.

The vote was taken in the second day of a meeting that some say is the most representative gathering of the American Catholic Church in history.

The meetings, to conclude tonight, are expected to produce a series of major proposals setting the stage for sweeping reforms in the church if adopted by the nation's bishops next spring.

Runaway fathers pay off

WASHINGTON — A federal crackdown on runaway welfare fathers netted $146 million in its first year of operation, the government said Friday.

Officials at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare were surprised at the gain. They had expected the program to only break even with its costs.

However, they reported collecting $280 million in child-support payments during the year, while costs totaled $134 million.

Buffer force extended

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — The Security Council approved a one-year extension Friday of the U.N. force manning the Sinai buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian troops. The vote was 13-0 with China and Libya not participating.

Through its resolution, the council extended until Oct. 24, 1977, the mandate of the U.N. Emergency Force (UNEF), which currently consists of 4,174 men from Australia, Canada, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Poland and Sweden.

Lebanon ceasefire holds

BEIRUT, Lebanon — For the first time in months there were no reports of combat deaths Friday despite sporadic machine gun bursts and mortar rounds throughout the second day of Lebanon's 57th ceasefire attempt.

Arab peacekeeping troops took up truce-watching positions in Beirut's beleaguered battle zones. But tension rose over a Christian campaign to seize control of the southern border hills overlooking Israel.

The Riyadh agreement of Oct. 16, when Arab heads of state ordered the truce, was imperiled elsewhere by a building Christian drive to take over the southern border region that has been a Palestinian reserve for seven years.

State seizes county files in case of murdered reporter

Combined News Services

The Maricopa county prosecutor, ousted from the Don Bolles murder trial by Arizona's governor, said he discovered his files on the case missing Friday morning, carted out by Phoenix policemen hours after a mistrial was declared.

Later, the state attorney general said his office had taken the files. The action intensified a feud between state and county authorities on the handling of the investigative reporter's murder.

"All of our files were taken out last night after most of us had left," said County Atty. Donald Harris.

"Several plainclothes police officers came in with a dolly and carted off the filing cabinet. I didn't know about it until this morning."

Harris said the removal of files

would "seriously hamper" his probe of more suspects in the Bolles murder.

John Harvey Adamson, a 32-year-old greyhound dog breeder, is charged with the murder. But Harris has said others might be indicted, and he stuck by that statement Friday.

"It seems to me everybody is stopping with Adamson," he said. "I want the others. We have a known quantity, and he's awaiting trial. I want to get onto the other people."

Harris' comments on possible indictments were blamed by both the defense and prosecution when they asked for a mistrial Thursday. Both sides insisted he had prejudiced the trial.

But some sources close to the case pointed out that the flap over Harris' press interviews gave officials a reason to remove him, and that it came after a long power struggle with the attorney general's office.

The murder of Bolles has attracted more local and national headlines than any case in Phoenix history. The 47-year-old reporter was maimed June 2 when dynamite exploded under his car. He died 11 days later.

Bolles was considered a crusader who exposed land fraud and misdeeds of politicians. The story he was working on when he was killed involved an alleged land fraud and, since he was killed, the names of some local political figures have been mentioned in the stories about the matters he was investigating. As a result, some politicians here felt that holding the trial now could affect local elections.

After the mistrial, the judge ordered that a new trial begin before Dec. 20.

Humphrey

Irrepressible Hubert H. Humphrey is up to his old tricks.

He is making daily rounds at Memorial Sloan-Kettering in New York City. Less than two weeks after his surgery for removal of his cancerous bladder, the senator knows all his fellow patients on the floor by name, and drops in on them regularly as he takes his daily exercise.

Patients have alerted their families, who now arrange their hospital visits to coincide with the senator's schedule, and patients from other floors line the hall to greet him, as he makes his way upon his appointed rounds, clad in his 20-year-old, blue and white bathrobe.

One in 10

Milton Friedman, the Nobel prize-winning economist, says the debt-ridden Italian government ought to fire one of every 10 government employees if it wants a workable economic austerity program.

Friedman said Italy's approach to austerity through higher taxes, higher prices for state-produced goods and services and government financial help for weak industries is misguided.

Government expenses should be cut and nationalized concerns should be sold back to the people, Friedman said.

Jailed

New York City Democratic City Councilman Matthew Troy began a 60-day federal prison sentence Friday for evading income tax on $37,000.

"I'm ready to do what the judge ordered me to do and take my punishment," said Troy, 47.

Troy, an attorney and son of a retired judge, admitted misappropriating $68,405 from estates under his care but was allowed to plead guilty July 2 to a single count involving $37,000 of the total. He said he used the money to send his children to parochial schools and later made full restitution to the estates.

Brother

Billy Carter, the Democratic presidential candidate's brother, says he's happy with Jimmy Carter's running mate, Minnesota Sen. Walter Mondale.

"I liked him best of all the ones that came to Plains," Billy said Thursday, referring to the prospective vice-presidential candidates Carter interviewed at his Georgia home. "He's from a small town and he's a beer drinker."

Billy said the biggest change in his own life since his brother entered the race for president is that "I drink liquor out of a cup instead of out of the bottle now."

His brother's drinking habits have changed, too. "Jimmy used to drink liquor," he said. "Now he's running for president he drinks Scotch, and I've never trusted a Scotch drinker."

Overdose

Doctors in Calcutta said Palden Thondup Namgyal, former ruler of Sikkim, was still in critical condition but regaining consciousness four days after an overdose of barbiturates. A family member said that he had regained some of his reflexes and was beginning to react to light.

Jail thwarts love story

Stewart Goldstein stood before the judge, waiting to be sentenced for hiring a man to kill his wife. Beside him was his wife Julia.

"I really don't believe Stewart meant to do what transpired," the 25-year-old woman told Judge Marvin J. Land in Baltimore County Circuit Court.

"Stewart means a great deal to me," she said.

"To lose him would be very painful."

Her plea left Land unmoved, and he imposed a maximum 18-year sentence Thursday on the 30-year-old defendant.

His crime? Paying a "hit man" $5,000 for a murder in April, 1974. The intended victim? Julia Goldstein, then his bride of nine days.

The murder never occurred because Goldstein selected an undercover detective as the contract killer so he could collect on a life insurance policy.

"I am really that much in love with Stewart," Mrs. Goldstein said. "He's that important to me. If we can just get this thing over and behind us, I think we would have a chance to make this a normal and kind of happy marriage."

Don't keep truckin'

Can Action Line tell me why Harding Street between Orange and Cherry avenues has been designated as an alternate truck route? There are three main truck routes within a half mile of this street—the 91 Freeway, Artesia Boulevard and South Street. If this truck route designation must continue, why isn't there a stop light on this street as there is on South and Artesia? How many persons would have to be run over before a stop light would be installed? D.S., Long Beach.

Harding is not an official truck route, according to a spokesman for the Long Beach traffic engineer's office. If a truck driver is making a delivery or going to a construction site, he can use a non-truck route, but otherwise, he can be cited for using a street such as Harding. The police, however, usually will not investigate complaints about truck drivers using unauthorized routes unless they have specific information to go on. "If a person simply complains that trucks use his street all the time, we don't have enough personnel to assign someone full time to watch that street for violations, but if a person gives us a time period when trucks particularly use the street or the names of truck companies involved, we'll investigate," said Lt. George Holton of the Long Beach Police Department's traffic division. He also said he's never received any complaints about truck traffic on Harding. There are traffic lights on Harding at Cherry and Orange, as there are on Artesia and South. The other north-south streets that cross Harding, which is considered a main thoroughfare, are minor residential side streets with stop signs, and the city would not consider installing traffic lights at these intersections, the traffic engineer's spokesman said.

Make a splash

Who sponsors the Long Beach Swim Club? Mrs. J.M., Long Beach.

It is a private club, operating as a member of the Amateur Athletic Union, and it uses the Long Beach Recreation Department facilities at Belmont Plaza Pool for its training sessions and meets. It operates primarily to train young swimmers for competition. The club is coached by Dick Joecums, 1976 Pan-American and Long Beach State University swim team coach. The swimmers, ranging in age from 5 to young adulthood, are coached in basic stroke techniques and physical endurance building up to two-hour workouts. The less-experienced swimmers learn the basics in sessions at Millikan High School. Membership fees are generally $20 monthly per child but discounts are given under a plan which reduces rates for families who have more than one child competing.

In a corner

The deplorable condition of the intersection at Lakewood Boulevard and Carson Street has existed for years. Because of the dip there, the maximum safe speed for driving east or west through this intersection is 15 to 20 miles per hour, and even at this speed, a car bounces violently. With the millions of dollars collected from the gasoline tax, there should be enough money to remedy this situation. F.A., Long Beach.

The dip actually is a drainage gutter, and that intersection probably will remain in the same condition for some time. Even with the gutter, drainage has been a problem there, but because of the pedestrian tunnels under Lakewood Boulevard, it would cost a tremendous amount of money to install a major storm drain system in that area. Carson is a city street, but Lakewood is a state highway, and city improvement projects must have the approval of the state. In 1973, the city requested the state's permission to install what's called a dry weather drain system in that area and to reconstruct the intersection. But the state engineers would not approve the project unless the gutter remained because they deemed that the dry weather drainage system would not be adequate in rainy weather. The dry weather drain was installed last year. A spokesman for the city engineer's office said Long Beach officials hope to redesign that intersection to provide a somewhat smoother ride even with the gutter, but "at this point we don't have the funds for the job."

Venue shift denied in Slasher murder trial

Associated Press

A Los Angeles Superior Court judge Friday turned down a request by Vaughn Greenwood, accused Skid Row Slasher, to have his multiple-murder trial moved out of Los Angeles County.

Greenwood, who filed the change-of-venue motion himself, said he could not receive a fair trial in the county because of prejudicial publicity.

But Judge Earl C. Broady denied the motion without comment after a closed hearing.

Greenwood, 33, is charged with 11 counts of murder, including the nine so-called Slasher killings in December 1974 and January 1975 and two 1964 murders.

Greenwood's motion alleged that local news media had broaded, prejudicing potential jurors.

For example, there had been six unfair and prejudicial stories since Wednesday, the motion argued.

Broady disagreed, saying the media had acted with restraint.

"If there has been material in the newspaper which has been detrimental to the defendant ... it hasn't come even near the point" where prejudice in prospective jurors could be ferreted out by questioning, the judge said.

He also denied a defense motion to prevent prospective jurors from being questioned on their attitudes toward the death penalty.

Poker game ends in death

A Compton man was stabbed to death Thursday night in an apparent row with a neighbor over a poker game, sheriff's deputies said Friday.

Carl Burrell, 31, of 4821 E. Compton Blvd., was stabbed with a kitchen knife and died an hour later at Paramount

General Hospital, they said.

Theresa Ann Murray, 22, of 4817 E. Compton Blvd., was booked at Carson station on suspicion of murder.

Deputies said she and two unidentified men were playing poker when the altercation developed.

Parts of bodies, aircraft removed Plane-crash 'souvenirs' return asked

Associated Press

Souvenir seekers have hampered an investigation into a midair collision over a Venice playground that killed two pilots and injured seven persons on the ground, Los Angeles police said Friday.

The collision, which occurred 500 feet above a private elementary school where 100 children were playing, sent aircraft wreckage sailing into homes in a heavily populated two-square-mile area, and souvenir hunters were seen walking off with parts of the two light planes and even pieces of the two men's bodies, said one officer.

"They were carrying off everything from airplane parts to actual pieces of bodies," the officer said. "You couldn't believe it. We did our best to stop them but quite a few must have got away with some part or another."

Of the seven people injured on the ground, six were policemen at the Los Angeles Police Department's nearby Venice station, where one of the planes, a twin-engine Turbo Commander, struck a telephone pole and skinned a corner of the police station before crashing.

The station was evacuated, and officers suffered from smoke inhalation, minor back injuries and abrasions, while a civilian reported minor cuts.

Police have asked anyone who picked up parts of the Commander or the single-engine Beechcraft Debonair to return the pieces to the Venice station, where they will be turned over to the Federal Aviation Administration to help study the crash's cause.

More than 1,000 pieces of the wreckage were scattered in front of the smoke-blackened police station, said Sgt. Jim Cisin, "and we're still finding marble-sized pieces."

He added, "A lot of people have picked up parts, apparently keeping them for souvenirs. They'll probably throw them away in a couple of days."

The Hughes Turbo Commander, returning from Santa Barbara, entered a landing pattern for the Hughes Aircraft Corp. airstrip in Culver City. Its pilot was Donald R. Bolt of Torrance, a Hughes employee.

The other pilot, Erich Ernest Baldwin, 27, of Westminster, was flying his rented single-engine plane from Hawthorne to Santa Monica when the collision occurred. Both planes burst into flames and spiraled to the ground, witnesses said.

Baldwin's plane crashed into the bedroom of Albert Pesquiera, 16, just after he had walked out the back door of his house. He said he heard a scream from a woman across the street who told him something had crashed into her garage.

What Pesquiera thought was a seat cushion turned out to be "a body with no head."

"We heard a loud crash and bits of skull, bits of flesh and a dozen chunks of the Beechcraft plane came showering down on the kids," said Raymond Roller, principal of the Marina Light and Life Christian School.

Marcia Falcon, an instructor and playground supervisor at the school, looked up at almost the same moment the planes collided. "I saw an explosion," she said. "I saw two very distinct bodies falling with their arms and legs twisting ... all kinds of metal showering down, and we rushed the children indoors." Fortunately none of them was among the injured.

Santa Ana fire probe for arson

Arson investigators late Friday were probing an early-morning fire that caused an estimated $200,000 damage—and left one fireman injured—at the Santa Ana office of the Plasmadyne company.

Officials said Capt. Don Little was under observation in the cardiac care unit of Santa Ana Tustin Community Hospital after suffering chest pains while fighting the two-hour blaze.

Pieman Bill Viar, who sustained a back injury, was treated and released at the same hospital.

The blaze was reported at 5:37 a.m. Friday by motorists on the nearby Newport Beach Freeway who saw flames leaping through the roof of the two-story building at 3839 S. Main St.

The fire was brought under control at 7:15 a.m. by nine fire units under command of Battalion Chief Robert Huebner.

2 bad-check artists sought in 3 counties

City of Orange police said Friday they are seeking two suspects in a check-passing ring that is operating in three counties with stolen supermarket check-cashing cards.

Police declined to name the suspects for fear of hurting the investigation. However, they said the check forgery ring has been operating about one year in Los Angeles, San Diego, and Orange counties.

Orange Detective Roger Braham said that in each case stolen supermarket check-cashing cards are used to pass bad checks.

Braham said he had no estimate on how many persons have been victimized or how much money has been lost. Nor would he say how many persons are involved.

UC asks 11% hike in record budget request

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The University of California asked the state Friday for an 11.5 per cent increase in funding for 1977-78 in a record $2.2-billion budget.

Though enrollment is expected to be virtually unchanged next fall, University President David Saxon said the budget increase would cover "a very small fraction of the urgent needs" at the nine campuses.

Gov. Brown cut UC's budget considerably in the last two years. Aides in his Finance Department are already questioning the need for an increase that is well above the rise in enrollment and inflation.

The budget will be submitted to the Legislature for scrutiny, along with Brown's alternate proposal. The Democratic governor is to sign the final state budget by next June 30.

The budget approved by the UC regents without dissent calls for $723 million in state support, a $75-million increase.

Also approved was a construction budget of $85 million, about two-thirds of it from bond money and state funds, and a $20.6 million, 6.77 per cent raise for UC teachers.

Saxon was critical of the $70-a-month raise Brown insisted on this year for the university faculty along with most other state employees. Brown has promised to return to the traditional percentage raises next year.

ASKED how he would defend the budget increase, Saxon said inflation had hit the university particularly hard in a wide range of areas, including the cost of equipment, petroleum products for chemistry laboratories and foreign periodicals for libraries. He said more than half the proposed state increase was to cover inflation.

In addition, the university is again asking for money for long-delayed repairs of deteriorating equipment and buildings. To deny that request would be "false economy," said Regents Chairman William Colbenz.

Saxon prompted laughter from reporters when asked if he had reason to expect approval of the budget increase.

"IF YOU'LL let me use the word 'reason' somewhat loosely," he said.

Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy, also a regent, said he was sympathetic to the request for maintenance money "to avoid more costly rehabilitation caused by delay."

But McCarthy, D-San Francisco, added that he expected "a fierce competition for every tax dollar" reflecting such needs as school finance, property-tax relief and housing.

"Everybody is probably going to find it a pretty tight, difficult year," he said.

UFW upheld on Prop. 14 poster

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Friday allowed the United Farm Workers to continue using a controversial child-labor poster that supports Proposition 14.

The court stayed, without comment, a preliminary injunction granted Wednesday. A San Francisco Superior Court judge had prohibited use of the name of a Kern County grower, Garin Co., on the poster and ordered the union to make a reasonable effort to block out the name on posters already in circulation.

The high court's order prevents enforcement of the injunction pending its future action on the petition filed by the UFW and others. The UFW had asked that the lower court's action be held invalid.

The stay does not constitute any determination of the merits of the petition.

Garin sought the injunction in its $1.5 million libel suit against the UFW and others. The company contends that it does not use child labor and that statements on the posters are false and libelous and have injured its reputation and business.

Prop. 14 would re-enact the state's farm-labor law, with some pro-labor changes, into an initiative statute.

The UFW, union leader Cesar Chavez, the Yes on 14 Committee and other defendants objected to the injunction on grounds that it violated their free exercise of speech and expression.

The poster is headlined "Stop Child Labor—Yes on Proposition 14." It shows a girl dumping onions from a can into a sack in the fields, and a caption alleges that the scene is on the Garin ranch at Mettler in Kern County. Garin contended it did not grow onions there this year and does not use the farm-labor contractor mentioned.

Foes of Prop. 14 win round on ads with ABC, FCC

Associated Press

U.S. Sen. John Tunney and Republican challenger S.I. Hayakawa met with aides Friday in preparation for their first televised debate Saturday night.

And a dispute over advertisements against the Cesar Chavez-sponsored farm-labor initiative churned along, with foes of Proposition 14 winning rounds with the ABC network and the Federal Communications Commission.

Hayakawa made only one brief public appearance Friday. Tunney had none as they separately prepared for their hour-long confrontation on a Los Angeles television channel.

Hayakawa told the Los Angeles Rotary Club that Tunney's proposals to reduce unemployment are "long on campaign gimmickry and short on basic math."

HE criticized a Tunney proposal to give tax credits to employers who hire people who have been jobless for at least 13 weeks, saying that would benefit only 7 per cent of the unemployed.

Tunney, meanwhile, picked up support, if not exactly an endorsement, from Rep. Paul N. McCloskey Jr., R-Palo Alto, who told a high-school class in Sunnyvale Friday that he will not vote for his party's nominee.

"I'm going to vote for Tunney. No one 70 years old should be elected to the Senate for the first time," McCloskey said of Hayakawa. McCloskey press aide Bill Johnson said later the comments were not intended to be an endorsement.

"There is a narrow line, but he has refrained from endorsing John Tunney, although he has said publicly he will vote for Tunney because he thinks Tunney has grown in the job," Johnson said.

In the Prop. 14 battle, the FCC in Washington rejected a request that ads against the initiative be banned from radio and television as "false and misleading."

And ABC, which had ordered a review of the commercials, announced that it would continue to air them.

The commercials allege that Prop. 14 violates constitutional rights to private property. Chavez, president of the United Farm Workers, said that contradicts a ruling by the California Supreme Court which the U.S. Supreme Court allowed to stand.

"THE FCC saw the Chavez effort as nothing more than a cheap shot at grabbing headlines," said No-on-14 Campaign Director Bill Roberts.

Chavez, meanwhile, launched a three-day "human billboard" campaign for the initiative in Los Angeles with a crowd of about 1,500, including actors and actresses.

Chavez supporters wearing sandwich-board signs fanned out to freeway off-ramp sites around Los Angeles after the rally.

Justice McComb cited for contempt over deposition

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Justice Marshall McComb, an 82-year-old jurist fighting to stay on the California Supreme Court, was cited for contempt Friday for refusing to give a sworn statement to a commission investigating him.

Complaints against McComb include reports that he falls asleep on the bench. A document filed with the court noted that he has been accused of "willful misconduct" and of having a serious physical disability.

SUPERIOR Court Judge Byron Arnold issued the unprecedented contempt ruling, ordering McComb jailed until he gave the deposition. But he stayed execution of the order until Nov. 8 to give McComb's attorneys time to appeal.

Documents filed with the contempt order included disclosure of the outline of the official case against McComb, the first of its kind against a California Supreme Court justice.

It was filed with the court by William O. Weissich, attorney for the Commission on Judicial Qualifications, before whom McComb was supposed to give the sworn deposition.

WEISSICH said McComb "is accused of willful and persistent failure to perform his duties, conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute, of having a disability that seriously interferes with the performance of his duties that is, or is likely to become, permanent, and of willful misconduct in office."

There was no elaboration of the alleged misconduct or the nature of McComb's disability.

But for the last year, the commission has been investigating complaints that McComb falls asleep at work, doesn't follow judicial arguments and is absent or inattentive at judicial conferences.

McComb was appointed to the high court by Gov. Goodwin Knight in 1956. The court has no mandatory retirement age, but there are financial incentives for judges to step down at 70.

McComb has hired attorneys to fight any attempt to remove him. They could not be reached for comment.

Arnold said McComb failed to keep an appointment Sept. 20 with Weissich to answer questions under oath. Weissich's affidavit said the first date for a deposition had been July 9.

THE judge said McComb was directed to appear before him last Monday, and when he failed to appear, was ordered to meet with him Friday.

"But Justice McComb again didn't show up," Arnold said.

A source close to the case, who asked not to be identified, said McComb contended that being required to give the deposition would violate his right against self-incrimination.

Bandit trades bra for $107

GLENDALE (AP) — Police were looking Friday for a pregnant woman who robbed the Motherhood Maternity Shop on Brand Boulevard, leaving behind a size 38B bra as the only clue to her identity.

Police said that about 6 p.m. Thursday the woman entered the shop and began trying on clothes. She went to her car, ostensibly to get change, and returned with a pistol, which she pointed at the two store clerks.

She left with $107, leaving behind the bra she had removed while in a dressing room.

"At least until the petition is acted upon by the state board, it is clear that the governing board of each school district may or may not participate in the promotion as it sees fit," Riles said in a letter to school superintendents.

In making that decision, Riles urged districts to consider:

—"The extent to which the influence of the schools is being placed in support of one company or industry to the exclusion of others.

—"Whether the schools are receiving a substantial benefit from the campaign or whether the benefit is so insubstantial as to be an unwarranted use of school time and resources.

—"The extent to which the product promoted or sold is consistent or inconsistent with objectives of the school program such as nutrition education.

—"The extent to which the product is a luxury item or is more expensive than competing products."

Sound fails again —but only for audience in hall

Combined News Services

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — The third and final presidential debate of 1976 was heard by tens of millions of people—but not the 658 who saw it live.

The sound system in the Phi Beta Kappa Theater was more suited to the intimate debates that marked the learned society's start 200 years ago than the electronics that carried the words of the contenders to a nation.

Guests in the theater at the College of William and Mary could hear only bits of the exchanges.

"The situation was a new version of the miseries at the first debate in Philadelphia, when sound was cut off for 27 minutes.

The audience here saw the two men addressing one another directly for the first time in the three debates and even agreeing once.

That was when Jimmy Carter said he shared with President Ford the view that the choice of a running mate was most important.

the Watergate scandal in 1972.

Ford has said it did not. When the debate was over, Carter's press secretary, Jody Powell, called it "one of the more enlightening, intelligent discussions of the issues."

He said Ford was "not following the line of his paid media (advertising)" and had avoided negative and personal attacks.

Indeed, Carter pledged that in the remaining 10 days of the campaign "the American people will not see a Carter campaign based on personal attacks."

FORD, TOO, made a pledge—that "we do together what we can to stimulate voter participation."

When the 90-minute debate ended, Ford and Carter shook hands and their wives came from opposite ends of the stage to kiss them.

Ford's running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, and his wife congratulated the Fords and shook hands with Carter.

"It is very appropriate, I think, that we have this debate here to decide the leader of our nation in Williamsburg and here in a part of Virginia where our nation began," said Carter.

William and Mary is where Thomas Jefferson

studied at age 16. Seventeen years later he was to write the Declaration of Independence.

The debate was held in the Phi Beta Kappa Hall commemorating the premier scholarly society, founded as a secret organization 200 years ago by William and Mary students.

IN THE first row of the balcony during the debate, presidential counselor Robert Hartmann fought drowsiness through the first hour, occasionally slumping deep in his seat, eyes closed.

Next to him, Jimmy Carter's son Jeff, holding a banana in one hand and a long-lensed camera in the other, peered intently over the railing, his face expressionless.

Only once was there a murmur, a sort of muted chuckle, when Ford, gesturing at Carter, quoted Democratic vice-presidential nominee Walter Mondale as saying that Gen. George Brown, the outspoken chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was not qualified to be "sewer commissioner."

To many who watched here, both Ford and Carter seemed more at ease than in their first two meetings, more confident in their replies to questions from the panel.

FORD, as in the previous debates, stood for the entire 90 minutes. Carter was in and out of his chair throughout the evening, and often sat with his arms crossed, staring at Ford, an enigmatic smile on his face.

It was, as moderator

Barbara Walters reminded the audience, a historic meeting in a historic setting, where other great debaters had uttered words that lasted through two centuries. But this debate also was held in one of the newest structures in this lovely old colonial village, a hall that is just 19 years old.

At the beginning, the candidates showed the audience a markedly different style.

Carter strolled on to the stage first, immediately walked to the panel, shook hands and exchanged a greeting with each of his questioners.

Ford walked on 30 seconds later, waved casually to the audience and then stood stiffly behind his lectern. Only then did he nod and smile at his questioners.

TO MAKE room for the debate, the opening performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer" was postponed. Dressing rooms were redecorated in early American furniture to make the candidates comfortable before the debate.

Stagehands set up the set that had traveled to Philadelphia and San Francisco, and to Houston for the vice-presidential debate.

William and Mary is the second oldest college in the nation and like Harvard, the oldest, it boasts about the presidents who studied there.

Carter says 'lust' interview a goof

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Jimmy Carter said Friday he made a mistake when he gave his controversial interview with Playboy magazine about lust, and would not do it again.

In the current issue of the magazine, the Democratic presidential nominee comments about his religion, his views on adultery and other sins, and about former Presidents Richard Nixon and Lyndon Johnson.

Since then, Carter has drawn criticism from some religious leaders for his statements about sex. He also has apologized to Lady Bird Johnson for comparing her late husband with Nixon when he said both had lied to the American people.

The President Ford Committee has used the Playboy interview in advertisements that show Ford on the cover of Newsweek magazine and the Playboy magazine with the Carter interview. The Playboy cover shows a partially clad woman. The ad invites the reader to make a decision about the candidates based on the two magazine stories.

Ford also has criticized Carter directly for giving the interview, saying he didn't think Playboy was a "proper format" for a presidential candidate to express his views. Ford said he had turned down an invitation to be interviewed by the magazine.

During the final debate Friday night between Carter and Ford, Carter said: "In retrospect, from hindsight, I would not give that interview if I had it to do over again."

Carter said, "The Playboy boy has been of very great concern to me." He added that, "I don't know how to deal with it exactly."

He noted that many prominent Americans, including Ford's treasury secretary, William Simon, Gov. Brown and famed humanitarian Albert Schweitzer, had been interviewed by Playboy.

"But if I had to do it again, I would use another forum besides Playboy," Carter said.

Betty Ford wishes Carter luck

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — First Lady Betty Ford penciled a note to Jimmy Carter on Friday and left it on his rostrum in the afternoon before his arrival for the final presidential debate of the 1976 campaign.

"Dear Mr. Carter,"

Mrs. Ford wrote, "May I wish you the best tonight. I am sure the best man will win."

"I happen to have a favorite candidate, my husband, the President. Best of luck."

"Betty Ford."

When two reporters spotted the brief message, written on plain blue stationery, aides to President Ford removed it. They later said they would have it delivered to Carter prior to the debate.

Mondale says Ford ignores women's jobs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale said Friday that President Ford's administration is ignoring millions of unemployed women because it believes they are an unimportant part of the labor force.

Winding up a 10-day campaign swing through the Southwest, West and Midwest, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee demanded:

"Who are they to say that widows with children should not work?"

Wage increases smaller; built-in adjustments up

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Labor Department reported Friday that wage increases negotiated in major collective bargaining agreements in the first nine months of 1976 were smaller than in 1975.

The report supported the view of administration monitors that wages, although continuing to outstrip productivity and push up business costs, have not caused any acceleration in inflation this year.

The department, reporting on 624 collective bargaining settlements covering 2.7 million workers, listed the following key results:

— Wage boosts for the first year of new contracts averaged 8.9 per cent, as against 10.2 per cent for contracts signed in 1975.

— The average increase scheduled for the life of the 1976 contracts was 7 per cent as against 7.8 per cent last year.

— Contracts had an average duration of 31.3 months, as against 28.9 months for the expiring contracts. Generally, the willingness of unions to write longer contracts is regarded as a sign that inflationary psychology is easing.

In addition, a growing number of contracts had cost-of-living escalator clauses in them, clauses that are likely to fatten pay boosts above the negotiated improvements. The report said escalators were written into 41 settlements covering 233,000 workers, chiefly in rubber and apparel, and were dropped from five contracts covering 77,000 workers.

AS A result, escalator clauses now cover approximately 60 per cent of the 10 million workers in major bargaining units, the department said. The new contracts with escalator protection provided for smaller specified pay boosts — 6.7 per cent — than contracts without such clauses, 7.3 per cent. The comparable 1975 figures were higher, 7.1 and 8.3 per cent respectively.

The report was the second in two days that gave grounds for encouragement with respect to slowing inflation. The Labor Department reported Thursday that the Consumer Price Index rose by 0.4 per cent in September, a comparatively small increase.

The figures on collective bargaining were regarded as more significant because they were read as showing that this year's settlements would not by themselves cause inflation to accelerate next year.

Looking back at a heavy 1976 collective-bargaining schedule that included trucking, rubber, electrical equipment construction and autos, a deputy assistant director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, Jack Meyer, called the results "fairly neutral."

Price rises 'intolerable,' says Simon

Knight News Service

MIAMI — Despite the news that consumer prices recorded their smallest increase in seven months in September, U.S. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Friday that prices are still rising at "intolerable" rates.

Speaking at the University of Miami, Simon moved from a discussion of consumer prices to a political attack upon the economic proposals of Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, which he warned would overheat the economy and stimulate inflation.

"There is too much public emphasis on these month-to-month price statistics," Simon said. "We have to look at the long run. We know we have an inflation problem...when inflation is in the 5 to 6 per cent annual range, as the latest figures indicate, it's still intolerable."

"Two to 3 per cent annually is an acceptable level and we can reach that level, but it takes patience."

The 4 per cent September increase in the Consumer Price Index translates into an annual inflation rate of 4.9 per cent, compared with annual rates of up to 10.8 per cent corresponding to previous monthly consumer price increases this year.

Government economists have predicted that the final rate of inflation for 1976 will be in the 5 to 6 per cent range, compared to an annual inflation rate of 12.2 per cent recorded in 1974.

"We are in the midst of a balanced and healthy economic expansion," Simon said. "We have an opportunity to pursue moderate policies to reach a state of durable non-inflationary growth, but it requires patience to get back to the kind of economy we all need."

A Carter administration, he implied, wouldn't have the patience to reach that goal.

Simon described the Democratic Party platform as being full of "the most insidious suggestions I've ever heard," including mandatory national health insurance.

The Treasury secretary

blamed the "terrible effect of inflation on the excessive fiscal and monetary policies of the federal government."

Orders for durable goods down third straight month

WASHINGTON (AP) — New orders received by manufacturers of durable goods, a key indicator of consumer and business spending, declined for the third month in a row during September, the government reported Friday.

The Commerce Department said new orders slid $1.5 billion, or 3.1 per cent, to a seasonally adjusted level of $46.5 billion. That followed drops of one-tenth of 1 per cent in August and 3.5 per cent in July.

The department said most of the drop was attributable to the transportation-equipment sector, where activity was slowed by a strike against Ford Motor Co. But the department said that even excluding that sector, new orders were still off two-tenths of 1 per cent for September.

Durable goods are autos, home appliances, industrial machinery and other items with a life expectancy of three years or more. The latest report was a preliminary estimate which is subject to substantial later revision. The August decline, for example, was originally reported as 2.2 per cent.

Generally, the volume of new orders for durable goods indicate consumers' willingness to make extensive purchases. They also provide a clue as to whether business is buying the machinery and other facilities necessary to expand capacity and thus help create new jobs in the economy.

The key indicator of that business activity is the non-defense capital-goods sector. And there, the government said, new orders in September were up by $211 million, or 1.8 per cent, to $12 billion. That sector had sustained a 6.8 per cent drop in August.

Cervical cancer risk seen in second wives

NEW YORK (KNS)—A study at the Johns Hopkins School of Public Health has found a higher than normal risk of cervical cancer for a woman who is married to a man whose previous wife had cancer of the cervix.

The finding opens the way to cancer prevention, by singling out a group of women who run an unusually high risk of cervical cancer.

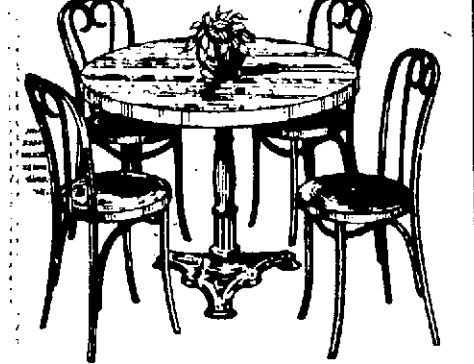

The study was reported by Dr. Irving I. Kessler to the American Public Health Association. Kessler hypothesized that some men pick up a cancer-causing factor from their first wives and transmit it to their present wives during intercourse.

"The likeliest candidate is genital herpes virus, or HSV2," Kessler said in a report on a long-term study of 5,000 women who have had cancer of the cervix in the past 20 years.

The study found an unusually high rate of cervical cancer in the wives of men who had been married to women who developed cancer of the cervix. Such women should be singled out for regular Pap tests, Kessler said. A Pap test can detect cervical cancer in its preliminary stages, when it is completely curable, he said.

MUSKRATS DIG IN AND TOWN'S HIGH AND DRY

LOAMI, Ill. (AP) — A state of emergency was declared in this central Illinois community of 800 Friday after muskrats burrowed holes in an earth reservoir and cut the town's water supply to a trickle.

"Those darn multiplying muskrats have caused the worst thing that's ever happened to us," said Henry Brown, president of the town board. "We've closed the grade school, telling the 150 kids to stay home and help their parents conserve water."

"We've asked our people to take all their laundry to nearby towns and to take shorter showers," said Brown. "They don't have to take group showers—we don't go for that."

Brown said an emergency meeting of the board had been called to decide about having water trucked in. "That's going to be expensive," he said.

There probably are several dozen muskrat families living in holes along the bank of a creek bordering the town reservoir, said Brown. The creek is nearly dry after a long drought, and the muskrats have been boring into the embankment surrounding the reservoir. The water has been draining through the muskrat holes and fissures created by their boring, Brown said.

The reservoir is the size of a football field and usually is 15 to 18 feet deep. It usually provides up to 60,000 gallons of water daily for the community, but there is only 3 feet of water in it now.

Brown said he received a call from the town water-processing plant Thursday that the water level was sinking below the intake pipes leading to it from the reservoir.

"We've shot the muskrats with pellet guns, and kids have trapped them, but we can't keep up with their multiplying," said Brown. "They dig down 16 to 18 feet to raise their young. And those holes were under part of the dirt bank. We can't get to it with heavy machinery. We're going to have to bypass the reservoir and try to pipe in water from somewhere else, and then maybe we can get at those muskrats, but it's going to cost us about $120,000."

A muskrat is an aquatic rodent about the size of a kitten with brown, glossy hair and a long, scaly tail. Brown said: "They aren't pretty things. We never thought they would cause us all this trouble. But this town is not going to be licked by a pack of rats; I can tell you that."

lie Broadcasting System, said 40 per cent thought Carter had won the debate, while 29 per cent judged Ford the victor. The rest called it a draw or said they had no opinion.

That compared with surveys that had rated Ford the winner of the first debate, Carter of the second.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, said the debates did wonders for his candidate. "The American people learned a lot about Jimmy Carter, and that's a big plus," he said.

James Baker, Ford's manager, said the debate "was clearly a win" for the President. So did Republican vice-presidential nominee Robert J. Dole.

"THIS WAS the payoff. This was the big banana," said Dole.

Ford tarried only a few minutes as he left the debate hall to say: "It went very well. I'm optimistic. I enjoyed it."

Unlike the President, Carter shook hands with dozens of persons as he left. "I want to congratulate all of you for still being awake," he told them, adding that he realized "some of the issues are very boring."

"He said no one knew how the remaining days of the campaign would affect the election. 'It has been a very wonderful experience,'" Carter said. "I've aged a lot in the last two years, but I'm looking forward to the next four."

Much of the material in the debate was familiar. But the confrontation covered some points that had not come up in the first two — items like abortion, gun control, civil rights, Carter's interview with Playboy magazine and the level of the campaign itself.

THE ECONOMIC litanies were familiar, Carter assailing the administration, declaring that he would give top priority to jobs for the unemployed. But even as he promised to deal with the problems of the cities, housing and national health insurance, the Democrat offered a word of caution. He said in his summation that it might be necessary to proceed slowly in dealing with some current problems.

For his part, Ford said: "I don't think America can go on a big spending spree with a whole lot of new programs that would add significantly to the federal budget."

The economy produced Carter's most pointed comments, after Ford said his record was solid despite a pause in the recovery from recession. The President said employment was up, inflation was down, consumer confidence was high and "the United States is leading the free world out of a recession that was serious a year, year and a half ago."

Carter replied: "With all due respect to President Ford, I think he ought to be ashamed of making that statement." The Democratic candidate said times were not good when 7½ million persons were out of work. "Anybody who says that the inflation rate is in good shape now ought to talk to the housewife," Carter added.

Among the new items on the debaters' agenda were these:

—Campaign: The candidates were asked whether a low-road campaign was turning off voters. Carter acknowledged "I've made some mistakes" during the race for the White House. He said his interview with Playboy, which included comments on lust and adultery in explicit language, was one of them. "In retrospect, from hindsight, I would not have given that interview if I had it to do over again," he said.

On the broader question, Carter said that unlike Ford's campaign, his would not include advertisements based on personal attacks on the character of his rival.

Ford said candidates inevitably used "rather graphic language, and I'm guilty of that." He said he would campaign during the next 10 days so as to stimulate voter participation in the Nov. 2 election.

—Abortion: Ford repeated his support for a constitutional amendment that would give the states authority to ban abortions. He said he also favored a constitutional amendment permitting voluntary prayer in public schools.

Carter said he opposed any amendment of the Constitution to deal with transient problems and therefore did not favor an antiabortion amendment although "I'm strongly against abortion."

—Gun control: Carter said he favored handgun registration to prohibit ownership by convicted criminals or persons proven incompetent to own a gun. He said those should be the only purposes and handguns the only weapons covered.

Ford said registration had not been a successful deterrent to crime. He said he opposed it and favored legislation to make sure that people who used guns in committing crimes went to jail. He noted that the administration did advocate a ban on small, cheap handguns called Saturday night specials.

—Supreme Court: Carter said he approved of action by the Supreme Court to modify past decisions on the rights of the accused so as to clarify technicalities and prevent the forced release of obviously guilty persons.

Ford said he was glad that the court was modifying the decade-old Miranda decision which requires police to warn arrested persons of their rights to remain silent and to have the services of an attorney. He said that decision made it difficult for police and law enforcement agencies to make sure criminals are "properly handled and sent to jail."

—Civil rights: Ford said he was proud of the administration's record in providing opportunities and promoting equality for blacks and other minorities. "I believe on the record that this administration has been responsive and we've carried out the law to the letter," he said.

"The description just made of this administration's record is hard to recognize," Carter countered. He said government programs have been inefficient and—in some cases, including housing—corrupt, leading to despair and a lack of hope among minorities.

"It doesn't require a dormant, minimum enforcement of the law," he said. Carter said the government must aggressively seek out and deal with inequities.

—Vice presidents: Carter said he never heard Ford claim that the prime consideration in the nomination of Dole was his ability to serve as President.

Ford said if that was so, Carter hadn't been listening. Then he criticized Sen. Walter F. Mondale, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, for saying that Gen. George Brown, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, wasn't fit to be a sewer commissioner. Ford repeated his defense of Brown in the face of controversy over the general's statement that Israel has been a military burden and said he was surprised at Mondale.

He said the Mondale comment was not the proper way to describe an "outstanding and heroic leader" like Brown. "I think Sen. Dole would show more good judgment," Ford said.

Ford, who had said before the debate that he thought he could pull the "political surprise of the century" by winning the election, could hardly wait to get his turn at a question that was put to Carter: Why has the Democrat's once-wide lead in the public opinion polls slipped to a narrow margin now?

CARTER SAID the only poll he followed was the one on election day, and "I think that we'll have good results."

Ford said, "I think the increase in the prospects as far as I'm concerned and the less favorable prospects for Gov. Carter reflect that Gov. Carter is inconsistent in many of the positions that he takes."

Then the President switched the answer from polls to economic history, saying Carter had talked of low unemployment in the 1950s without mentioning that the Korean War was a factor in that picture. Carter glared, arms folded, as Ford said:

"This administration doesn't believe the way to reduce unemployment is to go to war or to increase the number of people in the military."

The questions were put by a panel of newsmen, including Jack Nelson, Washington bureau chief of the Los Angeles Times; Robert Maynard of the Washington Post, and columnist Joseph Kraft. Barbara Walters of ABC News was the moderator of the debate, sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

THERE WAS little discussion of foreign policy. One item that did come up was the future of Yugoslavia, and Carter said he would take the "strongest possible measures" short of war should the Soviet Union invade that nation after the death of President Tito, 84 and ailing.

Carter said he considered it extremely unlikely that the Russians would take military action to gain a foothold in Yugoslavia and repeated his pledge that as president, he would "never go to war unless our own security were at stake."

Ford said he did not think a President ever should signal in advance what his decisions might be in the event of a foreign crisis. "It's far better to make certain that the other side doesn't know what you might do," he said.

But domestic matters were predominant.

Ford, asked once again to explain his role in limiting an early House investigation of Watergate, repeated that he told two congressional committees he did not act at the behest of former President Nixon. He said the Watergate special prosecutor saw no grounds for further investigation. "I think the matter is closed once and for all," Ford said.

ON FUTURE appointments to the Supreme Court, Carter said his selections to all judicial as well as diplomatic posts would be based strictly on

Ford signs bill to speed up flow of gas from Alaska

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford cleared up the last of the bills awaiting his action Friday, and among those signed was a bill to speed up the flow of natural gas from Alaska reserves.

He also approved an act setting down detailed policy guidelines for management of the national forest system and an amendment to food stamp legislation to give the states flexibility in the management of these programs. That bill also contains a guarantee of annual cost-of-living increases in supplemental security income benefits to the aged, blind and disabled.

Ford affixed his 66th veto to a bill aimed at clarifying the legal instruments through which the federal government acquires property and services and furnishes aid to local governments.

ANOTHER measure that Ford signed was the Water Resources Development Act, authorizing the construction, repair and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control and other purposes.

Ford said the passage of the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act should speed the flow of Alaska reserves to consumers in the lower 48 mainland states.

In Los Angeles, Harry Lepape, president of Pacific Lighting Gas Development Co., said his firm was "extraordinarily pleased" that Ford signed the controversial bill, SB 3521.

"It is particularly important to California's 20 million natural gas consumers," he said, explaining that a key amendment to the bill "will lower future gas costs to California consumers."

THE amendment, briefly opposed by Federal Energy Administration Director Frank Zaff, mandates that whichever of three competing pipelines is built in 1978, it will include a direct "Western leg" to the Pacific states in addition to the main trunk line to the Midwest.

Lepape said government figures who helped assure passage, included Gov. Brown, State Energy Director Richard Mauldin and the Public Utilities Commission, all of whom urged Ford to sign the measure.

The White House announced earlier his approval of a bill setting up new federal controls over the scandal-plagued system for inspecting grain export shipments.

DOUGLAS CRASH SUIT

ing to repair cargo-door defects, and the door subcontractor agreed a year later to pay more than $100 million in death settlements to victims' families.

IN addition to the $25 million judgment asked against the Times, McDonnell Douglas also sought "a full and complete retraction with the same prominence and distribution as the book review," according to Ray Deffrey, a company executive.

Deffrey said Friday evening in St. Louis that the review's circulation exceeded 1.4 million and that such distribution "has caused us to be held up to public hatred, scorn and ridicule."

Sherrill's review is pejorative, inflammatory and unsupported by the content of the books," Deffrey added.

THE book review by Sherrill was of two recent publications, "Destination Disaster," by London Sunday Times writers Paul Eddy, Elaine Potter and Bruce Page; and "The Last Nine Minutes," by freelance writer Moira Johnston.

James McDonnell,

chairman of the firm, singled out "Destination Disaster" for particular attention in the libel action.

"(It) particularly contains serious errors and makes hostile, unjustified accusations against the American air transport industry, our company and our executives and products," he said.

"This book not only does a serious disservice to our company but to the great creative industry of which we have long been an important part and to the public interest as well."

He said the Times review "went even further and falsely accuses us of things so outrageous and damaging that it constitutes, we believe, a clear case of libel."

NEITHER McDonnell nor Deffrey would specify what they found offensive or libelous in the 2,000-word Sherrill review, except that it alleged "dishonest and improper practices and mismanagement."

James Cooke, company spokesman in Los Angeles, said Friday all he knew of the suit was what was contained in a company press release.

In his review, which was included in the complaint, Sherrill said the firm sought "higher profits over safer equipment" and was allowed to do so by a "lethargic and politically motivated" Federal Aviation Agency.

At one point, Sherrill himself wrote: "McDonnell Douglas, builder of the DC10, knew that the door was defective and would likely blow out some day."

Sherrill claims that General Dynamics Convair, which built the door, and the FAA, which certified it, also "knew it" and let the door go, anyway.

HE GOES on to say that McDonnell Douglas had "proof" that the door was unsafe two years before but failed to act.

Toward the end of the review, Sherrill writes:

"One of the most repulsive aspects of the whole affair was that McDonnell Douglas had sought out the Turks and had pushed the DC10s at a price they couldn't refuse. Judging from the (London) Times' description of how the Turks operated big jets—some of the juiciest black humor you'll ever encounter—putting such a sophisticated plane in their hands was like selling a hair-trigger Colt .45 to a hopped-up teen-ager. But to Douglas, a sale was a sale."

Joust in fun

Medieval upheaval beats evil at LBSU

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Knights jousted on the campus green.
Merlin the Magician transmuted base metals to precious metals.

College officials were arrested and thrown in a dungeon. Some hapless students wound up in stocks to be publicly ridiculed.

IT HAPPENED Friday when Long Beach State University slipped back several centuries to the Middle Ages to celebrate its first Medieval Festival.

The university's biggest fall-semester event drew thousands of students and visitors.

Campus groups put up booths in the grassy area south of the Student Union.

The booths offered medieval services ranging from numerology readings to imprisoning wrongdoers, scoundrels and pirates for their evil deeds. (But evildoers could buy their way out of the dungeon. They had their choice of 30 cents or 30 minutes).

Merlin the Magician was Dr. Darwin L. Mayfield, university director of research, who transmuted an iron nail into copper and performed a modified version of the old Hindu rope trick.

In the Middle Ages, before psychology was invented, magic potions and elixirs were needed to get what you wanted, Mayfield explained.

"Anything that would explain the unexplainable was acceptable," he said.

The morality play "Vanity Fair" was enacted on the Village Stage, in which Faithful—a born-again Christian—is branded a heretic and condemned to death by a jury that included Evil, Flattery, Envy, Superstition and a bevy of other disagreeable characters.

BUT FAITHFUL got his reward after death by being whisked away to the heavenly gates in a makeshift paper chariot.

Singers wandered around the campus, performing romantic French songs and Gregorian chants.

For the sports-minded, there were jousts, pugil fights and fencing.

The day was ended by a medieval banquet in the University Union.

L.B. flu shot clinics listed

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A complete list of Long Beach clinics for influenza inoculations was announced Friday by Dr. Elton F. Blum, city health officer.

All clinics will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The vaccine to be given will protect against two forms of influenza—the A-New Jersey (swine flu) and the A-Victoria, a type already prevalent in many areas of the world.

Long Beach clinics, their addresses and dates they will be open follow:

Veterans Memorial Auditorium, Cedar Avenue and Broadway, Monday and Wednesday.

Bayshore Community Church, 5100 The Toledo, Monday and Friday.

Escuela de la Raza, 2600 E. Seventh St., Monday and Wednesday.

Houghton Park, 6301 Myrtle Ave., Monday and Wednesday.

Los Altos Library, 3614 Britton Drive, Wednesday.

Westside Facility Center, 2125 Santa Fe Ave., Wednesday and Friday.

California Recreation Center, 1550 California Ave., Thursday.

Senior Citizen Recreation Center, 350 E. Ocean Blvd., Friday.

St. Gregory's Episcopal Church, 6201 E. Willow St., Friday.

Vaccine will be given to persons 60 years old and older and chronically ill persons over three years old.

Persons aged 3 to 18 will require two injections four weeks apart. Two doses of vaccine are needed in this age group to induce proper protection against influenza.

Orange County Health officials have announced the following clinics:

Orange County Health Department, 645 N. Ross St., Santa Ana, 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m. daily except Tuesday, when the hours are 1-7 p.m.

Orange County Health Department Annex, 1011 S. East St., Anaheim, Fridays only from 8:30 a.m. to 11 a.m. and 1-4 p.m.

Huntington Beach Recreation Center, 1706 Orange St., Huntington Beach, Monday (Oct. 25), 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Los Alamitos Community Center, 10911 Oak St., Los Alamitos, Thursday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Buena Park Recreation Center, 8150 Knott Ave., Buena Park, Nov. 11, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Senior Citizens Club, 340 W. Commonwealth Ave., Fullerton, Nov. 4, 10 a.m. to noon.

Orangefair Mall, Harbor Boulevard at Orangefair Avenue, Fullerton, Friday (Oct. 29), 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

H. Louis Lake Citizens Center,

11300 Stanford Ave., Garden Grove, Nov. 6 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Nov. 10 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and Nov. 11 from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Assistance League Clubhouse, 10832 Trask Ave., Garden Grove, Nov. 17, Nov. 18 and Nov. 19, 9 a.m. to noon all three days.

Meanwhile, in Long Beach, Dr. Blum announced a clinic schedule for individuals 18 years and older for a vaccine that protects against the swine flu only.

All swine-flu clinics will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Locations and dates:
Dates are Oct. 30 and 31, Nov. 6 and 7 and Nov. 13 and 14.

Jefferson Junior High, 750 Euclid Ave.; Lindbergh Junior High, 1022 E. Market St.; Stanford Junior High, 5871 Los Arcos; Stephens Junior High, 1830 W. Columbia St.; and Washington Junior High, 1450 Cedar Ave.

City manager decision today

By CHARLES SUTTON
Staff Writer

The Long Beach City Council, sharply divided and facing one of its most crucial decisions of the decade, goes into extraordinary secret session today to choose a new city manager.

With five finalists from outside the city scheduled to undergo extensive questioning by the panel, the meeting is expected to run from 8 a.m. into the afternoon and possibly the evening.

BECAUSE it is a personnel meeting, it will be closed to the press and public, according to Mayor Tom Clark and City Atty. Leonard Putnam.

City officials appear to have gone to unusual lengths to assure the legality of the closed-door session.

Although the state's anti-secrecy law, the Brown Act, allows municipal bodies to consider city-manager appointments in special executive sessions, the Long Beach Municipal Code "makes no specific provision" for such sessions, Putnam said.

For that reason, Clark will call the meeting to order as an open session of the council. Then he'll entertain a motion to recess—after which, if the motion passes, the body will meet in secret to interview and discuss the respective candidates.

WITH THE council split over the candidacy of Acting City Manager Robert Creighton, whose virtual elimination from the race was disclosed last week, the panel could find itself in its first showdown of the day, with some members insisting that the meeting remain open.

Creighton, who has been holding down both the manager's job and his own job of assistant manager for the past four months, was interviewed at length by a recruiting firm hired to search for a new manager.

RUT HIS name is not among the five finalists. And it's that fact that has angered a number of council members—especially Wes Carroll Jr.

Carroll believes that Creighton not only has done an outstanding job in the past four months but is prime managerial timber.

Thus Creighton's name is not only expected to surface during the council's deliberations but could become the focal point of a bitter struggle on the panel.

Five council members—Clark, James Wilson, Renee Simon, Ernie Kell and Wallace Edgerton—have made it clear that they intend to respect the recruiting firm's early screening.

BUT CARROLL has indicated that he intends to challenge the firm's judgment.

He appears to have the support of the other three other members—Don Phillips, Russell Rubley and Eunice Sato.

In the meantime, all of the council members have studiously avoided mention of the five finalists, whose names and backgrounds were given to them Thursday and Friday.

(Most or all of the finalists are understood to be from California cities.)

Observers agreed that the council's choice will have a crucial bearing on the city's future.

AT FEW times in its history has the city faced so many critical decisions or experienced the shame of so many public probes into its municipal integrity.

Lakewood's mayor gets first aide ever

By BRAD ALTMAN
Staff Writer

Lakewood Mayor Jo Bennett has hired a part-time administrative assistant, marking the first time in the city's history an occupant of the office has had the assistance of a personal aide to help with city business.

Although the five-member Lakewood City Council has a full-time secretary, Mrs. Bennett said she believes city funding of aides for all council members "is perfectly possible" in the future.

"IF THE mayor's job were going to be done the way it should be done, it would be full-time," said Mrs. Bennett. The next best thing, she explained, is a personal staff assistant. "I believe in this concept and I need the help."

The aide is Thomas Silas, 25, a master's degree candidate in public administration at Long Beach State University.

Mrs. Bennett is using her own city council salary—$405 a month—to pay Silas about $4 an hour. He works an average of 10 hours a week and is receiving class credit.

"I'M VERY anxious to promote the aide idea to the council," Mrs. Bennett added. But, so far, she said, the council "is not in favor of it." Council members have told her they "fear the aides would be used politically."

But she said she didn't see "what difference that would make if each member had an aide."

Mrs. Bennett said if aides were hired for the entire council, one city department head has said he is worried that "an adversary role could develop between city employees and aides" resulting in the council assistants "accusing the staff of not doing their job."

Now the city administrator has the total resources of the city hall staff and because council members have no personal staff assistance, they must rely on the administrator's input.

WITH their own aides to conduct research, she said, council members could make better decisions.

During his first month on the job, Silas has attended the council meetings and started to work on studying various ordinances that Mrs. Bennett may ask the council to adopt.

He is researching pros and cons of regulating news rack locations, restricting ham radio operators and figuring out ways to give senior citizens discounts on utility bills.

BEFORE coming to Lakewood, Silas admits he "didn't know much" about the 84,000-resident city except that it has "a large shopping center."

Learning about the city's council-administrator form of government "has been a rewarding experience for me," he asserted.

Stovall named to head police investigations

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Long Beach police Capt. William F. Stovall Jr. Friday was appointed deputy chief in charge of investigative operations by Chief Ralph G. Kortz.

Stovall, promoted to captain just 11 months ago, is commander of the vice division and will take over his new post Nov. 1, according to Kortz.

Kortz, after a 90-minute meeting with Acting City Manager Robert Creighton, said, "Capt. Stovall is the best qualified man of the top four candidates because of his experience, training and character."

"The city manager supports my decision," he added.

The other finalists were Capt. Charles Clark, personnel division commander; Lt. Jerome Lance, planning division head, and Capt. Charles Ussery, night patrol commander.

Tax plan urged to fund welfare

Los Angeles County Supervisor Baxter Ward Friday proposed a detailed program to finance all health, education and welfare programs in the state.

Ward's seven-point program, presented to a joint Assembly and Senate tax reform committee meeting in Long Beach, calls for a statewide property tax.

Although he called the proposed tax a "State Resources Tax," under questioning from Assemblymen Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, and Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, he admitted it was an "essentially statewide property tax."

Ward also proposed establishment of two assessment rates for all property. Owner-occupied property would be taxed at 15 per cent of its fair market value and all other property at 30 per cent of the fair market value.

He indicated he believed this change would bring in the same amount of money as the present system but would not work the hardship on the homeowner that the present system does.

He also proposed limitations of one per cent on owner-occupied dwellings and 2 per cent on all other property and emphasized that all money from the state sales tax should be used exclusively for education.

His final proposals were for revision of personal income tax laws to eliminate all exemptions except medical expenses, cash charity donations and taxes and interest on owner's homes and similar revisions in the business tax laws.

Ward was one of a score of persons to appear before the committee.

Most of the others called for drastic reform in taxing and assessment procedures with particular emphasis on making them standard throughout the state.

Tree-planting slated at hospital

The public is invited to attend a Bicentennial tree-planting ceremony Monday as part of the Veteran's Day program at the Long Beach Veteran's Hospital.

The program begins at 10:30 a.m. and, according to hospital Director, E. J. Klag, will pay tribute to the 290 living honorees who earned the Medal of Honor for personal valor in combat.

Featured speakers will be Don Gary, president of the National Medal of Honor Society, and Klag. Admission and parking are free.

The ceremony will be held in front of the hospital at 5901 E.

Seventh St. Spectators are asked to use the East Seventh Street entrance to the hospital grounds.

Monday is a federal holiday and all federal offices will be closed. City and county offices, banks and businesses will, however, be open. They will celebrate Veteran's Day on Nov. 11.

Bonsai show is scheduled

Bon Suzuki, president of the Akebono Bonsai Society of Southern California, gives a last minute touch up to a 17-year-old Chinese Elm that will be exhibited during the group's first bonsai show at South Coast Botanic Garden Oct. 30-31. Suzuki, the country's leading expert in creation of the forest style bonsai, will give demonstrations each day on the various techniques of the art. Hours both days are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

GARDENING Club memos

Orchid Society

The South Coast Orchid Society, Inc. will hold its meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in the Wardlow Park Clubhouse, 3457 Stanbridge Ave.

Ron Norman, a private grower from San Bernardino, will show slides and speak on how to buy orchid seedlings with emphasis on quality, size and cost.

There will be orchids on display by the members plus a plant table and refreshments.

Garden Club

Members of the Long Beach Garden Club, Inc. will go to the Los Angeles County Arboretum and San Gabriel Valley Garden and Horticultural Society Rose Show by bus on Saturday, Nov. 6.

The bus will leave the parking lot behind the Glendale Federal Savings building and Bob's Big Boy, Bellflower Boulevard and Stearns, at 9 a.m. and return at 5 p.m.

Cost for the trip is $5 and everyone is asked to bring a picnic lunch. Reservations may be obtained through Cella McClish or Anne Cook, club members.

Garden Club

The Lakewood Garden Club will hold its annual Fall luncheon on Thursday at the Lakewood Youth Center, Woodruff Avenue and Arbor Road, Lakewood.

Sandy of Village Flowers of Seaport Village and Westminster Mall, will present a program on natural dried flower arrangements.

A boutique table of articles for holiday gift-giving including candy, jams, baked goods and plants will be open to all at 11:30 a.m. followed by the lunch.

Gardeners checklist

1. When Dahlias bloom themselves out, let the tops yellow off, then cut the stalk within a few inches of the ground. Let this dry out, lift a clump of tubers, wash them and let them dry before storing in a dry place for the winter. Wait until next spring before trying to separate the tubers in a clump.

2. Dormant spraying is especially effective now that pests are inactive and more easy to eliminate.

3. Pruning time is here. Get detailed instructions from your local nursery. Following your pruning, give your whole garden a thorough clean-up spray.

4. Azaleas and Rhododendrons will soon be available in local nurseries. They make lovely Christmas gift plants.

The dramatic tall flower stalk agave

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Some plants we see a second time remind us of the first time we saw it. It was Agave attenuata in bloom in a succulent-cacti garden on the dry side of the big island in Hawaii some years ago. The flower spike curved in a wide arc hanging downward.

The latter one we saw was in Santa Barbara a few years later, growing at one end of a planter box in front of a business store window. The four-inch diameter flowering stalk rose 12-feet, gradually tapering to a point.

The dramatically handsome stalk was covered with small bracts, the flowers a whitish gray-green. An unusual spike grew from the center of the rosette of wide leaves, abruptly pointed at the ends.

Gardeners can grow such plants in a succulent-cacti garden or as specimen plants in containers, but you must wait at least five years before the plants burgeon forth with those handsome flower stalks. The plants provide attractive foliage during the waiting period and are welcome container or garden plants.

Speaking of container plants, I'd like to share an experience I had Sept. 13.

No doubt you'll remember for sometime the exceptional rainy weather we had Sept. 10-11. We put out indoor house plants out in the rain for nearly a whole day. On Sept. 13, I borrowed three plants from a nursery to show at a lecture in Downey.

Borrowed plants are always checked for sufficient moisture before they are taken to a lecture to be displayed, but particularly to show them when explaining their special features and their culture care.

The plants were individually dunked in a bucket of water. Many bubbles surfaced to the top. All three plants bubbled like mad. They were taken out of the water when the bubbling stopped.

Here's the important fact to remember — all three of those container plants had been setting on pea gravel in the nursery, out in the rain all of the time.

Yet, the second day (Sept. 13), after the rains, the soil was not completely saturated. This means some container plants may still need more water than what those rainy days provided. If these plants had been setting in saucers, they may have gotten enough water.

Azaleas and rhododendrons are two desirable shrubs that particularly and critically need to be watered thoroughly. Gardeners who planned to water them but didn't because the fortunate rains came, may be in for a sad surprise.

Chances are those plants just didn't get enough deep watering from those rains. Check those plants for moisture content. An electronic moisture meter is a handy instrument to jab into the root ball to see if there is sufficient moisture in the root zone area.

Lack of sufficient water causes the root balls to gradually dry back into the center, and the plants die.

It's been a good life!

By RALPH HINMAN Jr.
Staff Writer

"You're darn tootin' it's been a good life!"

Retired Episcopal priest Robert E. Juergens paused briefly to vigorously puff new life into his pipe.

Today in retirement a vigorous 80, he had told of serving as chaplain of the Arthur Peterson American Legion post here and the Legion's 19th district while regularly "supplying" or substituting for ill or vacationing Episcopal ministers across the Southland.

His long and active life began in suburban Chicago before the turn of this century, he said. It was highlighted early on by finding a church — and a girl — he loved. Then came World War I navy service, long years "on the road" as a travelling salesman, World War II civilian service.

And at 51 the realization of a long-held dream — ordination to the ministry.

Now Fr. Juergens beamed beatifically through ascending smoke rings. "I've thoroughly enjoyed life. And the girl I married — in 1918 — is a wonderful girl!"

HE PULLED from his clerical black suit coat a stiffly formal card embossed with the White House Great Seal. "Got these congratulations from Mr. Ford on our 58th wedding anniversary last June. I'm on the Ford committee here in Long Beach, you know."

A lifelong Republican, "As my father was before me," Fr. Juergens was interviewed this week while he was hiking the downtown campaign trail here, passing out pamphlets extolling the Ford-Dole ticket.

Undaunted by the acting church editor's inability to reprint his political literature in these columns, Juergens was willing to recall some of the highlights in an eventful life he still is living to the hilt.

Born in River Forest, Ill., raised there and in adjoining Oak

Park, Juergens attended Oak Park High School, where in the course of a few years he would be followed by an aspiring young writer named Ernest Hemingway.

While a student there in 1910, fate dealt him a pair of winning cards. "Sitting across from me in English was this pretty girl, Alice Muther," he recalled.

AND, SECONDLY, "I had been raised in a church I didn't care for. When Alice took me to Easter morning Episcopal services in 1910, I found myself in the right church. Been there ever since."

He attended the University of Illinois and Northwestern University before enlisting in 1918. The young couple were married in 1918 while he was in navy "boot camp" at Great Lakes, Ill.

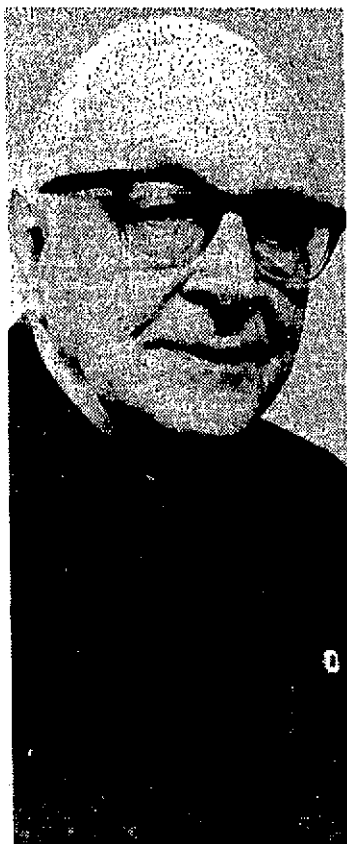

Still very happily wed, they are the parents of six, the grandparents and great-grandparents "of quite a flock."

Discharged in 1919 following service at a naval testing station near Washington, D.C., he returned to Oak Park, helped organize an American Legion post and began a 20-year stint as his church's Sunday School superintendent.

He was "immediately challenged" by the parish priest, Fr. Harold Holt, to enter an active ministry. In those years, extensive study under the tutelage of a priest and successful completion of an examination might substitute for seminary graduation.

IN THE 1920s, the Oak Park-based travelling salesman carried a line of wire boxes through a territory extending from the Atlantic seaboard to the Mississippi River, the Mason-Dixon line north to Canada. While plugging away at theological studies under Holt's direction.

During the Depression '30s, Juergens turned to construction work to support a growing family — while intensifying the academic activities and continuing as church school superintendent.

FR. JUERGENS

On Pearl Harbor Sunday, Dec. 7, 1941, when America plunged into World War II, "I was 45 and too old for a uniform." But there was civilian service available for a man interested in electronics. He trained as a radar technician and finished the war at Norton AAFB, near San Bernardino.

Transferring his papers from Chicago to the Diocese of Los Angeles, Juergens took the qualifying ministerial examination — with a satisfyingly high mark — and was ordained deacon in 1950.

HE WAS PRIESTED in 1951 at Needles, served parishes there, and in 17 years at Lancaster, Barstow, Porterville, Walnut Creek, California, Gila Bend and Clarksdale, Ariz. Following a 1968 retirement, the Juergens moved to Long Beach.

STILL ACTIVE in Legion affairs, he is — in addition to assignments mentioned earlier — a former state department chaplain. As a regular, a Long Beach minister quipped that Juergens was "the bishop of California Legiondom."

Fr. Juergens is noticeably reticent in discussing two subjects today of burning concern in his denomination. He insists, however, "the church will survive" — the ordination of women and drastic revisions in the revered 1928 Book of Common Prayer.

He hews to a male priesthood since "That is the Apostolic way." And "My personal preference is for the old book."

But in any case, "I will do what the Lord tells me..."

U.S. Church Perspectives

One of the first Roman Catholic priests involved in Charismatic renewal healing will be featured this week at an Orange County conference of the interdenominational Order of St. Luke the Physician.

He is Father Francis MacNutt, O.P., director of St. Louis' Merton House, a center dedicated to prayer for reconciliation and healing. He has been active in the healing ministry throughout the U.S. and South America.

Protestant and Catholic participants are scheduled to appear during the Monday-through-Thursday national and regional OSL conference in the Registry Hotel at Orange County.

At Bennett's barber shop in San Bernardino, getting a haircut also means hearing some Bible readings, a hymn or a prayer from the pastor-barbers.

"We feel we have a unique and very important ministry here," says the shop's operator, Pastor Cyrus Alvah Bennett of the Church of the Gospel Ministry.

"Many of our customers never darken the doors of a church. We are able to bring the Lord to them as we cut their hair."

No 'religion test' for candidates

"Just as a responsible Christian citizen would not use a religious test to rule out a candidate, so must it not be used to rule him/her in," writes Marjorie Hyer, religion news editor of the Washington Post.

POSITIVE THINKING

by Norman Vincent Peale

CREATIVE THINKING

Some time ago I talked at a luncheon meeting of a national organization of wholesalers and sat beside one of the leading figures in that industry. I knew him well as an old friend. But I was surprised to see him there because I knew he had suffered a heart attack. Yet he seemed in perfect health and happier than I remembered seeing him in recent years.

I was surprised a second time when the moment for the invocation came and the emcee called upon him. I was impressed by his invocation, every word of which came from the heart, displaying real sincerity and depth of belief.

As we talked during the luncheon I asked him, "Jim, how do you explain the fact that you seem so healthy and vital and dynamic? After your heart attack people said that you were out of commission, that you were all through."

"Perhaps I might have been," he replied. "But then I learned to think right, and as I began to practice right thinking, things changed for me. It all started with a line from the 139th Psalm: 'How precious also are thy thoughts unto me.'"

"WHEN THEY LAID me on my back in that hospital," he continued, "and told me that I would be there for a long time, you can imagine how despondent I was! Then one day I picked up a Bible I found on my night table and aimlessly looked through it.

"I hadn't read the Bible in years, and to my surprise it interested me. It gave me comfort and a sense of peace I had not known. That particular quotation started me trying to think the kind of thoughts I felt God wanted me to think. But I discovered my mind was blocked by a mass of unhealthy thoughts; it was full of resentment and tension.

"I had acquired bad habits of thinking and living and was a completely negative thinker. The conviction came that I just had to break these sick mental habits if I wanted to be well. And I was loaded down with anxiety, too. Perhaps that was my worst trouble.

"Well," he went on, "I just simply decided to throw out this whole mess of lousy thinking. I had a mental and spiritual housecleaning. I tossed out all my hates, my tensions, my negativism, my anxieties.

"I DID THIS by deciding I was through with all that stuff, and I meant it. And when you mean it things start happening. It wasn't easy and it took time, but I did a thorough job on myself. You can't imagine how healthy I've become." And he repeated the words, "How precious also are thy thoughts unto me."

Since he was obviously a healthy person, it would be difficult to dispute the efficiency of his treatment. Of course he had the best in medical care too, as he gratefully acknowledged, but it was the changed thinking that healed him.

Jim outlined a simple practice which helped him to change this condition. He called it the magic of creative thinking. It is simply the use of right thinking to permit healing spiritual power to surge through your mind, transmitting its health-giving effect to your whole being.

There is no easy religion or psychology. But I have found it very helpful to practice the simple procedures this prominent businessman worked out for himself:

— Get and hold the idea that you can improve your condition.

— Study yourself to determine how your unhealthy thinking may be effecting your physical wellbeing.

— Bring yourself to the point where you really want to break with your unhealthy thinking.

— Then make the break in your mind. You've got to mean it. Actually do it by saying, "I'm through with all that stuff."

— Ask God to help you, for you cannot do it yourself.

— Believe that God is helping you now, every day, all the way.

— Cooperate fully with your doctor, for this is a "God and the doctor" technique.

POSITHOUGHT FOR TODAY: Healthy thinking produces healthy feeling.

NEW YORK — It's the second time that Gen. George S. Brown, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, has riled American Jews. This time, his comments were in the realm of military opinion. Before, they were, from the facts available, objectively mistaken.

His latest comment that Israel is a military burden to the U.S. was sharply denounced this week by the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations, an umbrella group of 32 national religious and secular Jewish bodies.

It urged President Ford to censure Brown, calling his statement a "reckless and irresponsible" challenge to American foreign policy and its commitment to the security and survival of Israel.

Brown, at a Washington news conference held as a result of the furor, said he was "wholeheartedly" committed to protecting Israel's security. But he insisted that his point — that Israel was a burden — was correct from a narrow military view, in that Israel draws on U.S. equipment.

His reasoning, however, was sharply disputed in the Jewish reaction. Rabbi Walter Wurzburger, president of the Rabbinical Council of America, said Brown's statement "betrays dismal insensitivity to the vital security interests" of the United States itself.

THIS IS especially so, he added, "in the light of the broad consensus of American people that a strong Israel represents an important bastion for defense of democracy and the Free World, and, therefore, is indispensable to the strategic interests of the nation."

"We are particularly disturbed that the perceptions of the individual charged with the implementation of the national defense policy vary so radically from the elected commander-in-chief, the President of the United States. Such dichotomy imperils our very security."

Rabbi Wurzburger, like others, added that it was "not the first time Gen. Brown has been guilty of such mistatements."

The reference was to a 1974 speech by Brown at Duke University in which he said Jews own the banks and the newspaper in this country — remarks for which he later apologized after Ford reprimanded him.

At that time, numerous Jewish leaders called for Brown's removal.

Various studies have found false the claim that Jews dominate American banking or newspapers. But the notion has persisted since the Middle Ages when Jews were smalltime money lenders, drawn into it as necessary economic middlemen at a time when the church forbade Christians to lend money for interest.

PORTRAYAL OF Jews as controllers of money became part of anti-Semitic propaganda, reaching its virulent heights in Nazi Germany.

However, a survey made by the American Jewish Committee in 1973

of 25 of the nation's largest banks outside New York City showed that of 377 senior managers, one was Jewish. Of 3,027 persons in middle management, 38 were Jewish.

In heavily Jewish New York City, the same pattern prevailed. A 1967 study of New York banking executives found that only 4.4 per cent were Jewish, although about half of the city's college graduates — the pool from which banks normally would draw top employees — are Jewish.

The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, a Jewish service organization, found in a 1961 study of the eight largest New York City banks and of 844 officers with the rank of vice president or above that 30 were Jewish. Of 197 members of the banks' board of directors, only three were Jewish.

As for newspapers, a book-length study by a Washington Post staff member, Stephen Isaacs, found that of 1,748 daily newspapers in the U.S. in 1972, 3.1 per cent were owned by Jews. Jews, incidentally, make up about 3 per cent of the population.

The study found that most of the circulation of papers owned by Jews is in the Newhouse chain of newspapers. But few top editors are Jews. Of 800 members of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, the study found that fewer than 20 were Jewish.

Unification

NEW YORK — The average church member in 42 U.S. denominations contributed $137.09 to his church last year, an annual survey by the National Council of Churches shows.

Although the amount tops the $127.76 average of the year before in figures, it's actually less when inflationary factors are applied. Adjusted to the value of a 1967 dollar, the average 1974 contribution was $96.09, while the average contribution last year was down to $85.04.

Letters to the Religion Editor

Carter's 'visions'

Religion Editor:

Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter professes to be a "born again" Christian, a phrase that means so many things to so many people.

In his slick pronouncements on his even slicker TV and radio spots, Gov. Carter challenges one's imagination with his "visions" for the people of our nation.

Carter wants to heal the wounds. Carter wants to bring us together. Carter wants to end animosity among neighbors. Carter wants to do wonders and (expletive deleted) cucumbers on these PR spots. But listen again when he speaks at an ethnically pure rally.

Mr. Carter never stops reminding people of the poor judgments made by an unmedicated Nixon. He still is kicking at the remnants of the Nixon family pride. Carter encourages hate among people. And that hate can be manufactured into hateful perversity and it can be directed to anyone. If Carter can create anger, he can surely create aversion to the ideals of the real "born again" citizen.

In Sirach one reads: "Woe to craven hearts and drooping hands, to the sinner who treads a double path."

And again, "Let us fall into the hands of the Lord and not into the hands of men. For equal to his majesty is the mercy he shows."

President Ford joined many Americans in forgiving Mr. Nixon. Even a "born again" must know, "Compassionate and merciful is the Lord; he forgives sins, he saves in time of trouble."

Apostasy

Religion Editor:

I have missed your editorials the past two weeks. It seems to fill a need that makes the week for me.

I didn't pay a great deal of attention to Glenn Whitmore's letter on a very unpopular subject, that of Apostasy. The more I think about it now, the more sure I am that we owe him a vote of thanks for bringing the subject to our attention. Whether we like it or not, we are on the verge of apostasy. Christianity out of existence. We are about to become Christians in name only.

Apostasy has always been a dirty word to me because it denotes a rebellion or rejection of God's principles or teachings. It is also an attempt by mankind to not accept God's conditions for our salvation, coupled with an attempt to dictate the terms of our own salvation.

No man has more right to dictate the terms of our salvation than Christ who made it possible. What right do we have to dictate the terms of our salvation, when all we did was make it necessary by needing it.

Christ declared baptism by immersion to be the only way (Gal. 3:27, Mark 16:15-16, John 3:5 and Col. 2:12) to salvation. In the second century, man changed baptism from immersion to sprinkling, along with many other changes. In our day, changes are still going on: the accepting of abortion by some, the ordaining of women, and what about lottery and bingo as a way to raise funds?

Again I say thank you to Glenn Whitmore for opening our eyes to what could wipe out what is left of Christianity, and leave us with nothing but the name.

Ford, Carter hear

Special to The I.P.T.

NEW YORK — Leaders of four major religious groups this week called upon President Gerald Ford and Gov. Jimmy Carter to "repudiate appeals to religious bigotry" in the current election campaign.

Denounced by them were so-called "vote-Christian" drives in a number of Congressional districts that were said to be sponsored by extremists in both major political parties.

The four were New York Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore Jr.; Catholic Father Joseph O'Hare, editor-in-chief of the Jesuit order's magazine "America"; Dr. Arnold L. Olson, retiring president of the Evangelical Free Church of America; and Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs national director for the American Jewish Committee.

In a joint statement issued during a press conference at A.J.C.'s national headquarters here, the leaders pointed out that religious bigotry has remained "gratifyingly absent" from the Presidential race.

BUT, THEY continued, such appeals have "become alarmingly evident in a number of Congressional contests."

The statement called on both Ford and Carter, as leaders of their respective Republican and Democratic Parties, and on to regional, state and local committees of the two parties, to "reject forcefully any campaign appeals based on whatever religion candidates may profess."

Referred to by the leaders were election drives, reputedly in at least 30 Congressional districts, to elect "God-centered citizens" who will work to "rebuild" America as a "Christian republic." These districts were said to be in Arizona, Texas, Arkansas, Washington, D.C. and Virginia.

The four religious leaders said that underlying a "vote-Christian" drive is assumptions that "candidates for office are to be judged on grounds other than their political and civic qualification. And that non-Christian believers, non-believers or even Christians with a different religious commitment are less qualified, trustworthy or patriotic."

"These assumptions strike at the heart of the American democratic process, and even more fundamentally, at the principle of separation of church and state," they declared.

Ex-hair stylist now a part of country music

By JOE EDWARDS

NASHVILLE (AP) — Two years ago, Larry G. Hudson was one of the best hair stylists in the country. He owned two shops, employed eight persons and was making good money.

Now he's cutting records like he used to cut hair. And he says he's happier than he ever thought he could be and on the verge of becoming a country music star.

"But music was, and always will be, my first and all-consuming love," said Hudson, 27, also known as "Larry G."

He and his seven-piece band — you guessed it, they're called "The Styl-ists" — will soon be touring the West Coast, the Midwest and the Eastern Seaboard. His current single is "You Light Up My World."

If he's as successful at singing as he was at styling hair, country music will have a new star.

HE WON A Georgia hair-styling contest and was second among 7,000 other contestants in national competition in Pitts-burgh.

"I lost by one one point," he recalled. "It must have been a very minute details, a technical thing. Since I was from a small town, it was something for a country boy to go up there and win among all the city slickers. They made fun of the way I talked."

"I've not cut hair for two years, and I won't go back. I've not even renewed by license and that costs only $5 a year. I gave my tools to friends. When I quit, my friends told me I'd lost my mind."

He says he wasn't much of a singer at first.

have to do is to be honest with yourself. I was not a good singer when I started out. I spent two years studying other singers. I've picked the brains of every major artist I could find.

"I'm sincere. It's no front. I know where I'm at and where I want to go. Other people are more talented than I am, but none will outwork me."

"I believe I'm just now coming into my own. I'm a good entertainer, and working on being a good singer."

"I could never place myself above others. Everybody is kind of on

Review

New Philharmonic season

By BILL ARTHUR

The opening concert of the 1976-77 season of the Los Angeles Philharmonic in the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion Thursday night said a lot of things about the orchestra at this point in time.

A program of familiar works by Hindemith, Liszt and Dvorak reaffirmed the general conservatism of its pn repertoire. We'll have some John Cage this year (the Bicentennial does have some blessings), and Schoenberg's more-Wagnerian-than-Wagner "Gurrelieder," but not too much else in the way of novelties.

The performances, for their part, reaffirmed the steadily improving, though still quite variable, level of playing now maintained by the orchestra. The rendition of the Dvorak would be hard to beat anywhere, but that of the Hindemith disclosed familiar flaws in execution and interpretation.

On a more worldly front, the addition of two new series of concerts on Wednesdays and Saturdays confirmed the orchestra's almost unrivaled health at the box office. Tickets have been scarcer in recent seasons, and that probably won't change.

The evening did, however, leave one thing unsaid — the successor to Music Director Zubin Mehta.

The highly romanticized performance of Hindemith's "Mathis der Mahler" showed once again Mehta's proclivity for that style of music-making.

He approached the work almost as if it were a Mahlerian symphony. Contrasts in dynamics loomed large, almost bulbous at times. Tempos came and went with fussiness and exaggeration. Phrases soared, bent out of shape by grandiloquence.

It is this very kind of music-making that made the German composer go back to the Baroque style to find balance and moderation. No wonder

The performance of Liszt's Concerto No. 2 displayed another kind of exaggeration. Both Mehta and pianist Andre Watts clipped the piece's phrases down to abrupt sonic fragments, eliciting an impressively serious interpretation but tiring the ear with excessive effects. Here, too, tempos seemed arbitrary and disjointed.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: Begins a pleasantly uneventful year of normal progress, personal adaption to things as they are. Earning capacity expands as you remain busy with hobby sidelines as well as regular employment. Relationships pose no major problems, depend on the depth of your commitment. Today's natives are good mixers fluent in social action. Those born this year will be ambitious, choose a specialty early in life, build steadily toward important positions. Education should emphasize natural sciences.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Instead of listening to echoes of yesterday's incidents, get away and relax. You'll hear all that's important soon enough. Promise friends nothing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Today is good for making a personal inventory. Ask: What have I done for myself lately? Am I missing out on things I truly want yet never get around to?

Gemini (May 21-June 20): No matter how you feel, take stock of health. Write a check list: diet, exercise, hours of sleep, play offsetting work, etc. Set up a new improved schedule.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Friends have ideas for outings, fun, games. Join them. Resuming interrupted relationships serves a useful purpose if you understand a new basis for the tie.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Almost anything that happens now turns to your advantage if you accept both opportunity and personal responsibility. Pitch in, make proposals come true.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Temporarily, you may have to carry out work usually done by others. People overlook differences you see quickly. Use the information to advance yourself.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You're invited to share in many activities; discouraged from a few. Trust friends' judgment. You lay out a great deal of money, have nothing to show for it.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Selection of companions is important. Spending isn't an art-form, as what you're seeking isn't for sale. Express your feelings with complete candor.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): The week ahead is full of surprises. Planning rises from scattered thoughts. Tomorrow's beginning is going to be strenuous, so get extra rest.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Today is for renewing your energy. Do no more than was originally asked, let people fill in their own options. Romantic attraction gets encouragement.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Those who know you well say little or gently disagree, otherwise you have a successful time leading your crowd. Let everybody pick up his own tab.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel and speculation are neither favored nor likely to bring expected results. Healthy self-interest inclines doing extra to promote family welfare.

Market in broad decline

NEW YORK (AP) — Word of a sharp drop in orders for durable goods last month helped push the stock market into a broad decline Friday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks dropped 6.15 to 938.75 on the heels of a 9.97 loss Thursday.

For the week the average eked out a 1.75 gain, while most other indicators recorded small losses.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 5-2 margin in the daily tally of New York Stock Exchange issues.

Big Board volume totaled 17.87 million shares, off just a shade from 17.98 million on Thursday.

Standard & Poor's index of 300 industrials slipped .91 to 111.71, and the S&P 500-stock composite index was down .81 at 99.96.

The Dow fell some 6 points at the outset in a carryover of the selling that had set in on Thursday. After that it steadied, trimming its loss to about 2 points by noon.

Pension funds investing ignores small companies

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK — In doubt about the meaning of the "prudent man" standard of the 1974 retirement act, pension fund managers are investing cautiously and, it is claimed, starving small business.

This caution, investment sources say, has resulted in an even more pronounced funneling of funds into the very largest American corporations, accelerating a trend that may already have been under way.

As a result, top executives of corporations in the less-than-giant categories are complaining about difficulties in raising equity capital. Some pension consultants also are concerned about potential weakness of returns.

Involved in the issue are the country's ability to finance industry and keep the economy expanding.

Important but lesser issues are the smooth functioning of stock markets and the rate of return on pension funds.

THE PRUDENT man standard, restated in the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, requires trustees to use the same diligence in choosing fund investments as they would in managing their own affairs.

Because of confusion about the precise responsibilities imposed by the standard, some portfolio managers have applied such a restrictive definition that it permits investments in only the largest, most stable corporations.

In that way, they feel, they will not be liable to personal charges of imprudence.

Critics claim, however, that the cautious portfolio managers are mistakenly applying the standard to each and every investment rather than to portfolios as a whole. In doing so, it is argued, they encourage oligopolies.

In no well managed portfolio, they maintain, should the higher rewards of greater risk automatically be enjoined. The higher returns of selective investments in some smaller concerns often more than offset losses, they say.

"The prudent man rule should be clarified so as to be expressly applicable to a total portfolio of pension plan investments rather than to each individual investment," argues The Committee of Publicly Owned Companies.

The committee, formed in 1973 by chief executives, claims that the standard has intimidated institutional investors, that they have "taken refuge behind it," and that they have increasingly limited their investments.

...AND THE FOOT IN MOUTH AWARD TO BILLY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Reds have swept the 1976 World Series in four games over the New York Yankees, and now it's time to give out the Marv Throneberry awards for meritorious performance.

Jimmy The Greek Award, for poorest prediction: Sparky Anderson, Cincinnati manager, who said: "The Series will go to seven games." The daring forecast provoked this aside from Pete Rose: "What's Skip going to do? Bench half the team?"

Foot-in-Mouth Trophy, for choking on crow: Billy Martin, brash skipper of the Yankees, who, upon landing in Cincinnati the day before the Series, boasted: "Who's afraid of the Big Red Machine? The Yankees are better in seven positions. We will beat their butts off."

Marconi Award, for electronic futility: The Yankees' involved walkie-talkie spy-in-the-sky apparatus, which failed to note that Roy White should have been positioned 40 feet up the leftfield stands when Johnny Bench batted in the fourth game.

THROW IT 'N DUCK AWARD, for fielding genius: Grant Jackson, Yankees reliever, who speared Bench's blast with a falling, behind-the-back stab in the seventh inning of the third game, turning a sure hit into an easy out.

George Meany Award, for singing-while-you-loaf: Ken Holtzman, Yankee pitcher who had a 7-3 career edge over the Reds and won four games with Oakland's 1972-74 champions, passed over by Martin. "I don't care," Holtzman said. "They pay me a lot of dough. If they need me, they know where I am."

Willie Mays Trophy, for flying hats: Pete Rose, the Reds' scrapping third baseman. Everytime anybody looked, Pete was going one way, his hat the other. He has his own private hat-retriever.

Dr. Kildare Award, for defying pain: Johnny Bench, plagued by two bad shoulders all season and a head injury which affected his swing, rallying from a .234 season average to bat .533 and win a car as the Series' most valuable player.

GRIN-AND-BEAR-IT AWARD, for undeserved loyalty: The thousands of live baseball fans, jerked around by scheduling of night games to meet TV's prime time needs and subjected to bitter cold in near-freezing late October weather. Earmuffs and mittens should be given all of them.

Parry O'Brien Award, for longest toss: umpire Bruce Froemming, who threw Billy Martin out of the final game Thursday night — a 155-pound heave from the Yankees' dugout to the clubhouse.

Somebody-Up-There-Dislikes Me Award, for divine guidance: The Yankees, Billy Martin dedicated the Yankees' season to his idol, the late Casey Stengel, and said: "Ol' Case is watching from somewhere." Yankee owner George Steinbrenner took a more realistic step in having his good friend, Bishop Sheen, fly in from Orlando for the fourth game. The Yankees still lost.

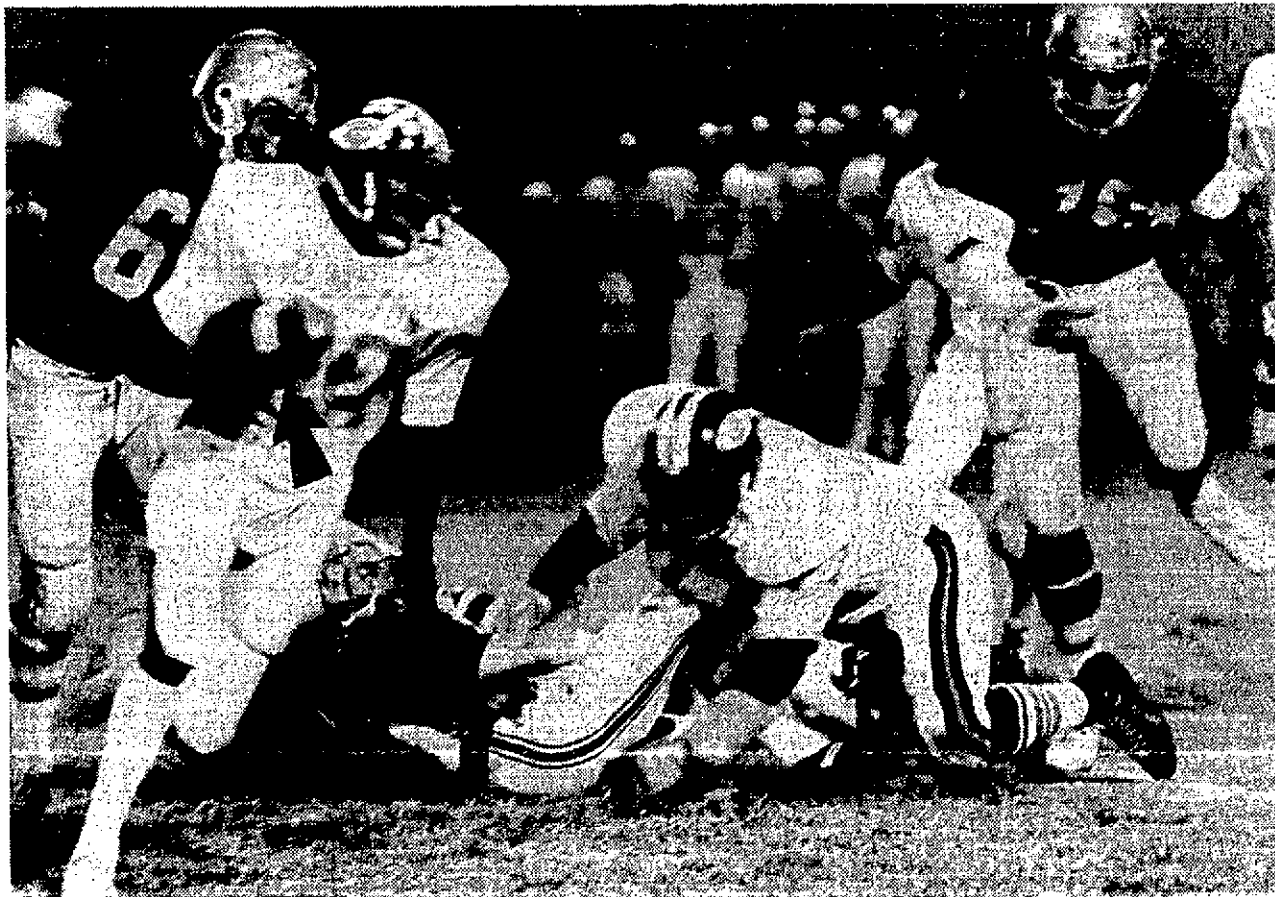

Touch Every Base Award, for political opportunism: President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter, in New York for the Al Smith dinner, didn't miss an opportunity to call the stadium and congratulate the winning Reds. Both knew if they could collar the baseball vote the election would be a cinch. However, the most avid of presidential phone callers was Richard Nixon, and look what happened to him.

Jordan High's football team must have thought it was on a treadmill Friday night — going nowhere in a hurry.

The Panthers ran off 14 more plays than Wilson, had a 17-11 advantage in first downs, gained 10 more yards in total offense — yet lost by three touchdowns.

If not Wilson's most artistic showing of the season, at least it was convincing, a 21-0 win that not only spoiled Jordan's homecoming but, more important, advanced the Bruins to 2-0 in the Moore League.

All three Wilson touchdowns came in the first half as Mike

Lakewood thrown for loss by Lonon

By PAUL McLEOD
Staff Writer

"Oh, yes!" sighed relieved Poly football coach Gene Noji. "You can put this in capital letters. This was a BIG win."

Senior quarterback Don Lonon threw for 188 yards and one touchdown and Poly's defense allowed Lakewood only 62 yards rushing Friday night as the Jackrabbits shut out the Lancers, 24-0, before 4,000 spectators at Veterans Stadium to level both teams' Moore League records to 1-1.

Noji was the happiest of the Hares following the contest because his team, after winning its first three games, was in a two-game tailspin when it took the field against the Lancers.

"This is the best game we've played all year," said a beaming Noji. "We went into it knowing we couldn't afford to lose another game. It's still tight. It's anyone's race."

Poly controlled the game from the opening kickoff, marching 55 yards on the first series, from its own 38 to the Lancer seven where Flemmer Clark booted a 24-yard field goal.

Poly added touchdowns on a 27-yard Lonon-to-Andre Tyler pass, and on runs of nine yards by vella Ward and a one yarder by Lonon.

Lonon was sensational through the air, connecting on one pattern after another with little resistance from the Lancers. He hit 12-of-19 attempts (63.2 per cent). Of the seven passes he missed, two were dropped and three occurred in the final 10 minutes when the Jackrabbits were leading 17-0 and marching to their final score.

During one stretch, from the final eight minutes of the second quarter to the 10-minute mark of the fourth quarter, Lonon completed seven consecutive passes totaling 101 yards.

Tyler was equally impressive, hauling in nine passes for 149 yards and one touchdown. Lonon went to his No. 1 receiver for gains of 31, 27, 18 and 21 yards. Lonon was sacked only once.

"We knew we could pass against Lakewood if we got good protection and blocking from our linemen," Noji said.

Poly was hit with 10 penalties — eight in the second half — for 113 yards. Lakewood was caught only twice, for 20 yards.

Millikan sustains 'Minor' blitz, 28-0

By GARY ELLIS
Staff Writer

When it rains, it pours. Dick DeHaven and his Rams were soaked — and shut out — as Compton defeated Millikan for the first time in six Moore League meetings, 28-0, Friday night before a homecoming turnout of 6,000 at Millikan High.

Millikan, hampered by early mistakes and penalties, never got untracked as Compton ran its league record to 2-0.

"It was a long time coming," said happy Compton coach Ted Williams. "We didn't expect to hold them that well."

The Tarbabes boasted a tough defense — and tailback Darryl Minor.

Minor was spectacular. He finished the evening with 149 yards in 16 carries, a 9.3 average, and scored two touchdowns. The swift runner also caught two passes for 22 yards and completed one of two passes for 45 yards.

In the first half Minor was the entire offense. He ran for both his touchdowns, one a brilliant 83-yard effort, and gained 116 yards on seven carries, a 16.6 average.

"I think we lost all our confidence," said a dejected DeHaven. "We moved the ball but couldn't score."

It was the second consecutive game in which the Rams' offense could not generate a touchdown. Last week, against Wilson, the only touchdown came on a punt return.

Millikan was held to 58 net yards rushing, although that includes a minus-36 yards on a poor center snap. The Rams' deepest penetration was to the Compton 11 in the final two minutes of the contest.

UCLA counts on Coulter for relief against Cal

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

BERKELEY — When UCLA's defense takes the field against California this afternoon at 1:30, Michael Coulter will be in his customary position, at the elbow of defensive coordinator Dick Toney on the sideline, his eyes riveted on Pat Schmidt.

Coulter is Schmidt's relief at free safety. Yet the 6-0, 175-pound junior can hardly be classified as a second-string performer when he is tied with teammate Harold Hardin for the Pacific-8 Conference interception lead with four.

MIKE COULTER

who has 22 catches for 201 yards.

WITH strong performances against Stanford (five interceptions) and Washington State (six), Coulter believes the Bruin defense is on schedule for California.

"We're more flexible with our coverages than we were last year or even earlier this season. We're disguising them better and, when a quarterback is forced to audibize two or three times at the line of scrimmage, the better our chances for an interception."

The only part of football Michael relishes more than an interception is a lengthy punt return. He's averaged 18.6 yards on five punts, the longest 45 yards.

"I had one for 82 yards and a touchdown called back," he said with a forlorn look. "We're putting a stronger emphasis on punt returns this year. It's a good feeling to give the offense good field position and let people like Jeff (Dankworth), Wendell (Tyler), Theotis (Brown) and Frank (Corral) become aggressors.

"It's also great to have someone like Severn Reece back there with you on punt returns, knowing he'll unload on the first guy downfield. You just want to break a long one for a guy like Frank Stephens, who's probably tired from being on the field with the defense but still comes back to throw a block."

Tyler and Coulter were all-L.A. City teammates at Crenshaw High, Wendell the elusive scatback and Michael a wide receiver who also played in the secondary.

"Naturally, everybody keyed on Wendell so I had a lot of 80 and 70-yard reverses for touchdowns. That took the load off him. Wendell was part of the reason I came to UCLA."

Coulter led the freshman team in receiving but jumped to defense when UCLA suffered heavy losses in the secondary through graduation.

"The biggest transition was the contact. As a receiver you took some hits but on defense it was hit, hit, hit every play. I learned to play better than my weight."

Coulter, who says his toughest critic is his mother, was born in Texarkana, Ark.

When Michael was starting at Crenshaw, his mother would mail newspaper clippings to the relatives.

"My cousin, Gralyn Wyatt, plays for Texas. We sort of got to know one another through our clippings. Now we see each other on national TV." The writeups have been a bit one-sided in Wyatt's favor the past few seasons, but Coulter is rapidly changing that. When you lead the Pacific-8 in interceptions, no one asks or cares whether you're first-string or not.

HE picked up two of those thefts in the 62-3 rout of Washington State last week and hopes to add to his total at the expense of the Golden Bears today. A team-oriented player, Coulter doesn't believe he should be starting because of his interceptions.

"Pat is more experienced and a good player," he said after a brief workout Friday. "Actually, he's partly responsible for my success, along with coach Toney. I've just been fortunate to be in the right places.

"Somebody has to be second string," he continued, "and my only concern is being able to contribute. Pat and the coaches have confidence that there'll be no letdown when I get in there. We work well together."

It isn't as if the only playing time Coulter sees is when Schmidt tires. Probably no Bruin will have more opportunities to determine today's outcome than the handsome sociology major.

"I'm also on the kickoff and punt return teams. I back up Frank Corral on kickoffs and Don Pederson as holder on field goals and extra points."

FREE safety is Coulter's forte, though, and he believes he's actually better prepared coming off the bench than if he started.

"Being on the sideline gives me an edge right off the top. I can see the overall picture, what Pat's doing and what the other team is doing. With coach Toney there to answer questions, it's like a classroom."

"For Pat, it's an on-the-spot thing. He can't make the wrong call because it's a now-or-never situation. There's a lot of pressure on him."

The thought of trying to defend against the nation's No. 2 passer in Cal quarterback Joe Roth (538) and a lightning-quick receiver like Wesley Walker (28.4-yard average) has been on Coulter's mind all week. But some of his concern was eased late Friday when it was determined Roth and Walker will be sidelined because of injuries.

Replacing Roth will be senior Fred Besana.

"It's Fred's game," said Bears head coach Mike White. "I'm sure he will do a fine job, he's a good, high-percentage passer."

The Bears' No. 2 receiver is George Freitas.

St. Paul slips by Servite

Swordsmen rally for 28-22 win

By DAVID FERRELL
Staff Writer

When Servite High traveled to St. Paul Friday night for a battle of top-rated defensive teams, it was the offense that dominated play.

At times, even the defense was "offensive."

But after a rash of mistakes and missed opportunities, St. Paul clinched a 28-22 win on a 59-yard pass from Tim Cowan to Mike Gallegos with 7:04 remaining.

Even then, it was a Servite error which allowed the winning score.

"Wide open. I was wide open," Gallegos said after his post pattern put St. Paul on top of the Angelus League with a 2-0 league record and a 5-1 over-all mark. Servite is 1-1 in league and 5-1 on the season.

For a while, though, it looked like Servite quarterback Pat Carreon would wear the hero's robe when he brought the Friars back from a 14-0 halftime deficit and forged a 22-21 lead with 8:40 remaining.

Servite, No. 3-ranked in the CIF 4-A, took over the ball on its own 29-yard line trailing 21-14 in the third quarter and marched to the St. Paul nine in 13 plays. From there, Carreon plunged one yard for the score, then cut inside right tackle for a two-point conversion.

St. Paul, ninth-ranked, could have put the game away in the first half, but failed to capitalize on Servite errors.

On the opening drive, Carreon fumbled the second snap and St. Paul's Ralph Aranda recovered on the Servite 27-yard line. Four plays later, Cowan scored for St. Paul from six yards out, his first of three touchdowns.

Carreon fumbled again after the next kickoff, but St. Paul could not score from 43 yards out.

The Swordsmen did score in the second quarter on an eight-play drive from the Servite 29. Cowan went over from the one.

The Friars tied the score in the third quarter on a three-yard pass from Carreon to Ron Garretson and a nine-yard run by Leonard Altavilla, who led the teams rushing with 100 yards on 22 carries.

SUBURBAN

Glenn 7, Neff 7
Eagles' Russell Pasket and Trojans' Lance Ackerson had three-yard touchdown runs in second quarter to account for only scoring. Neff failed to win for the first time in four Suburban League outings while Glenn improved to 1-2-1. Glenn's Joe Strescher (40 yards) and Neff's Jim Figueroa (45) each missed a field goal in the final minute. Quarterback Ackerson completed 10-of-23 passes for 211 yards.

Bellflower 14, Mayfair 7
Arlo Gates rushed for two touchdowns, the second with 1:45 to play, to lead Bellflower. Mayfair got on the board with 43 seconds remaining when Bill Blinger caught an eight-yard touchdown pass from Rick Dillie. The score was set up by a pass interference penalty that gave the Monarchs the ball on the eight. Gates' first TD came four minutes gone after Mayfair had fumbled away the opening kickoff. His second score capped a four-play drive following a Gary McCready interception.

Bellflower scoring: Gates 2 (8, 7 run). PAT: Marquez (kick).
Mayfair scoring: Blinger 8 pass from Dillie. PAT: Led (kick).

Edison 22, Westminster 15
The teams traded 80-yard TD drives in the second quarter, Edison taking an 8-7 lead with a two-point conversion. Westminster took a 9-8 lead by notching a safety with 10:38 to play in the third quarter. Edison stretched its advantage to 16-9 opening the final period, saw its lead cut to one point, then put the game on ice with 28 seconds remaining with a 63-yard drive: Doug Boswell ran for 132 yards on 20 carries and Steve Rakhsani completed 7 of 15 passes for 108 yards for Edison. Roy Cano collected 84 rushing yards for Westminster.

Edison scoring: Rakhsani 2 (1, 1 run), Cano 6 pass from Rakhsani. PAT: Sherard pass from Rakhsani. Rakhsani (run).
Westminster scoring: Siemens (3 pass from Slater), Bishop (15 pass from Slater), Rakhsani (tackled in end zone). PAT: Lairson (kick).

La Mirada 7, Schurr 2
La Mirada drove 55 yards in six plays to score with 3:51 remaining in the game to earn the win. Steve Gerson plunged in from the two for the only touchdown of the game. Gerson also intercepted a pair of passes from his defensive cornerback position. Schurr's only score came late in the third quarter when La Mirada's center snapped the ball out of the end zone on an attempted punt.

Yankees' battle cry: 'Wait'll next year'
NEW YORK (AP) — "I was just hoping they didn't send the Babe up there," Cincinnati pitcher Gary Nolan said after winning the final game of the World Series.
No, the New York Yankees don't have any more Babes, or Lous or Joltin' Joes or Yogis either. But they do have a bunch of pretty good ballplayers. . . Thurman and Chris and Catfish and Graig and even a Mickey (Rivers, not Mantle).
"We're on our way," said owner George Steinbrenner. "The Reds have a great team. They had World Series experience. Next year we'll be back and we'll have that experience, also. I'm not allying for our team — they met a better team and got beat."
But manager Billy Martin, still refusing to admit the Reds are a better team, thought the Yankees may have tried too hard.
"Being in the World Series before had to help them (the Reds)," he said. "They were a little more relaxed than our guys. We're a better ballclub than we showed. All year we kept talking of pride and finally got the Yankees where they belong — back on top. It hurts my pride because we're too good to be beaten in four games by anybody."

Bengals to start Clark vs. Oilers
The Bengals hope the move will provide the team with the running punch it needs to counteract the Oilers' 3-4 defense, which sports three line-men and four linebackers.

SAN GABRIEL VALLEY

Downey 16, Lynwood 6
Downey exploded for two fourth-quarter touchdowns to win its first league game and hand Lynwood its initial loss. Marty Bergdahl scored on a two-yard run with 11:57 to play, and Steve Moonagian caught a 45-yard bomb from Brad Risser to tie the contest. Anthony Stevelli threw 59 yards to Eric Venson for Lynwood's only points.

LBCC, Bakersfield renew Metro feud

By PAUL MCLEOD
Staff Writer

BAKERSFIELD — Coach Marty Shaughnessy knows there's no tomorrow for his Long Beach City College football team. He just hopes his freshmen-laden club realizes it.

"I hope that our younger players now know what it is to play in the Metropolitan Conference," Shaughnessy said following last week's 35-26 loss to El Camino. "It's going to be like that every week."

Third-rated Bakersfield (4-1 over-all, 1-0 conference) is the opposition tonight

Bakersfield's Memorial Stadium will resemble a battleground.

Because of the nature of the rivalry between the schools, the Renegades expect a crowd in excess of 17,000 people for the 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Long Beach holds the distinction of being the only team with back-to-back winners against the 'Gades in this decade (in 1972 and '73). Bakersfield has won the past two meetings, and is a heavy favorite to make it three in a row tonight.

NORSE NOTES — Metro officials refused to act on the Long Beach-El Camino helmet-swinging melee that occurred with 20 seconds remaining in the LBCC-Warrior game and referred the matter to the schools for in-house discipline. No action was taken at Long Beach. Corrected statistics: El Camino rushing—388 yards, passing—157 yards, net—545 yards. When Bakersfield and Long Beach meet it's usually a break here or there that determines the winner. For example, in 1973 Long Beach prevailed, 38-35, in the last minute of play; in '74 Bakersfield rallied for a last minute 35-31 win, and last year the 'Gades won, 35-28. Bakersfield leads the series, 22-11. The Vikings' leading ground gainer, Charlie White, suffering bruised ribs, is "possible" for tonight's game. Unavailable will be running backs Andy Gray, Scott Brockman and Ardie Hargrove. Backup quarterback Greg Hopkins will get a chance on "two or three tries to see what he can do," according to Shaughnessy. Hopkins lost his starting berth to Ramon Samoa early in the year. The field has been narrowed to 11 schools for the "Eastern" representative to the Jr. Rose Bowl. In contention are Mt. Hood, Ore.; Ellsworth, Iowa; Navarro, Tex.; Rochester Minn.; Wesley, Del.; Hutchinson, Kans.; N.W. Miss.; Joliet, Ill.; Golden Valley Lutheran (Minn.); Jones County, Miss., and Minnesota Technical College, Crookston.

for the Vikings (2-3 over-all, 1-1 conference), who are in a must-win position if they're to keep alive any shot at the conference crown.

The outcome will be decided quickly in favor of the host, though, if Long Beach plays like it did last week against El Camino, or three weeks ago in a last-second, 23-21 loss to Cerritos.

On the other hand, if the Viking team that takes the field resembles the one which stumped defending national champion Orange Coast, 24-14, or upset defending Metro champ Valley, 19-18,

Cerritos, unbeaten Mt. San Antonio meet

By DAVE WIELENGA
Staff Writer

Mt. San Antonio College, California's only undefeated junior college team among 60 large-division schools, invades Cerritos College Stadium tonight at 7:30 against a Falcon team that is winless in two South Coast Conference outings.

But if the hex which has plagued top-ranked teams continues, the outcome of

Johnson. "It can happen when a team becomes content or overconfident."

Johnson is not ascribing either of those qualities to the Mounties, a team which placed last in the SCC in 1975, was expected to occupy the same position this year, and has never finished higher than fourth in the seven-year history of the conference.

"They showed how tough they are last week when they trailed Grossmont, 24-12, with 6½ minutes to play and came back to win, 25-24," Johnson said. "They've not had great success in the conference before, although they've always been tough for us. It's a matter of getting the players."

This year Mt. San Antonio has the players — in all positions — and Johnson describes it as one of the state's most well-balanced teams.

Quarterback Brian Bethke has completed more than 63 per cent of his passes and rushed for 53.8 yards per game. Mike Hill is the club's top ground gainer with 498 yards and a 4.6 per-carry average.

However, the Mounties have enjoyed one advantage that other teams — particularly Cerritos — have not. All six of their games have been at home, while the Falcons will be hosting only their second game of the year.

tonight's game may not be so easily predicted.

Upsets have been the name of the game in 1976. Fullerton, Golden West and San Diego Mesa are three examples of teams which have risen to the top of the rankings only to be knocked back down among the also-rans.

Oregon State tests USC with frosh quarterback

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

Scott Richardson is an 18-year-old freshman quarterback and admittedly "a little nervous" going into Oregon State's Pacific-8 Conference football game with USC today at 1:30 p.m. in the Coliseum.

After all, Richardson's last starting assignment was in the 1975 Idaho state high school championship game in which he led Borah High of Boise to a 28-14 victory over Highland of Pocatello.

But that game may have demonstrated some of the qualities Oregon State coach Craig Fertig likes about Richardson.

"I separated my shoulder in the first half, but they taped me up at halftime and I played the rest of the game," says Richardson. "My entire chest area was so heavily taped I could barely move my left shoulder."

Richardson laughs. "We didn't run many option plays in the second half."

He wore a sling on his left arm for five weeks.

Richardson demonstrated true grit again last week when Beaver starter Kyle Grossart sustained a broken shoulder, the third Oregon State starter to be sidelined for the season.

The Babe from Boise came on to lead a 65-yard touchdown drive that upended heavily-favored Cal, 10-9.

"I think the key play was a 20-yard pass on third and 10 at Cal's 40," says Richardson. "It kept us going and the crowd got with us and picked us up."

After a couple of running plays, Cal was called for interference on a Richardson pass into the end zone.

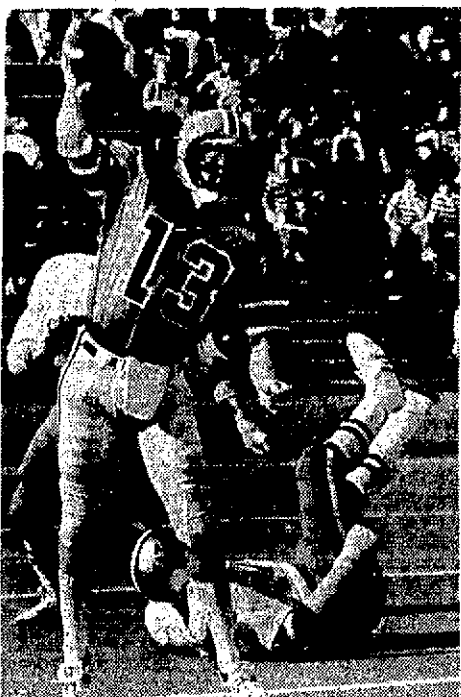

"I got knocked down on the play, but I still had a good view of the penalty call," he says. "There was no doubt about it."

From the one, Oregon State scored the winning touchdown.

"It was a big upset and people in Corvallis got pretty excited," says Richardson.

Now Richardson comes into the Coliseum with the Beavers 28-point underdogs.

"I've watched films of USC's five games," he says. "USC has good athletes in the secondary, but they are by no means the best defensive backs we've faced."

FROSH QB ... OSU's Richardson

Fertig and quarterback coach Rob Adolph, a former Trojan, have worked all week preparing Richardson for today's assignment.

"They know USC's game plan pretty well from their experience at the school," says Richardson. "I hope I can fulfill my part of our game plan."

At 18, it's an exciting, new world for Scott Richardson.

49ers' new game plan: 'Think Lamar, forget San Jose State'

By JIM MCCORMACK
Staff Writer

BEAMONT, Tex. — By tonight, says Julius Mathis, last week's 34-7 loss to San Jose State will be all but forgotten.

"We spent Monday feeling sorry for ourselves, but as the week progressed, we began concentrating more and more on Lamar," says Mathis.

Lamar is Lamar University, the host for tonight's 5:30 (PDT) intercollegiate encounter in Cardinal Stadium. The game can be heard on KFOX-AM (1280) and KKOP-FM (93.5).

"The loss to San Jose is still in the back of our minds," admits Julius, the 49ers' starting free safety.

"But we can't dwell on it," continues Mathis.

"San Jose has probably kept us from winning the Pacific Coast Athletic Association championship, but we can't let it keep us from having a good season. We have five games left. If we win them all, we'll be 10-1. That's what we're all shooting for now."

As a free safety, Mathis' primary assignments are "the deep middle" on passes and "cleaning up" on all running plays.

He anticipates extensive janitorial duty tonight.

"They're more of a running team," Mathis says of Lamar. "In the films I've seen, they throw only when they're behind."

From a statistical standpoint, that puts Mathis in a good spot. He is tied with teammate Greg Barnes for the PCAA lead in interceptions. Each has three.

If he had his choice, Mathis would prefer to meet a team with a balanced offense.

"Then you have to play them honest," says Mathis. "With a team like Lamar your emphasis is to stop the run, and, if you're not careful, you can really get hurt by the pass."

Like many of his teammates, Mathis is playing a position different than the one he occupied in junior college.

At L.A. Valley, Mathis was a quarterback as a freshman and a wide receiver as a sophomore.

Mathis, who prepped at L.A. Dorsey High, played corner and free safety as a junior at LBSU and has been firmly entrenched at free safety since the beginning of spring practice.

"I'd always been an offensive player until I came here," says Mathis, "but I feel I'm a defensive player now. I enjoy free safety, probably more than any position I've played."

Mathis says that the 49ers may do a little "scoreboard watching" tonight, looking at their own score.

"We haven't talked about a shutout," says Mathis, "but, if things go well early in the game, we might think about it."

They'll need it to climb among national defensive leaders. The 49ers have, at various times, ranked among the country's best in total defense, defense against the run and points allowed.

That was before the loss to San Jose.

"We enjoyed seeing our names on those lists," says Mathis, "but the San Jose loss changed all that. He can get back on them, though, if we do a good job in our last five games."

Stained Glass faces 5 rivals today at S'Anita

Stained Glass will carry high weight of 122 pounds when he vies with five rivals in today's $32,300 Alibhai Handicap for three-year-olds at Santa Anita.

To be conducted at a mile and one-sixteenth, today's running of the Alibhai Handicap for three-year-olds at Santa Anita.

Given a lengthy rest following his third-place finish to Bold Forbes last February, the Joseph Manzi-trained runner made his return to racing on Oct. 10 when he narrowly missed in a six-furlong allowance prep.

Jockey Darrell McHargue will ride Stained Glass.

Shouldering second high weight of 120 pounds will be Wood Green with Laffit Pincay aboard.

Thunder Papa will pack

one pound less, 119, with John Ishihara in the irons. Weighted at 117, with Ismael Valenzuela up, Classy Surgeon was runner-up to Telly's Pop in the California Derby earlier this year. Misty Stone will be making his stakes debut under 113 pounds and jockey Frank Olivares.

Completing the field is Restless Heritage, who will lug 112 pounds.

Jockey Francisco Mena substituted for flu-ridden Don Pierce on Early Cotton to win the featured Primerio Purse Friday.

Saving ground throughout the 1-1/8-mile turf race, Early Cotton moved from far back to third on the last turn, then broke loose in mid-stretch to post a 2 1/2-length victory over favorite Rego Tello.

10 vie in Gold Cup

NEW YORK (AP) — The $300,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup today at Belmont Park has lost the great Forego to injury but has added suspense with what is now considered a wide-open run at the first prize of more than $200,000.

The early favorite is a brilliant 3-year-old filly who will be racing against males for the first time—Reveride.

Others in the 10-horse field and their jockeys: Jack Dreyfus' colt of Finger Point, John Ruan and Group Plan, winner of the 1975 Gold Cup, Hildoro Gunes; Father Hogan, Mike Venezia; Great Contractor, Pat Day; El Pittore, no rider; American History, Angel Santiago; Enchumao, Jose Vargas; and Appassionato, Ruben Hernandez.

Forego was declared out of the race, and out for the season, Wednesday because of a foot injury.
